State Seeks Woman Companion of Philip E. Fox

SLAYER'S ACTIONS BEFORE SHOOTING ARE UNDER PROBE

ALIENISTS CONTINUE TO TEXT FOX SANITY

Attorney for Prosecution Says State Plans No Insanity Commission Hearing for Slayer.

Search for a woman said to have been in the company of Philip E. Fox, former Ku Klux Klan publicity director and slayer of Attorney William S. Coburn, shortly before he fired the fatal shots, has been launched by investigators operating for the prosecution, according to announcement made from official sources Wednesday. It was further intimated that this woman may possess information that will shed light on the motive that prompted the slaying.

Additional developments Wednesday revealed information that the state's investigators are engaged in checking every movement of the slayer during the hours immediately preceding the shooting. Fox is reported to have registered at a prominent downtown hotel during the early afternoon of the slaying, and it was shortly after he registered at the hotel that he is said to have been seen in the company of the woman who was the central figure in Wednesday's investigation. Efforts to verify reports that this woman left the city near the time of the shooting were fruitless.

Boykin Out of Town.

Solicitor John Boykin was reported as being out of the city Wednesday, and no statement was made from his office during his absence. However, officials following the investigation stated that efforts are being made to obtain a more complete report on the indicted man's movements on the day of the shooting.

Attorney William Schley Howard, employed to assist Solicitor Boykin in conducting the prosecution, stated Wednesday that the only announcement he was at liberty to make was "that the prosecution is not at all surprised that the defense has resorted to an insanity plea for the slayer."

Reports concerning the rigid investigation being conducted into the movements of Fox during the hours preceding the shooting were corroborated by Attorney Howard. He also verified reports that investigators are following a clue concerning the mysterious woman who was seen with the slayer at the downtown hotel.

Renewed activity in checking Fox's movements on the day of the shooting appears to be the answer made by the prosecution to developments on the side of the defense, in which the outstanding features are scientific examinations made into the slayer's sanity by alienists retained by the defense.

State May Retain Alienists.

Attorney Howard stated Wednesday

STOKES AND MATE STRIKE AN ACCORD BUT VARY WORDS

New York, November 14.—"My client would as soon live with a kangaroo as with W. E. D. Stokes!" explained Samuel Untermyer, counsel for Helen Elwood Stokes, as her husband failed to contest her suit for a separation decree.

Stokes' attorney had explained that he was refraining from a contest because "Mr. Stokes wouldn't live with Mrs. Stokes no matter what the findings of the jury were."

This irritated Untermyer so much that he traveled clear to the zoo for his figure of speech, in explaining the feelings were natural.

Stokes' refusal to contest the separation suit virtually assures Mrs. Stokes of victory on her own terms. Justice Wasservogel, however, announced that he would insist of hearing all evidence concerning the custody of the children and the amount of alimony, including expert testimony on the size of Stokes' fortune. This hearing will begin next Monday.

COMMUNITY CHEST NEARS HALF-WAY MARK WEDNESDAY

Nearly $300,000 of $600,000 Budget Subscribed; Georgia Ry. & Power Company Biggest Giver.

With $60,828 reported from all divisions Wednesday, the day's result in Atlanta's Community Chest campaign brought the grand total within sight of $300,000, the half way mark.

The day's total included one donation of $5,000 by the Georgia Railway & Power company. This is the largest gift to be announced in the Atlanta campaign.

More workers than were present Tuesday attended the Wednesday noonday meeting in the basement of the Healey building, indicating that as the campaign progresses its enrollment grows in direct proportion to the expression in dollars of Atlanta's interest in her public charities and philanthropies.

Dr. T. J. Woofter, of the Georgia Committee on Race Relations, reported $2,633 additional from the colored divisions, Wednesday. H. G. Perry is the chairman of this division, which has its own organization. Wednesday's report brought the total for the colored division to $14,820 from 305 givers.

$35 Each From Negroes.

"This makes our average to date $35 for each giver," said Dr. Woofter, making his report.

The special subscriptions committee reported $17,235 which included the $5,000 from the Georgia Railway & Power company.

Numerous sections of the committee on large concerns reported Wednesday, indicating that the results of work in this big department are beginning to show. The wholesale division, of which H. E. Choate is chairman, reported $1,115; the banks and financial institutions, of which W. V. Crowley is chairman, $575; insurance, Harry I. Davis, $861.25; railroads, E. W. Sandwich, $746; retail section No. 2, L. B. Parks, $1,328; manufacturing construction companies, T. T. Flagler, $262; metal

IZZY IS MUGGED FOR NEWSPAPER BY "TAXI DRIVER"

New Orleans, November 14.—"Izzy" Einstein is in town again but New Orleans bootleggers were feeling easier tonight for the senior member of the famous team of "Izzy and Moe" had a full length picture of himself spread today on the first page of late editions of a New Orleans newspaper. With "Izzy" was his new side partner, Peter Reager, and the liquor gentry said the jig was up with their liquor sleuthing unless they resorted to disguises. Even then, they claimed, it would not be so difficult to recognize "Izzy" if he appeared in the neighborhood.

Newspapers here sought in vain to have Einstein pose for a camera man. He refused to do so. A news photographer today borrowed a taxi driver's uniform, trailed Izzy and Reager for several hours and when they entered a restaurant for lunch bribed the driver of a taxi before the place to leave his machine and climbed into the seat. When Einstein and Reager departed all he had to do was snap the shutter of the camera.

WILSON'S LEAGUE LOOMS AS ISSUE IN 1924 CAMPAIGN

TREATY AND COVENANT GAIN IN POPULARITY

BY UNITED NEWS.

Detroit, November 14.—Though he challenged Woodrow Wilson's accusation that France and Italy are "making waste paper" of the Versailles treaty, Bainbridge Colby, who was secretary of state under Wilson, told Detroit bankers Wednesday night that his chief's "philosopher idea—the league of nations—is still the only solvent for Europe's ills."

Colby's position in democratic party councils is so high, and his liasion with Wilson is believed to be so intimate, that his speech was widely regarded as added assurance that a powerful movement is afoot to keep the league one of the living issues of the 1924 campaign.

"England, in her island security, regards Germany primarily as a lame customer whose buying power for British commodities she would like to restore," Colby said.

"France, on the other hand, has a two-fold objective—the will to live as well as the desire to be repaid."

French Not Obdurate.

The French have not been obdurate in their attitude on reparations, Colby asserted.

"Have we forgotten the succession of conferences beginning at Spa in 1920, resumed in London in 1921, and culminating at Cannes in 1922, all marked by unanimous allied action and each reducing, in response to German complaints, the total of the reparation liability?"

Colby's disagreement with Wilson's rebuke of the French course in the Ruhr and Mussolini's Corfu adventure was thus indirect, but was nevertheless suavely emphasized in several paragraphs of his speech.

French Patience Tried.

"Is the time never reached," he said, "when delay, evasion and protest on the part of a debtor becomes

AUTO THEFT RING SUSPECTS JAILED

Six Negroes Indicted, Five Cars Recovered and the Search Continues in Atlanta.

Convinced that they have broken the most notorious ring of automobile thieves that has ever operated in Atlanta, police authorities announced Wednesday night the arrest of six confessed members of the ring, all negroes, and the recovery of five automobiles, while the search continued for one other known member of the ring and many other missing automobiles credited to the depredations of the men in custody.

The six arrested negroes gave their names as Leonard Evans, Fred Shepherd, Julian Fields, J. H. Johnson, Milton Thomas and Doss Trammel. The six were indicted Tuesday by the Fulton county grand jury, but announcement was delayed in view of the search being made for the seventh member of the ring.

The arrests were made by Officers S. A. Smith and J. H. Norris, of the city plainclothes squad. These officers have conducted an investigation extending over many weeks.

Five of the recovered automobiles have been identified. These cars were stolen from V. W. McKenny, of 258 East Fifth street; R. G. Dunwoody, of 780 Peachtree street; Hugh Richardson, of 400 West Peachtree street; E. F. Burch, of 110 Thompson street, East Point, and a large touring car from Autry & Lowndes, undertakers.

The negroes are said to have confessed.

BLOOD TIE PUT TO PROOF TAKES PRIZE OF TRUTH

Chicago, November 14.—Pretty eighteen-year-old Verna Grugett, suffering from anemia, had to have a blood transfusion to save her life.

Verna told Roy Vaughn, her fiance, about it and Roy allowed that he'd be pretty busy with his grocery wagon for the next month or two, but that he knew a healthy looking fellow who hung around his store who ought to serve the purpose nicely.

So it was arranged that way, and a tall, blonde, healthy Apollo named Joseph Vanderhandel, gave up a pint of his blood for Verna.

Every time Roy has called at the Grugett home since, Verna has been "sleepin" or something, while Joseph has disappeared.

And Verna, who is going to be able to go to dances again in about a month, plans to put an ad in the paper for Joseph.

LABOR INDORSES CITY AND COUNTY SCHOOL MERGER

Atlanta Federation Opposes Flat Rate Income Tax; Underwood Roundly Scored as Anti-Labor.

Adopting a report of its executive committee upon the proposed merger of the four school systems in the city of Atlanta and Fulton county, the Atlanta Federation of Trades gave its indorsement to the project at its session Wednesday night and instructed its legislative committee to seek means by which such a combination might be made.

Following an address by Carl Karston, who pointed out what he termed the unfairness of the proposed flat rate income tax now before the state legislature, a resolution was adopted protesting against that measure on the grounds that it is unfair to the workingman and favors the class with large salaries and incomes.

Another important matter coming before the central labor body for action was the ordinance now before council requiring the city employes to live within the limits of the municipality. After a brief talk by Former President Emmett L. Quinn, of the federation, a motion was adopted protesting against the ordinance, and instructing the legislative committee to appear before council to fight it.

Underwood Assailed.

Acting upon a request from the Allied Labor Bodies of Birmingham, Ala., which had adopted a strong resolution condemning Senator Oscar Underwood as a presidential nominee, the central labor body of Atlanta also passed resolutions in which the Alabama senator was severely criticised as an enemy of organized labor, and in which it was stated that the southern senator should have no further political honors bestowed upon him.

Other matter coming before the federation was the adoption of a committee report proposing a donation of $25 to the Stone Mountain Memorial fund; an address by Representative King, of the Community Chest now in progress, and other measures of a minor nature.

The merger of the four school systems of Fulton county and the city of Atlanta was the livest proposition that came before the body, an attempt

HOUSE WOULD TAX STOCK TO RELIEVE BURDEN ON FARMS

Tax Equalization Repeal Bill To Be Considered as Soon as General Tax Act Is Passed.

SEEK THEATER TAX TO BUY FREE BOOKS

Move To Abolish Oil Inspectors Is Defeated by the House Committee. Soft Drink Tax Killed.

Heavy increase in the license tax on the capital stock of large corporations was voted by the lower house of the Georgia general assembly Wednesday in an amendment to the general tax act proposed by Representative Stewart, of Atkinson county. The increase was a companion measure to another which did not come up for action and which removes all ad valorem tax from cultivated farm lands.

The amendment will, according to Mr. Stewart, solve the entire tax problem of Georgia and end all necessity for further work by the special session.

The amendment adopted Wednesday provides that all corporations doing business in the state shall pay a license tax of $100 on each $1,000,000 of their capital stock in excess of $2,000,000. Under the present law, the corporations are paying such a license tax on a graduated scale, the highest tax being $600 on capitalization of $2,000,000 or over. Under the law as amended by Mr. Stewart, a corporation with $5,000,000 capitalization would pay $600 for the first $2,000,000, and $100 for each additional million or $900 in all.

Would Take Off Farm Tax.

Mr. Stewart claims that this will raise an additional $2,000,000 in annual revenue for the state and on Wednesday afternoon he said if the legislature would now pass his bill to exempt all cultivated farm lands where the owner lives on the property from taxation for a period of five years, the problem of easing the tax burden upon real property and providing a new source of revenue to offset it, will have been solved and the legislators can go home with their work accomplished.

Contrary to expectations, the house did not complete discussion of the general tax act on Wednesday. At the hour of adjournment for the day, amendments to the clause putting a tax of 3 per cent on gross premiums collected by insurance companies were in debate. The committee has introduced an amendment to reduce this rate to 1 1-2 per cent, it being understood that this clause was one of the main reasons why the senate refused to pass the bill at the regular session. Representative Holton, of Wilcox, introduced another amendment to place the tax at 2 per cent, and Mrs. Napier, of Bibb, introduced one to extend the provision that taxes need not be paid on returned premiums to casualty insurance companies, in addition to fire insurance companies, as at present provided. Mr. Holton's amendment also took care of this point.

An attempt to place a tax of $10

DEAD MAN MUST RISE TODAY—OR ASCEND IN SMOKE

New York, November 14.—Dr. Frederick L. Rawson, English spiritual healer, who died from pneumonia four days ago with the belief that life remained in the human body until disintegration set in, had not returned to life this afternoon when the four days in which, under the law, embalment or cremation must take place, had expired.

Shortly before 4 o'clock the board of health granted an extension of one day. Under orders received from Mrs. Rawson in London the body will be cremated tomorrow morning unless the prayers of the healer's disciples for his resurrection are answered.

Women disciples today still kept vigil at the bier in an Eighth avenue undertaking establishment, singing and praying fervently.

"MORTIMER LIED," IS FORBES' REPLY TO GRAFT CHARGE

Former Head of Veterans' Bureau Uses Plain Words in Testimony Before Senate Body.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, November 14.—Charles R. Forbes passed the lie direct today to two of his accusers—Brigadier General Charles E. Sawyer and Elias H. Mortimer—and then charged counsel for the senate committee investigating the veterans' bureau with suppressing material facts which show his innocence.

Moreover, the former director of the bureau charged that witnesses had been "browbeaten" into testifying before the committee and asserted that his counsel had the proof.

Turning to Forbes' attorney, James S. Easby-Smith, John F. O'Ryan, general counsel for the committee, inquired if he was prepared to furnish the evidence.

"I am if the committee desires to hear it," replied Mr. Easby-Smith.

"The committee certainly wants to hear it," declared Chairman Reed.

Opening the cross examination of Forbes, General O'Ryan wanted to know who was in the "conspiracy" to destroy him which the formed director had charged on yesterday was on foot.

INCOME TAX BILL BACK IN SENATE

Committee Recommends Adoption for the Second Time After It Fails To Pass Senate Wednesday

After a deadlock in the senate Wednesday morning a compromise on the Lankford bill providing for the levying of an income tax on a graduated scale not to exceed 5 per cent, was reached in the afternoon when the upper house committee on constitutional amendments decided to recommend it again for passage. A companion measure providing for the reduction of the state ad valorem tax rate from 5 to 4 mills will accompany the committee's favorable report.

The senate recommitted the income tax bill after it had adopted two committee amendments, one improving the clause for crediting of ad valorem tax payments on income tax assessments and vice versa, and the other establishing the exemption for single persons not less than $1,000, for married persons not less than $2,000, and for each dependent not less than $400.

Reconsideration of the bill was voted by the senate 21 to 10 when it came up for passage at the morning session. After failing on a first effort the senate on second motion voted to recommit the bill for further consideration of the constitutional amendments committee. The bill had been favorably recommended by the committee Tuesday afternoon following lengthy discussion and the senate's action in recommitting it came as a surprise to advocates of the measure.

In its amended form, and with the companion measure recommended by the committee on constitutional amendments, the Lankford measure is expected to be adopted by the senate when that body convenes this morning.

REPUBLICANS SHY AT NAMING CHIEF TO CARRY BANNER

Ambassador Harvey, Political Dopester of Parts, Still Studies "Form" of Entrants.

COOLIDGE PROBATION NOT YET EXPIRED

The President Still Must Make Good in Eyes of Party Heads To Win Support.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington, November 14.—The uncertainty of republican leaders as to the advisability of pushing Calvin Coolidge for the presidential nomination next year is the outstanding element in the political situation at this time. The political chieftains are not yet sure about Coolidge.

Ambassador George Harvey, for one, is going into winter quarters, where he can hide from politicians and reporters for at least two months. He is not yet ready to pick the winner in the next race. He is going to wait until the political skies clear up before casting his lot. This hesitancy of Harvey's is bound to impress a large number who, witnessing his accurate hunch in picking Woodrow Wilson back in 1910 and Warren G. Harding in 1920, have become convinced that as goes George Harvey, so goes the nation.

He Dodges Spotlight

Harvey has just arrived here to make his final report to secretary of state Hughes before retiring as ambassador to Great Britain. He is staying at the White House and is dodging the spotlight. He intends to go down south for the winter, probably to Elorida and wait for the country's political drift to show itself. After he notes the reaction of the country and the politicians to Coolidge's initial message to Congress, Harvey will determine whether he will support the president for the nomination.

Harvey told the writer he did not plan to revive his famous weekly.

His attitude is typical of a large number of influential persons within the party. Practically all of the leading figures who were associated with Harding have said they favored giving the nomination to Coolidge provided he makes good. They are now waiting to see whether he fulfills that condition.

Will Seize Chance to Gab.

Politicians are putting their heads together a lot but are saying little. Half a dozen republican chiefs will gather here Thursday to hear delegations from cities seeking the republican national convention. San Francisco, Denver, Des Moines, Chicago and Cleveland are most eager to have the big republican show.

But the politicians will take this opportunity to talk over the impression Coolidge is making out in the country. John T. Adams, chairman of the republican national committee has been in Chicago conferring with Fred W. Upham, republican treasurer. Senator Hiram Johnson arrived in

UNBIDDEN VISITOR CRASHES PORTALS OF ATLANTA HOME

Without so much as the formality of ringing the doorbell, a nocturnal visitor crashed through the front door of the residence of an Atlanta man last night, curled up on the "welcome" mat just inside the door, and waited for developments.

It was an automobile.

Presumably, there was a driver when the "visitor" arrived, but as the family of Albert Smith, 30 Dodd street, rushed to the front entrance to discover if an earthquake or a bombardment was in process, only a wrecked car, very empty, greeted their eyes.

Now the Smith's have a broken door, a twisted door jamb, and a large touring car—maybe. Police are seeking the driver.

Officers Bullard and Weaver, who investigated, stated that the license tag on the car was issued to C. W. Sofebee, route No. 4, Marrietta, for a Ford car.

LET FRANCE TAKE BURDEN IN RUHR IS GERMAN IDEA

BERLIN PLANS WIDER THAN THEY APPEAR

By The Associated Press.

London, November 14.—Germany has decided to repudiate the treaty of Versailles and not to comply with either the reparations clause or any other of the clauses of the treaty as long as the French and Belgians occupy the Ruhr, says a dispatch to the Daily Mail from Berlin.

The German government's attitude, says the Daily Mail, is that repudiation follows logically its theory that the occupation of the Ruhr infringes the treaty and that as long as the French and Belgians persist in breaking the terms of the treaty, Germany is excused from observing them.

BY FERDINAND JAHN.

Berlin, November 14.—Clarification of the German project to withdraw government support from the Ruhr and Rhineland boils the issue down to the fact that Berlin intends to throw up her hands and clear out of the troubled zone and force France to be morally responsible for whatever happens.

The government declares that the withdrawal will be "only financial"—that doles to the district will cease and asserts that the much talked-of breaks with France and the scrapping of the Versailles treaty is mere nationalist verbal fireworks.

It is learned, however, that the withdrawal will have wider scope. The government intends to halt intercourse with the French on the reparations question, and will refuse coal and other deliveries. Financial support, furthermore, is about the only government contact with the occupied areas at present, and its withdrawal leaves them standing alone.

France to Fish Alone.

Germany, in other words, will say in effect to France:

"You had part of the Rhineland as a guarantee. You wanted the Ruhr, and took it. Now that you have the territory, its up to you. You have it, now fish in it."

A German official informs the United News that the cabinet considers that France is daily breaking the treaty of Versailles by occupying the Ruhr, and that Germany will deal only with France when the latter resumes a legal attitude under the treaty, until then France will not be paid.

Germany intends to uphold her treaty obligations toward England and Italy, however.

New States Can Parley.

Her basic reason for the attitude is the desire to rid herself of the burden of caring for the Ruhr, and simultaneously make France responsible before the world for the suffering of the Ruhr and Rhineland.

There is nothing, however, to prevent the Ruhr and Rhineland industrialists from negotiating with the French. If they wish to restart their industries at all, they must reach a reparations agreement with Paris.

This would seem the logical course of developments under the arrangement. Germany, while retaining nominal dominion over the occupied aries, would actually wash her hands of their fate. France would wish to restart their industries. Paris would insist they agree to pay their proportional share of reparations. The industrialists would probably pay. Therefore Berlin would be free of the burden of Ruhr and Rhineland doles.

Consider Plebiscite.

The government, it is said, is considering holding a plebiscite in the occupied areas to determine whether they wish to retain their present status in the reich or form a state, with wide powers, in the reich.

In any circumstance, Berlin believes that the territory will not be permanently lost. Whatever authority the French may obtain through the move, whatever degree of self-government ultimately is granted by Berlin, Germany believes that the Ruhr and Rhineland will remain loyal, in heart, to the nation.

It is semi-officially stated that the government's attitude toward the situation is that America took toward German occupations in wartime, namely, that an occupying nation was responsible for provisioning the people of the occupied zone.

AMBASSADORS FAIL TO CONSIDER KAISER.

Paris, November 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—The allied council of ambassadors failed to consider at its meeting today the question of what action should be taken in connection with the return of the crown prince to Germany and as to Germany's attitude regarding the resumption of allied military control. The session was devoted to routine work and it is understood the ambassadors avoided mentioning these questions because the allies were not in accord as to the proper course of action.

Great Britain, which took the initiative in the sending of a coercive note to Germany regarding the return of Frederick William, now is said to be desirous of dropping the whole matter, while France, which was at first indifferent, but later came to favor action of some sort, is ready for such action.

LONDON ANXIOUS; PARIS IS PRESSING.

London, November 14.—Notwithstanding the official equanimity over reports that William Hohenzollern was planning to return to the fatherland, some of the newspapers continue to express suspicion as to his designs.

The Doorn correspondent of The Daily Mail says the former kaiser's return has been under consideration for several weeks. The newspaper recalls various recent rumors which are supposed to confirm William's intentions, but none of these has a very solid appearance and nowhere is there anything that tends to substantiate the report.

France is bringing pressure to bear on Great Britain looking to joint action for the expulsion from Germany of the former crown prince.

For the moment the British government believes it useless to try to undo the accomplished fact, but no decision will be announced until after today's cabinet meeting. The government has received no official intimation the former kaiser intends to duplicate the dash of his heir. British officials are confident that Holland will observe her pledge to act as jailer for the former war lord.

Unity of Action Sought.

France is urging Great Britain to send a strong rejoinder to Germany regarding Chancellor Stresemann's negative reply to the allied request for greater protection and latitude of action for the interallied military control commission. France favors energetic action if Berlin refuses to give up the ex-crown prince or declines to extend the safeguards requested for the commission.

In the British view the seizure of Hamburg or other German ports is not to be ruled out from possible action by France if Germany refuses to capitulate, but officials here declare England will decline to support such drastic measures.

There appears a clearly defined effort on the part of Premier Poincare to establish greater unity of action between France and England so as to impress the Berlin cabinet and discourage the ex-kaiser from attempting to regain his liberty.

BELGIAN DEPUTIES TO DEMAND ACTION.

Brussels, November 14.—Deputies Van Hock, Bouesses and Mathieu, respectively members of the Catholic, liberal and socialist parties, served notice on the government today that they would interpellate it as to the measures the Belgian government intends taking in view of the return of the crown prince to Germany. The interpellators will demand that the government ask the extradition of the crown prince in conformity with article 228 of the treaty of Versailles.

The three deputies, the first two of whom belong to the governmental majority, also will request the government to take measures to prevent a similar return to Germany of the ex-kaiser.

BAPTISTS ASK U. S. TO ACT.

San Francisco, November 14.—A resolution calling upon the United States government to head a movement of the nations to prevent the return to power of William Hohenzollern and his family in Germany was adopted last night by more than 10,000 Baptist laymen and ministers of California, attending a Bible and missionary conference here. A copy of the resolution was sent to Secretary of State Hughes.

CROWN PRINCE SEES ROSY FUTURE FOR GERMANY.

Oels, Silesia, November 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—Former Crown Prince Frederick William is overjoyed at his return to Germany after five years of exile in Holland. He spent the morning strolling about the garden of his estate, accompanied by his wife, Princess Cecilie, and later received the newspaper correspondents, to whom he made the following statement:

"I am glad to be back with my wife and children after nine years' absence (this apparently including his years on the war front); happy again to be among my fellow citizens and to be able to share with them the grave burdens of the Fatherland.

"It is my intention to devote myself to my personal estate in Oels and to help in the task of building up the Fatherland, which I have reason to believe will regain its former greatness."

He wore a sport suit and was bareheaded. Cecilie was attired in a brown leather motor coat with a traveling hat to match and carried a walking stick. Two police dogs pranced about the garden and Frederick William at times stopped to play with them, tossing sticks for them to retrieve.

His good humor seemed unbounded and he visited the garage of the estate with the chauffeurs who accompanied him from Holland, their conversation being punctuated by jokes and laughter.

BANK MESSENGERS SLAIN BY BANDITS

New York, November 14.—Two bank messengers were murdered by two bandits who stole $43,600 from them in a spectacular hold-up today at the Fifty-fifth street station of the West End subway line in Brooklyn.

The station was filled with persons on their way to work when the bandits opened fire, later fleeing with their haul in an automobile for which the police have sent out a general alarm within a fifty-mile radius of the city.

The messengers who were shot were William S. Barlow and William H. McLaughlin, both of Brooklyn, and employed by the West End bank. They were taking the money to another bank.

Shot on Stairs.

Carrying the money in a black bag, the messengers boarded a West End train at Eighty-sixth street, where the subway trains run on an overhead structure, getting out at the Fifty-fifth street station.

As they were descending the stairs they were met by the two bandits. Passengers on the platform heard several shots but could not see exactly what happened.

Persons on the street, however, saw the robbers snatch up the bag, jump into an automobile and disappear.

Pedestrians were unable to get the license number, for the robbers had adopted the latest bandit device of burning some compound which emits a smoke screen through the exhaust.

The murder of the bank messengers was the climax of a 24-hour period of sensational criminal activity.

Many People Shot.

Late last night a bandit shot and mortally wounded Jacob Bankhoff, druggist, after he had found but $20 in the cash register. The robber escaped.

Early today two young men entered a downtown subway station, shackled the cashier's arms behind him and while one made change for passengers, the other emptied the cash box of $650. They kicked the cashier under a shelf and escaped.

A motor truck bringing $78,000 in woolen goods from Hartford, Conn., was stolen in the Bronx.

Orlando, Fla., November 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—I. L. Fenney, it is said, is expected to recover.

The entire west top of the structure gave way carrying masonry 125 feet long, two feet thick and eight feet high with an overhanging terra cotta facing three feet wide. Perkins was lying on the coping working on the overhanging portions.

D. Swearingen was standing on a scaffold inside the wall and narrowly escaped injury when he attempted to seize Perkins as he hurled downward. The cause of the accident has not been determined. Work on the building will be delayed for several weeks, it is said.

MEMORIAL GIVEN FEDERAL REBATE

The gas rebate of the Federal Bakery, one of the largest consumers of gas in Atlanta, has been assigned to Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial, it was announced Wednesday afternoon by Hollins N. Randolph, president of the memorial association.

In its bakeries on Broad street and elsewhere, it was pointed out by Mr. Randolph, this company uses a very large amount of gas. The question of donating the rebate to the memorial was referred to the officers and directors of the company at the headquarters in Jacksonville and they decided to give it.

"This rebate," said Mr. Rondolph, "will amount to several hundred dollars. It was a fine, public-spirited thing for the company to do. Although the company headquarters are in Jacksonville, the bakeries in Atlanta are among the most flourishing of the entire Federal chain, and the company felt that it should do its part in raising the memoral fund. Another consideration with the company was that many of its customers have assigned their gas rebates to the memorial for gas used in their homes.

"On account of the Community Chest campaign, in the success of which the officers of the memorial associaton are interested equally with other citizens, we have held our efforts for the memorial in suspension for the past several days."

MISTAH SPEAKAH

By Ralph T. Jones

Mistah Speakah—

I move to reconsider—

Some member of the house, during the course of debate yesterday, asked the rhetorical question, "whither are we drifting?" Another member promptly amended his query and asked "Whither are we at?" Aye, brethren, whither?

It was rumored yesterday, that an attempt would be made to have the house convened daily and six a.m., recess for thirty minutes for the lunch hour, and continue work until adjournment at 7:30 p.m. The argument was made, privately, that the farmers of Georgia, whose influence seems to be the dominant power in the legislative halls, work from before dawn until after dark. That is, some of them. So why shouldn't the legislators, all of whom profess great admiration for the tillers of the fragrant soil, work similar hours? All right, I'll bite. Why not?

Mistah Speakah, move to amend preceding paragraph. Strike out word "work" wherever it refers to members in session at the house, and substitute therefor the word "talk."

'Stunny thing. Haven't heard a proposal yet to tax checker players, horse-shoe pitchers and set-back tournaments.

Friend Elders, of Tattnall, however, wants to tax all theaters and picture houses, twenty per cent of their gross receipts. Wish we knew what is Elders' favorite indoor sport. Then could suggest a bill to tax that on a like scale.

When is it going to end? Some say Saturday, some Wednesday next, some two weeks, three or a month. And some, it is said, do prophesy a week's recess between adjournment sine die and the convening of the 1924 regular session.

Parliamentary inquiry. If the Stewart bill to exempt all cultivated farm lands, where the owner lives on the premises, from taxation for five years, passes, can I claim exemption for my local residence on the plea that the kitchen garden and chicken yard at the back constitute a miniature farm? For I live on it, just as the farmer has his house on his property.

Mistah Speakah—

4 FIREMEN HURT IN ROME CRASH

Constitution Bureau, T. J. Bryson, Mgr. Phone 184.

Rome, Ga., November 14.—(Special)—Four city firemen had an almost miraculous escape from death here today when a fire truck ran head-on into a five-ton truck loaded with green logs on South Broad street. J. C. Shaw, driver of the fire truck, and W. J. Smith, firemen were painfully cut and bruised while the other two occupants of the fire truck sustained minor injuries. The fire truck was almost demolished.

The accident occurred when the driver of the lumber truck dashed from a "blind" street directly in front of the fire truck that was traveling at a rapid rate of speed. The lumber truck, loaded with some four tons of green logs, was not seriously damaged.

Family in Distress.

Rome, Ga., November 14.—(Special)—Hungry, cold, and penniless, Mark Brady and five small children, one of them totally blind, reached Rome last night en route to Macon after having hiked a good part of the distance between this city and Stanley county, N. C.

Two months ago, while Brady was sick in bed, he said, his wife left the family which was in dire distress at the time. The eldest girl, 15, is blind, and so the housekeeping fell upon a pair of twins 10 years of age, building a fire in the stove, one of the twins set the house on fire and all of the family's worldly possessions went up in smoke.

Brady had relatives at Rossville, near Chattanooga, whom he knows are able and he believed willing to help him. He decided to come to Georgia. Without money, however, the trip was made on foot, except for occasional "lifts" along the road. Reaching Rossville, he learned that the relatives had moved to Macon, and again the footsore family took the long trail, one of the twins leading the blind girl and Brady carrying the youngest who is less than three. The family reached Rome last night without funds, food, shelter, or friends.

Ensign Horgan, of the Salvation Army, fed and sheltered the family last night. This morning, he supplemented the scanty clothing they wore and at 9 o'clock put the entire family aboard the Sewanee Limited with tickets that will carry them to Macon. There Brady feels that he will find his relatives ready to assist him. He does not know their address, however, and expressed the fear that he may have difficulty in locating them.

Bridge Is Open.

Rome, Ga., November 14.—(Special.)—The new $30,000 bridge over Armuchee creek, the most expensive bridge ever erected by the state highway department in northwest Georgia, has just been opened to traffic. The county gang is now widening the fill on the Armuchee side and as soon as this work is completed, the approaches on both sides will be hard surfaced.

Push Advertising.

Rome, Ga., November 14.—(Special.)—Representatives of the Cedartown and Rome chambers of commerce will go to Summerville Thursday to present details of the "Advertise Northwest Georgia" movement to members of the Summerville Civitan club. The organization has invited speakers from the two towns to be present at the meeting, and has expressed interest in the publicity movement launched in the two cities some six weeks ago. It is expected here that a trip will be made to LaFayette also within the next fortnight, in acceptance of an invitation extended by the chamber of commerce of that city.

Contract for School.

Rome, Ga., November 14.—(Special.)—A contract for the erection of a modern school building in West Rome has just been let to O. W. McCurry. Plans of Lockwood and Poundstone, Atlanta architects, have been accepted. The building, which will be thoroughly modern in every respect, will have seven class rooms. It will be only a unit of the building which West Romans plan to build later, the completed building to include a large auditorium. Erection of the new building is made possible by a $36,000 bond issue voted by West Rome some three months ago.

BLOW GOES WILD AND STREET PUG DIES FROM FALL

Dallas, Tex., November 14.—A wild swing at an opponent who ducked just in time, cost the life of M. J. Muse, a truck driver here.

Muse, Tuesday, hopped from his truck and returned to the spot where Frank Stansky and John Harris had warned him of careless driving.

After a few heated words Muse started a "Firpo" at Stansky's head. The blow went wild and Muse was plunged to the sidewalk by the momentum of the swing.

He died early Wednesday morning in a hospital of a broken neck.

TWO DEAD BY BOMB

Corpus Christi, Texas, November 14.—A bomb believed to have been sent from San Antonio exploded today in the home of J. A. Barnes, prominent real estate dealer, killing Mr. Barnes and his 12-year-old son.

Mrs. Barnes, and a servant girl were injured, but not fatally.

The explosion blew Mr. Barnes to pieces, wrecked the rear end of the Barnes' home and blew out the windows of residences for a distance of a block.

The bomb, or infernal machine, was delivered to the Barnes home this morning. It was addressed to Mr. Barnes and was from San Antonio, according to Mrs. Barnes, as well as she could remember the box in which the machine was delivered bore a return address of "Cone, North Flores street, San Antonio."

When Mr. Barnes arrived home for lunch, he took the box onto the back porch, accompanied by his son, and started to open it, Mrs. Barnes and the servant were in the house.

Shortly afterward the explosion occurred. The bomb was sent by express.

Democratic Aspirants Face 5 Principal Issues in Race

BY ROBERT J. BENDER.

New York, November 14.—There are three men actively or passively in the race at the present time for the democratic presidential nomination—William Gibbs McAdoo, Senator Samuel Ralston of Indiana, and Senator Oscar Underwood of Alabama.

There are others, such as Governor Al Smith of New York, Senator Edwards of New Jersey, Former Governor James Cox of Ohio, Governor Davis of Kansas, Carter Glass of Virginia, John W. Davis, former ambassador to England, and lesser lights, who may have the yearnings for the honor, but none of whom will get anywhere. At this writing there are just three who have a chance—McAdoo, Ralston and Underwood—and this trio today are laying lines that will prevent any outsiders from obstructing their traffic.

Five Main Issues.

In order to intelligently survey the chances of these three leaders, it is necessary to take into consideration the issues which are likely to play an important part in the next campaign. Putting aside a large lot of local or so-called unimportant national points of issue, it is conceded by political leaders that the following debatable subjects will play an important part, if not the decisive part in the decision to be rendered by the electorate in forthcoming primaries and the ensuant presidential election:

1—Whether the "average man" shall be relieved of a tax burden which makes it almost impossible for him to be a home-owning progressive citizen, and whether the capitalist shall be relieved of a tax burden which, he says, blocks initiative and the onward march of productivity.

2—Whether the government shall lay down a bonus policy which will develop into another annual pension system such as has grown out of other wars in which this country has engaged.

3—How the government may best lend its aid to the farmers, particularly in the matter of moving their crops, and what should be the regulations imposed upon railroads so that they may be more a part of, as well as a service to, the traveling and shipping public.

4—What shall be the definite foreign policy of the American government—a policy of independence or a policy of unrestricted cooperation in world affairs.

5—The Ku Klux Klan.

Underwood Has Announced.

We mention them in the order of importance as gained from conversations with those espousing the cause of each of the three leading Democratic candidates. The political future of each is completely wrapped up in one or more of these issues, as will be shown in later stories.

Of the three candidates, Senator Underwood is the only one to date to formally announced that he seeks the democratic nomination. He is out making speeches to establish a foundation for his cause. McAdoo has not announced his candidacy and, if he follows the advice of his good friends, he won't for some time. Nevertheless, a tremendous movement in his behalf has been started by his friends throughout the country. Senator Ralston has become a candidate for the nomination "by proxy." He hasn't suggested it, hasn't thought much about it, possibly has felt that he didn't want the worry of it—but is in the position of having political managers in the party working to the end that he get it.

"How to Judge Southern Mortgage Bonds"

Like any other form of investment, there are good and bad real estate bonds. This booklet clearly explains the important features in judging these bonds. We will gladly send you a copy without the least obligation on your part.

A 7% Investment
—backed by 58 years of safety

Out of the knowledge and experience gained during fifty-eight years in the first mortgage investment field without loss to a single investor, we have evolved many exclusive protective features which have been incorporated in the modern, scientifically developed real estate mortgage—the Adair Protected Bond.

These bonds, created, approved and recommended by the South's Oldest Mortgage Investment House, are secured upon selected improved properties, centrally located, such as office buildings, hotels, and apartment houses, whose value is far in excess of the total bond issue and whose net earning power greatly exceeds the annual interest and principal payments.

By our Partial Payment Plan you may invest $10.00, $50.00, $100.00 or more a month, and receive 7% interest on your payments. May we send the full details of this pleasant way of saving at 7%?

FLAMES DESTROY EAST POINT HOME

East Point, Ga., November 14.—(Special)—One house was completely destroyed and two others were badly damaged in a fire which late this afternoon threatened the residential section on North Main street. East Point and Camp Jessup firemen, by quick work, prevented the flames from spreading to other residences.

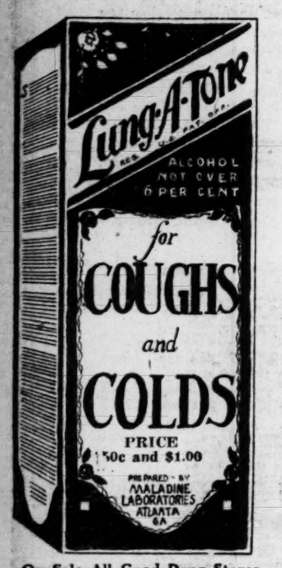

The home of C. C. Spence, 602 North Main street, was totally destroyed; that of deputy sheriff W. F. Thompson, 600 North Main, was almost completely razed; and the home of W. E. Burdett, 604 North Main was badly damaged.

Loss was estimated at $5,000, largely covered by insurance.

Origin of the fire has not been determined. The flames originated in the Spence home, where Spence, a night watchman, was sleeping. He was awakened when the house became full of smoke, and escaped before he was burned.

"Suffered Rheumatic Torture for Years"

Now Restored to Perfect Health

Read What J. C. Jones, of Winchester, Ky., Has To Say About ALLENRHU, the Sure Conqueror of Rheumatism.

"For years I was a sufferer from the torture of rheumatism. My limbs (feet and hands) would swell to almost double their normal size. I suffered intense pain day and night so that I could hardly eat or sleep. I had very little hope of ever recovering from this most dreadful and painful disease. A friend of mine seeing how despondent I was over my hopeless condition advised me to try ALLENRHU. I went immediately to the George Drug Company in Winchester and got a bottle of the internal treatment and a bottle of the Liniment to use externally. For the sake of other sufferers I wish to say that the results were simply marvelous. After beginning the combined treatment the swelling began to reduce and the pain left me entirely. I continued the treatment until I had taken only two bottles which effected a complete cure. Today I positively feel better than ever before in my life. I feel that I am very fortunate in finding a remedy that has relieved me of the distress and the almost unbearable pains from which I suffered. For the past five weeks I have been working 12 hours a day and haven't even a symptom of rheumatism or ache or pain." Signed, James C. Jones.

ALLENRHU has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished even in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and piteous and where the patient was helpless. You are sure to get it at all drug gists.—(adv.)

NEW TRIAL DENIED TO R. N. BERRIEN, JR., IN WARRANT CASE

R. N. Berrien, Jr., former Atlanta broker, sentenced to three to five years in the state prison on charge of misappropriating approximately $40,000 in Georgia state school warrants, was denied a new trial in a decision handed down Wednesday by the court of appeals.

The decision held that the indictment under which Berrien was tried was not demurrable and also that there was no error in thec harge made to the jury by Judge John D. Humphries.

Berrien appealed his conviction over a year ago. He was at first admitted to bail in the sum of $15,000, with his aunt on his bond, but she later withdrew the bond and he has since been held in Fulton county tower. The withdrawal of the bond followed the arrest of Berrien on a New York charge of misappropriation of funds entrusted to him for the purchase of municipal bonds. He waived extradition and was taken to New York, where, it is understood, the case was settled amicably.

GERMAN WAR ACE FAILS IN STUNT ON LINER'S RAIL

New York, November 14.—Karl Schellenberg went through the war as an aviator for the kaiser and came out of it alive, only to throw his life away in the gateway to America while performing a foolhardy stunt for the amusement of his friends.

Schellenberg, 29 years old, was coming to America on board the North German Lloyd liner Meunchen. As the vessel steamed up Ambrose Channel toward New York, pitching violently, he climbed on the rail to show his friends he could balance on such uncertain footing.

Then he slipped. The body was not found.

Atlanta Prelate Bares "Bargain" In German Deal

New York, November 14.—A little deal in German marks was lugubriously described at Simpson church, Brooklyn, today by a member of the board of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church in semi-annual session.

When the mark began, in 1920, to display sysmptoms of weakness which since has caused its collapse, the 600 pieces of property of the Methodist Episcopal church in Germany were under mortgage for $2,000,000—about 8,000,000 marks par value.

"A dollar was then worth about 17 marks," said Bishop E. G. Richardson, of Atlanta, Ga., "so, scenting a bargain, the board sent five of us over there, and we cleaned up the $2,000,000 mortgages for $116,000 cash American money.

"We thought we had been pretty wise. If we'd waited until today we could have paid off those mortgages for about 1-3000 of a cent, more or less."

Bishop J. L. Nuelson, of Zurich, whose area includes Germany, Switzerland and Russia, also related an incident.

"Just before I sailed to attend this conference," he said, "one of my churches gave a grand festival for the benefit of charity. Weeks were spent in preparation for it, and the festival was quite an affair. We took in 400,000,000 marks—about three cents."

McAdoo Boosted For Presidency By "Atlantian"

Breathing a normal quantity of the refreshing reading material always contained in its pages, "The Atlantian," published monthly under the direction of Editor Bernard Suttler, and pledged to the motto "Pull for Atlanta or Pull Out," made its November appearance in the city Wednesday.

The Atlantian, far-famed for its unequivocating position on any subject that bids for discussion, enters a number of currently popular subjects with assertions destined to "get a rise" from its readers. The first page of reading matter is featured by an article entitled "McAdoo Leading for Democratic Nomination." That's that.

Turn the page and you are face to face with an article entitled, "A Little Slant on Georgia Politics," none of which is conducive to teasing the breasts of political leaders in Georgia, high or low. There are 34 pages and the entirety shows an attractive makeup. It's just out.

PLAN MILL ADDITION FOR FEDERAL PRISON

Washington, November 14.—Liberal appropriations for the construction of buildings and the installation of machinery at the federal penitentiaries at Atlanta, Ga., and at Leavenworth, Kan., to give employment to inmates will be recommended by the joint congressional committee which concluded its hearing on the subject today.

After hearing Heber A. Votaw, superintendent of prisons, the committee announced through its chairman, Representative Graham, of Pennsylvania, that it agreed employment should be provided for the inmates of the federal penitentiaries and that its only difficulty was to find ways for the employment of all who desired work.

The committee will recommend the extension of the cotton factory at Atlanta where duck is being made for the manufacture of mail bags and will also recommend the establishment of a shoe factory and a brush and broom factory at Leavenworth.

Superintendent Votaw told the committee that the men at Atlanta are anxious to work and that those who can be given employment earn from $10 to $12 a month which, while small, had contributed, he said, to a degree in relieving dependent families. The amount probably could be increased, he suggests, when the equipment enabled all who desired to be given employment. It was not considered fair when men who wanted work could not obtain it, he explained, to pay much larger wages to those who were fortunate enough to be employed.

A. E. Sartain, warden of the Atlanta penitentiary, Wednesday night stated that he had not yet been informed of the proposed enlargement of the Atlanta duck mills, and that he did not know the details of the plans of the committee. A three-story concrete warehouse building is now in the process of construction in connection with the duck mills, he stated.

Washington, Ga., November 14.—(Special.)—Mrs. E. L. A heavily loaded lumber truck traveling in the opposite direction crashed into the Davis car, hurling Mrs. Davis to the ground almost scalping her.

LABOR INDORSES SCHOOL MERGER

being made by amendment of President Charles B. Gramling of the Georgia Federation of Labor to defer action upon the question pending more and broader information upon the subject.

To Eliminate Politics.

This move, however, was vigorously opposed by President T. W. Cunningham, who gave up the gavel to Vice President Keesling, while he protested that the merger of the city and county school systems seemed to be the only way to take the school system out of city hall politics. Mr. Cunningham said that it would be impossible for any board of education to please the city council of Atlanta, and declared that as long as the school system remained as it is there would be an eternal wrangle in the city hall.

Emmett L. Quinn, former president of the body, supported the attack of President Cunningham on the amendment to defer, and when it came to a vote the amendment was overwhelmingly lost and the report favoring the merger was adopted.

Reasons for Merger.

W. C. Caraway, John F. Scott and C. B. Keesling, who made up the committee, gave the following reasons for advising the merger:

1. The saving in money and textbooks, the convenience of the people it seeks to serve in adjusting themselves in the various parts of the city and county, constitutes one of the greatest arguments why the merger should take place.

2. We find in the territory embraced by the city and county school systems, there are four different systems with four different administrative forces and four different boards. All of these are within a small territory and easily accessible and could be operated from one central office with a saving of expense in the matter of administration of thousands of dollars.

3. The high school problem in the city and county gives another reason for the merger. At the present time the county is preparing to build or buy a suitable building to take care of its high school pupils. Why not the city and county authorities merge their high schools at least, and complete the high school buildings now under construction, and by their coordination get better educational facilities?

4. It is a practical business matter—a business merger in order to cut down expenses and to increase efficiency.

Have Power to Tax.

5. We find that the county authorities already have the proper legislation to levy a special school tax to take care of any emergency that might arise in administering the affairs of the county public schools. The city comprises the greater part of the territory embraced in Fulton county, which we feel is another strong reason why our school systems should be merged, thereby eliminating the necessity of requiring a separate school tax to operate the city system, which we feel will cause a great confusion to the taxpayers to try and operate another for the same purpose and the desired results looked for will not be attained.

6. We recommend that the federation indorse the proposition of merging the county and city public school systems and the matter be referred to the legislative committee with instructions that it get in touch with the proper authorities looking toward securing the legislation to bring about the merging of our public schools in one great system.

City Engineers Hear McCartney At Final Session

"Railway freight traffic in Georgia and the southeast during this year has attained new high levels. The amount of freight traffic offered has been the largest in history; the railroads have made good their pledge of last April to meet the unprecedented demand for transportation this year; they agreed to carry forward their construction and maintenance programs; to have as much work as possible completed by September 1; all of these objectives have been substantially attained."

This summarization of "transportation problems" was made by Jack D. McCartney, assistant to the president of the Central of Georgia railroad, in an address here Wednesday before the 29th annual convention of the American Society for Municipal Improvements.

Elect Officers

E. R. Dutton, city engineer, of Minneapolis, was elected president of the society for the coming year. Other officers elected at the same time were E. L. Dalton, construction engineer of Dallas, vice president; C. C. Hatton, chief engineer for city of Milwaukee, second vice president; C. A. Poole, city engineer of Rochester, third vice president; Charles C. Brown, city engineer of Lakeland, Fla., secretary; Robert Hofman, chief engineer of the public service commission, Cleveland, treasurer.

W. A. Hansell, chief of construction for city of Atlanta, was elected chairman of the finance committee, other members of which are George S. Fish, engineer of streets, Buffalo, and G. J. Requardt, city engineer of Baltimore.

Mr. McCartney's message contained valuable information with regard to transportation achievements during this year, which he declared was unquestionably the "largest," so far as railroads were concerned, of any in the national's history. He will leave Atlanta this morning to deliver an address before the Rotary club of Athens, on the subject of transportation.

McCartney Speaks.

"It was predicted last spring," asserted Mr. McCartney, "that railway freight trafic would reach new high levels during the summer and fall. In preparation for the task of moving this record traffic, the railroads announced a program of expenditures upon additions and betterments to their properties amounting to more than $1,100,000,000 for the year. They set out to reduce the number of freight cars needing repairs to 5 per cent of the total and the number of locomotives needing heavy repairs to 15 per cent of the total. They agreed to lay in surplus stocks of coal during the summer, in order to release equipment for other use later in the year. They agreed to carry forward their construction and maintenance programs to have as much work as possible completed by September 1.

"All of these objectives have been substantially attained. For example, between January 1 and October 1, the railroads instaled 134,636 new freight cars and 2,963 new locomotives, and on the later date they had on order, with deliveries being made daily, 64,601 new freight cars and 1,242 new locomotives. On October 1 the railroads had in reserve 17,663,448 tons of coal, as compared with 6,756,886 tons on January 1.

Traffic Moves Smoothly.

"The surpassing achievements of the year is that a traffic greater than ever been known has been moved without interruption or delay. It was anticipated that car loadings would exceed a million cars a week in nine weeks prior to October 1. In reality, car loadings exceeded the million mark in 15 weeks. In the week immediately prior to October 1 more cars were loaded with freight than ever before in railway history—a total of 1,092,567 cars. Prior to 1923 the record loading was 1,018,539 cars in the week of October 15, 1920. Loadings in the nine months up to October 1, 1923, amounted to 37,308,891 cars, an increase of 19 per cent over the first nine months of 1922, 28 per cent over the first nine months of 1921, and 10 per cent over the first nine months of 1920. However, it is feared that, even with this unprecedented volume of traffic, the railroads will fail to earn for the year the 5 3-4 per cent upon their tentative valuation to which the interstate commerce commission has held they are entitled.

"At a previous time when business was on the increase, the development of our railroads was arrested through a loss of credit occasioned by shrunken earnings and the growth of restrictive regulation. It must be remembered that the railroads are owned by something like 800,000 persons, holders of their capital stock. The number of persons who have lent money to the stockholders by purchasing railway bonds and thereby accepting a prior claim upon the earnings of the properties owned by the stockholders is approximately as great as the number of persons owning stock. This makes something more than one and one-half million individuals who have a direct financial interest in railway earnings. All of us have an indirect financial interest, for we are all dependent upon the maintenance of adequate transportation, and adequate transportation cannot be maintained without adequate earnings."

DISPLAYS BIT OF CLASSIC TEMPERAMENT

At Dictum of Chicago Opera

BY RODNEY F. DUTCHER

Chicago, November 14.—Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci has plunged Chicago opera back into the atmosphere of the good old days when temperament reigned unchallenged and business took a seat up in nigger-heaven.

While business seems to have defeated temperament in the first instance of Galli-Curci's first public exercise of this artistic property in seven years of her connection with local opera, Madame has promised definitely that she's off Chicago for life after this season, and an old-fashioned royal row is on among the stars of opera, its managers and that great majority of Chicago society which is firmly convinced that opera is art.

Management Is Firm

Madame insisted that she should sing "Dinorah" in her 1923 debut here, and the management insisted that she sing "Lakme." It looks very much if Madame were going to sing "Lakme," but a howl of protest is pouring on the heads of the management from Galli-Curci enthusiasts, who insist she should be kept for Chicago opera at almost any cost. The management hopes Madame will reconsider her decision to leave the city flat, but is otherwise adamant.

Opera wouldn't be much without a little "war" each year. When Harold McCormick used to pay the bills there were plenty of them—bills and "wars" both—but under the arrangement to operate it here as a business proposition, the "wars" were expected to cease. In the first week of this season, however, the formichis have treated the public to their annual domestic fracas, Conductor Spadonis is reported to have poked Feodor Chaliapin in the beak, and now it is no less than Galli-Curci whose "war" is causing much gossip about other operatic figures.

Appeal to Public

"We want to leave it to the public," said Galli-Curci's manager, denying that any publicity was sought. Now the public is at it with such a vengeance as to recall the memorable combat two years ago betwen Lucien Muratore and Mary Garden, and its sentiment seems to support Amelita.

Among the charges that flew thickly and bitterly Wednesday was one that Giorgio Polacco, maestro of maestros and husband of Edith Mason, had allowed his wife and Feodor Chaliapin to pick their own opening operas, while refusing Galli-Curci the same privilege. It is even charged that Giorgio is subordinating Galli-Curci to Mrs. Polacco.

Exposes the Rub

The faction upholding the management claims that Galli-Curci is jealous of Tito Schipa, who would appear opposite her in "Lakme" but not in "Dinorah." Tito is said to have carried off more honors than Amelita in a previous performance of "Lakme."

The management, claiming that its schedule cannot be disrupted at this time, is backed by Samuel Insull, multimillionaire owner of a half dozen public utilities and head of the Chicago Civic Opera company. Insull told the diva that it was impossible for him to comply with her personal request that he "interfere with the carefully arranged repertoire of the company to suit your individual desires."

Unless the public protest becomes too loud, or unless Madame reconsiders, she will sing grand opera next year only with the Metropolitan company in New York.

ATLANTA ELKS PLAN CEREMONIAL TONIGHT

Atlanta Elks will celebrate the "Zero Hour" ceremonial at a meeting at 9:30 o'clock tonight, it was announced Wednesday by Judge L. F. McClelland, exalted ruler of the Atlanta lodge.

The committee appointed to take charge of the celebration is composed of Robert A. Gordon, E. F. Hicks and A. L. Ray. The ceremonial is said to be a unique and entertaining feature of Elk activities.

town and saw these two party leaders. He also saw republican personages from Ohio and Indiana.

The belief here is that Johnson will break loose shortly after Coolidge's message to congress and get into the northwestern primaries early in the spring.

To Deliver Delegates.

Frank Hitchcock, whose favorite stunt is to round up a block of southern negro delegates and turn them over to some candidate at the convention, is reported to be one of Johnson's prospective managers. A. D. Lasker, former chairman of the shipping board, is ready to undertake the financing of the Johnson campaign, it is reported.

There is a peristent rumor here that E. B. McLean, publisher of The Washington Post—facetiously referred to as the "court journal" during the Harding administration—and of The Cincinnati Enquirer, has grown cold on Coolidge. McLean had Coolidge as a dinner guest at his country home near here the night the Harding funeral train left for Marion, but they have seen little of each other since.

Friends of former Governor Frank O. Lowden are working quietly for him, so that if he finally decides to declare himself he will have a well organized machine ready to start instantly.

difficult to distinguish from a settled purpose of repudiation?

"I think it must be conceded that the ocupation of the Ruhr has been attended with as much restraint and avoidance of oppressive measures as is possible in connection with any program of force."

Colby declared that nations must approach the European impasse as bankers approach a financial problem; disinterestedly weighing its risks and rewards, without "a temper of prejudice, partisanship or reckless commitment to this view or that."

He applied this principle promptly with an allusion to the difficulty of Germany's situation.

Germany Has Hard Row.

"I deeply sympathize with the German people, and yield to none in appreciation of their talent, industry and valor. Vanquished, harrassed by internal conspiracies, coping at the same time with monarchist reaction and destructive radicalism, faced by privations, embittered by disappointment, their cup is filled to overflowing.

"But what nation has suffered as France has suffered? And if anything shall be said for the fears of nations as to their future security, what nation has such justification for fear as oft-invaded and much harried France?"

All the confusion which envelops Europe now was foreseen by one man at Versailles, Colby said.

League Could Solve It.

"The American president, wearying of the attempt to compose every racial animosity, to solve every territorial problem, to rectify every disputed frontier, to redress every historical grievance, and sensing the war weariness of the world, brought forward the saving formula of the league of nations.

"Above all things, here was the alternative to the old order, the escape from its sufferings, its dangers, its miseries. The old diplomacy, with its conjurers and medicine men, with its intrigues and indirections and overreachings, would lose itself in candor and forced disclosure—this was the philosopher idea of Wilson.

"This was the upward pathway on which we faltered. This was the vision from which we turned aside.

"The question is, when will America awake? When will she reassert her nobler self? When will she emerge from the delusion and error of isolation—isolation from service, isolation from grandeur, isolation from life?

"When, in other words, will America resume her place as the leader of the world?"

HOUSE WOUDL TAX STOCK TO AID FARMERS

per annum on all aliens in the state, introduced by Representative New, of Laurens, was defeated during the afternoon by a vote of 67 to 54, as well as a number of other amendments of minor importance. Chairman Ennis, of the ways and means committee, made an appeal for rapid action on the bill, pointing out that practically two days have already been taken up by the debate.

The committee on rules made a motion Wednesday morning that the next business to be considered after the general tax act has been disposed of, shall be the bill for the repeal of the tax equalization law. No attempt was made to defeat this program and the proposal was adopted almost unanimously.

During the afternoon the house committee on general judiciary number two unanimously adversed a bill introduced by Representative Linder, of Jeff Davis, which would have abolished the entire force of state oil inspectors and fertilizer inspectors, and placed the performance of these duties in the hands of the sheriffs and tax collectors of the different counties.

Theater Tax For Books.

Other bills introduced Wednesday included one by Representative Elders of Tattnall, to furnish free school books to all pupils in the common schools in the first seven grades. Provision for raising the money to purchase the books is made in the bill by a tax of 20 per cent on the gross receipts of all theaters and motion picture houses in the state for the year 1924, and 10 per cent thereafter.

An amendment adopted at the morning session reduced the tax on motion picture houses in suburbs of cities of 50,000 or more inhabitants, from $25 to $12.50. This was done in order that suburban community theaters would not have to pay the same taxes as downtown houses.

Representative Stewart introduced his bill to exempt cultivated farm lands from all state taxation for the next five years, where the owner lives upon the property.

It is expected that when the house convenes this morning the remaining paragraphs o fthe general tax act to be discussed will be disposed of rapidly, when the tax equalization repeal bill will be taken up.

What the senate will do with the manufacturers, N. C. Harrison, $1,255; soft drinks and ice cream, Turner Jones, $133; furniture manufacturers, $1093; and various other sections, bringing the total of this department to $10,491.85.

Report by the divisions engaged in canvassing the geographical sections of Atlanta showed division A, of which Julian V. Boehm is commander, with $13,430; division B, Roy Mather, $5,755.75; division C, C. L. C. Thomas, $6,186.25; division D, J. R. Bachman, $5,040.

Carter's Team Leads.

C. C. Carter's team in division C with 168 subscriptions aggregating $4,616.75, led all teams among all divisions for the day.

Roy LeCraw's team in division A, with 125 subscribers, $2,368, was the leader in that division.

The team led by Joe B. Wolfe, bringing in 138 subscriptions, $2,180, was the leader in division B.

In division D, the team of W. E. Saunders was the leader with 104 subscriptions, $1,545.

A number of Atlanta concerns whose employes have contributed unanimously to the Community Chest were reported at Wednesday's meeting, taking their place on the honor roll of 100 per cent Atlanta institutions.

Among these were the Globe Clothing company, J. Saul, The Fair, Atlanta Baggage & Cab Co., H. F. Linder, Wofford Oil company, office employes of the Coca-Cola company, Ozburn-Abston company, Prior Tire company, Motor Parts Corporation, and others.

Eugene R. Black, general chairman, told the campaigners that they are aiming toward two objectives. One of them is to raise the money, he said. The other is to teach the people of Atlanta what a Community Chest is, and how vital to a city's welfare is the work done by these 35 agencies that compose the Atlanta chest.

"You are making good progress toward both objectives," said Mr. Black. "Atlanta knows what the Community Chest is now and Atlanta believes in the welfare work these institutions are doing. You lack very little of attaining that objective, and you are about half way toward the money part of it."

Pennies of Children.

In reporting his team total for the day, Joe B. Wolfe said it included one $25 composite subscription made up of the pennies and nickies and dimes contributed by the children who are the beneficiaries of one of the agencies in the chest.

Another team captain reported a subscription of $25 from a little sewing circle whose members pay 25 cents a week as dues.

Announcement was made of a special contribution of $190 by the children of the late Mrs. Carolina Amelia Haas, of Atlanta. Mrs. Haas was said to have been the first girl baby born in Atlanta after its name was changed from Marthasville. Wednesday was the seventy-fifth anniversary of her birth.

Mr. Black said that the special subscriptions committee is engaged just now in discussing the Community Chest with a number of prominent women in Atlanta, all of whom pay taxes on more than $50,000 worth of real estate and can give generously to the Community Chest. Mr. Black expressed his belief that the gifts from these women to be announced before the end of the week, will take their rank among the largest individual subscriptions of the campaign.

Announcement was made of $1,272 subscribed by employes of the Retail Credit company. This was in addition to $3,750 previously announced as given by the executive officers of that company. The total for the Retail Credit company therefore stands at $5,002.

To Seek Recovery Of Sunken Galleys Of Roman Tiberius

Rome, November 14.—An attempt is to be made to recover from Lake Nemi near Rome the floating palace of the Emperor Tiberius, consisting of two galleys, which have been buried in the mud for 19 centuries and are believed to contain marvels of ancient art equal to those found in the tomb of Tutankhamen.

The expenses of the work will be borne by private individuals in order not to burden the government. The project has the approval of Premier Mussolini.

From Ankles Down— There's the Trouble, Says Prof. Krantz

Chicago, November 14.—From the neck up there is no cause for worry, but from the ankles down the nation is to be pitied, according to Professor L. G. Krantz, physical culture director at Northwestern university, who is conducting a campaign "to save the soles and uplift the arches" of the co-eds of the university.

"Sit down," he said to the co-eds. "Stand up. Walk. No, not that way. Here, watch me."

And the professor, who says that almost everybody is out of step but himself, put one foot ahead of the other in the manner of a penguin.

"You want to toe in," he said. "Waddle a little. Put the weight on the outside of the soles. Discard your French heels. Get shoes you can wiggle your toes in.

"The trouble with America in this jazz age is that it's been so busy wiggling its hips it's forgotten how to wiggle its toes.'

Professor decided after the first lesson that the co-eds might learn to walk if they kept at it long enough.

Birth Control Clinic Viewed as Menace By Chicago Mayor

Chicago, November 14.—A birth control clinic, if permitted to operate, might result in injury to the public health and public morals, according to an answer filed by Mayor W. E. Dever and Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen in circuit court, where a petition to compel the city to issue a license for a birth control clinic was recently filed by a group of Chicago women.

Mrs. Helen G. Carpenter and others, seeking to establish the clinic, resorted to court action, when they were refused a license by the health commissioner. The city's demurrer that the women had not complied with the law in detailing the methods they proposed to advocate, was overruled.

Disastrous results to the welfare and morals of the community would result from the dissemination of information in public to married people, the mayor and health commissioner assert in their answer. Such knowledge, coming to the attention of unmarried people, would encourage immorality, the city's officials contend.

GOVERNOR DENIES ADDRESSING KLAN

Governor Clifford Walker stated Wednesday morning that reports that he had appeared before a meeting held in the grill room of the Piedmont hotel to speak on behalf of the administration program for tax reform, were correct. He denied, however, the report that this was a secret meeting of the Ku Klux Klan, saying that while he understood there were members of the klan present, he likewise understood that some in the meeting were not klansmen.

The governor described the dinner as an informal gathering of friends of tax reform, including members of the general assembly and others, and said he had been invited to speak before it. He delivered practically the same speech that he made before the senate committee on constitutional amendments on Tuesday morning, he said, in which he urged a spirit of co-operation in approaching the tax problem.

Asked if he spoke as a klansman in making the appeal, the governor said that he did not, but simply as the governor of the state, calling upon citizens of the state for their support on a matter vital to the state's welfare.

It was understood at the capitol on Wednesday morning that invitations to the meeting were issued by General Nathan Bedford Forrest, grand dragon of the klan for Georgia, and a personal friend of the governor. General Forrest said Wednesday that it was a purely informal gathering and that questions "of vital importance to the state" were discussed by several speakers.

Among others who attended the meeting, including, it is understood, about 30 members of the general assembly were Mayor Walter A. Sims, Imperial Wizard H. W. Evans, of the klan; Ben H. Sullivan, attorney; Dr. N. H. Ballard, state superintendant of schools; J. J. Brown, state commissioner of agriculture; Judge R. B. Russell, chief justice of the state supreme court, and Judge G. H. Howard, of the Fulton superior court.

CURRY GETS STAY AS JUDGE GRANTS HEARING ON PLEA

Savannah, Ga., November 14.—Over long distance telephone this afternoon, Judge Hardeman who presided at the trial of Lee Curry, sentenced to hang Friday in Toombs county, stated that Curry would be given a hearing upon his motion for a new trial on December 8.

He explained that the court stenographer had been unable to transcribe his notes on the case, hence the defense could not complete its amendment to the motion for a new trial, the brief of evidence lacking.

Judge Hardeman's explanation threw light on a statewide inquiry whether or not Curry would hang Friday. Officials at Lyons had not been advised as to the status of the case.

EXPECT 500 DELEGATES AT SIGMA NU MEET

Birmingham, Ala., November 14.—Five hundred members of the Sigma Nu fraternity, representing students from 81 colleges in 43 states of the Union, are expected to be in attendance at the 31st grand chapter of the fraternity, which holds its biennial session in Birmingham, December 28-31, according to announcement by Chairman Borden Burr, in charge of the plans for the convention.

Elaborate entertainment features have been arranged for the convention, it is announced.

Those arranging the affair point out the Sigma Nu fraternity is more than a half century old and is one of the largest in America, both in number of colleges represented and in alumni.

IDENTIFY WOMAN AS IRENE CORLEY

Tuscaloosa, Ala., November 14.—Identification of the body found in a burned negro church building near here two weeks ago was established as that of Irene Corley, of Bessemer, Ala., and Alf Winchester, insurance man and farmer arrested in connection with the case, was held without bond on a charge of murder at the preliminary hearing of Winchester here today.

Identity of the body as that of Irene Corley was brought about largely through the efforts of Chief Deputy Sheriff H. P. Hill, of Birmingham. The woman was also known, it is said, as Irene Hughes.

One of the principal witnesses for the state was Mrs. Carri Buttram of Bessemer, who identified a bar pin picked from the ashes of the little negro church as one similar to the one one worn by Irene Corley.

Identify Scraps of Dress.

Sam Simmons, a Bessemer merchant, testified that she had purchased a suit case similar to the steel frame of one found in the fire. A scrap of silk found outside the church was identified as similar to the dress worn by the woman. Sheriff W. C. Kyle identified a curtain to an automobile as one found beneath the rear seat of Alf Winchester's automobile when the car was searched on November 8. It bore a stain which the sheriff declared to be blood.

Two witnesses said they saw Winchester in company with a young woman on a Birmingham train which reached Tuscaloosa about midnight a few hours before the burning of the church. Policeman Mose Ashley, of Tuscaloosa, testified that he saw a man and woman leave the Tuscaloosa station in an automobile after arrival of the train. The man was Winchester, he said, in his opinion.

Ask Habeas Corpus

No witnesses were put up by the defense, which contented itself at the preliminary hearing with questioning those of the state. Attorneys said after the trial that they would seek Winchester's release by writ of habeas corpus.

The name of Irene Corley had not figured publicly in the case until the preliminary trial this morning when she was named as the victim by County Solicitor E. L. Clarkson. Several women have been reported missing. Deputy Hill, of Jefferson county, had insisted for over a week that the name of the woman was known but withheld his information until further investigation could be made.

Only the skeleton of the woman remained following the fire in the little negro church four miles from the city. Officials believed from the first that the victim was a young white woman. Winchester was arrested after several days of investigation. He denies any connection with the case, and his attorneys say he will establish an alibi.

DICKERSON REWARD INCREASED TO $600

Montgomery, Ala., November 14.—(Special.)—Governor Brandon today announced an increase from $400 to $600 in reward for recapture of Roy Dickerson, bank robber and jail breaker. Today was the anniversary of Dickerson's last escape from prison. He still has 25 years and two months of time to serve under sentences imposed after the Phoenix-Girard bank robbery last year.

Safety Council Does Good Work, Asserts Beavers

Chief of Police James L. Beavers told the Atlanta Safety council Wednesday that it has been an invaluable aid in bringing safety methods and law enforcement to the attention of the public. His comment was made at a luncheon of the council at the City club.

"I will say frankly that I saw little use in a safety council and looked for but little good to come from it," he said, "but my observation of some of the results it has achieved in Atlanta, both from actual operation and the publicity it has given traffic matters through the cooperation of the newspapers, has caused me to change my mind. The results of its efforts can be seen already, and I look for even greater things to come.

"In the cities visited by Chairman Jesse W. Armistead and myself we found other branches of the National Safety council active and effective. They can do a great deal to assist the authorities by awakening in the public mind a due regard for public safety."

Coke Davis, chairman of the educational committee of the safety council, spoke of the committee's plans for carrying on safety work in the public schools. He was authorized to order 2,000 copies of a bulletin on safety, designed for children, which is published by the United States government, and these will be distributed among teachers as a part of the educational work. The council is being given hearty cooperation by Superintendent Willis A. Sutton, of the city schools, he stated.

Among the visitors at the luncheon was Captain David J. Yates, of the first aid and life saving department of the American Red Cross society, who spoke of work done in other cities in training the police to save lives by skillful resuscitation of persons apparently drowned, suffocated or suffering from electric shock. Captain Yates stated he hoped to inaugurate a similar course of lessons in the Atlanta police department.

Postmaster E. K. Large and Assistant Postmaster John Martin attended the meeting at the invitation of Judge Shepard Bryan, president. Mr. Large discussed the manner in which postoffice mail trucks are equipped with governors to prevent excessive speed and the careful instructions given the drivers to prevent accidents. Alderman W. B. Duvall, of the first ward, discussed his proposed ordinance for licensing all operators of motor vehicles.

CREWS CLEARED OF AUTO THEFT BY JUDGE SIBLEY

Joe Crews, held for Polk county, Fla., authorities on charges of larceny of an automobile, was released on a habeas corpus order signed by Judge Samuel H. Sibley, of the district federal court, Wednesday.

Crews was arrested October 14, by Plainclothes Officer G. E. Holley, of Atlanta, and was charged with having stolen an automobile in Florida four days previously. Governor Cary A. Hardee, of Florida, dispatched extradition papers to Governor Clifford Walker.

Crews contested the proceedings, setting forth that he could prove his presence in Atlanta during the time of the alleged theft. The case was removed to the federal court, and Crews presented evidence to substantiate his claim. Judge Sibley ruled that uncontradicted evidence tended to show that Crews was in this city at the time of the alleged larceny, and ordered the defendant discharged.

TREASURE WOULD BAN INELIGIBLE ALIENS

Washington, November 14.—Exclusion from the United States of all aliens ineligible to citizenship will be urged as a provision of the immigration legislation to be considered by congress at its coming session by senators and representatives from a number of western states.

Senator Shortridge, republican, California, and Representative Johnson, of Washington, chairman of the house immigration committee, announced today that a conference of western congressmen soon would be called to form a unit to get behind the legislation. Senator Shortridge said the supreme court decision this week holding constitutional Washington and California laws preventing aliens ineligible to citizenship from holding land undoubtedly would give impetus to the exclusion provision as a part of a general immigration bill.

"MORTMER LIED," IS FORBES' REPLY

ly testified) were two of the conspirators and there were others," responded Forbes.

Reads His Explanation.

General O'Ryan then wanted to know about Forbes' charges of perjury and subornation of perjury. Taking a paper from his pocket, Forbes read: "I mean by perjury the testimony of Mr. Mortimer, Mr. Williams and others. By subornation of perjury, I mean the methods which were used to induce Mr. Williams to testify falsely. By attempted subornation of perjury I mean attempts which have come to my knowledge to induce other persons to testify falsely.

"By suppression of material facts and documents I mean the suppression of important documents which show my innocence and not produced by them until forced to do so by my counsel, or by certain witnesses, and the summoning of certain witnesses by counsel for the committee and then their dismissal after the counsel learned that their testimony would be favorable to me.

"My counsel will call some witnesses on these matters and if the committee desires to hear further testimony concerning them my counsel will furnish the names of other witnesses to this committee."

It was during his cross examination that Forbes said Dr. Sawyer had "lied" on the witness stand. General O'Ryan asked if Forbes believed that the ill-feeling which had existed and apparently still existed between Forbes and Dr. Sawyer was a motive for Dr. Sawyer's testimony.

Holds to the Word.

"No, indeed," said Forbes.

"Then you believe he was just mistaken?" asked General O'Ryan.

"Mistaken—"exclaimed Forbes. "No, he's not mistaken. He just lied."

"Then your idea is that he committed perjury while here?"

"Call it what you like," returned Forbes.

He passed the lie directly to Elias H Mortimer, of Philadelphia, who had told the investigating committee that under Forbes' administration confidential information was furnished certain contractors regarding proposed hospital sites.

"If Mortimer states that," said the former director, "he states that as a lie."

Then he turned to Mortimer, who was seated at a table with the committee counsel, and exclaimed: "You laugh!"

Reed Interposes.

Chairman Reed of the committee interposed.

"You are testifying to the committee," said the chairman, "and it is not necessary for you to address other persons."

The witness also contradicted directly the testimony of Dr. Charles E. Sawyer, personal friend and physician of President Harding. Sawyer had told the committee that Forbes was dismissed by the president for not obeying an order to stop surplus property sales at Perryville, Md., but the former director declared today that Mr. Harding had given him authority to release loaded cars at Perryville after the first stop order was issued.

Taking up the purchase of the Excelsior Springs, Mo., hospital site from E. L. (Lit) Morse, prominent in Missouri republican politics, Forbes said there had been a definite commitment by the treasury department to purchase the property and establish a hospital.

"Representatives in congress came to me and explained the situation," he continued. "I in turn discussed it at the white house."

The witness characterized as "absolutely false" the testimony of Mortimer that the Thompson-Black company, of Chicago, which Mortimer said he represented, was furnished with a "confidential" list of proposed sites for hospitals so it could select the one on which it preferred to build.

Questioned about his relations with Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer, Forbes said he met Mrs. Mortimer first at the veterans' bureau, and soon afterwards was introduced to Mortimer. He denied that Mrs. Mortimer was at the bureau on soldier welfare work, saying she was there to visit a woman employee.

He said he become "fairly intimate" with the Mortimers and found them "agreeable companions." Coming then to the famous Pacific coast trip with them in the summer of 1922, Forbes said it was Mortimer who suggested that he and Mrs. Mortimer accompany the Forbes party to the west as Mortimer never had been to that section.

"I stated that there would be a lot of men in the party," the witness continued, "but that I did not see any objection to their going if they desired."

Forbes said there had been no conversation with Mortimer about expenses of the trip.

"Why did you stop at Chicago?" asked Mr. Easby-Smith.

"To inspect the Speedway hospital and to visit patients in the Marine hospital," was the reply.

Met Thomas There.

The witness said he met J. W. Thomas at Chicago but not by prearrangement. Before that he had seen him in Washington. Thompson having called on him in connection with a claim against the government growing out of a seizure of a ship.

Forbes testified as to the arrangement of the rooms of his official party at the Drake hotel where Mortimer claims he loaned Forbes $5,000 in the form of ten $500 bills.

Up to that time, Forbes said, Mortimer had been talking about contracts.

"But I never gave him any encouragement," he added.

Asked about the testimony of Mortimer that Forbes had stated that while he was an official capacity in Hawaii he had "fixed things so nobody lost any money," Forbes exclaimed:

"Again Mortimer lies."

"Try to restrain yourself," warned Easby-Smith.

"I am restraining myself," returned Forbes.

Hotel Bill Incident.

Questioned about Mortimer's claim that he had paid Forbes' bill at the Ritz-Carlton hotel in Philadelphia, Forbes said the reverse was the case; that he paid $27.50 for Mortimer. He explained that he was not well and had asked Mortimer where he could spend a quiet week-end. Mortimer suggested the Ritz-Carlton, Forbes said. Forbes denied that he attended any party there. He said he retired early. Later, he continued, a man came to his room and said the party had left without paying a bill of $27.50.

"I paid the bill," the witness said "It seems Mortimer had left the hotel for a short time and they were anxious about the bill.

"I never permitted Mortimer or anyone else to pay my expenses. If my secretary was along I gave him the money to pay bills and if he was not along, I paid them."

The witness then made emphatic denial that he had ever accepted "a penny" from Mortimer.

"That is absolutely a lie," he said of Mortimer's story about the $500 bills in the Drake hotel.

"It's a lie, it's false, it's absurd," the witness repeated time and again as he was questioned about other details of Mortimer's testimony.

Denies Loan.

Asked if Mortimer had loaned him $1,000 or $1,500 after the western trip, Forbes replied in the negative.

"He never loaned me a 'bean,'" he replied, "nor did I ask him for any."

"What about drinking parties on the Pacific coast trip?" asked Easby-Smith.

"I know of no drunkenness on that trip except Mr. Mortimer," Forbes replied. "I swear to God there was no carousing or anything wrong on that trip."

He also denied any knowledge of a code for use on the western trip, in which he was said by Mortimer to have had the designation, "McAdoo."

"Did you ever write a letter to a woman in Stockton, Cal., thanking her for her hospitality?" asked Easby-Smith.

"No," was the reply.

"I did not write the letter than has been put in evidence here. That language is a little bit too far up the gulch for me."

The witness explained that it was customary for his secretary, M. L. Sweet, to write formal letters of thanks to persons who had entertained the official party and that the letter in evidence bore the initials of Sweet.

Jumped in Lake.

"Now what about Mortimer's story about you and a lady friend jumping into the lake at Hayden Lake?" asked Easby-Smith.

"How does he know; he wasn't there?" Forbes answered.

Then he explained that he and some friends went on a fishing trip in the afternoon and that there was a suggestion that the party go bathing. Forbes said all were roughly dressed and that he jumped into the water which was about three feet deep.

Forbes then denied Mortimer's story that the former director had said on the western trip that he was to succeed Albert B. Fall as secretary of the interior and that "we will all make a clean-up" on reclamation contracts. He characterized as "absurd" the assertion of Mortimer that an agreement had been proposed by which the Hurley-Mason company and the Thompson-Black company were to divide the western territory on hospital contracts with the profits "split three ways" and with Forbes sharing a third.

"Why how could that have been proposed?" Forbes asked, "when all of these contracts were being handled by the war and navy departments at my request?"

Old Connection.

Forbes said he met J. W. Black on the Pacific coast trip and also C. B. Hurley, of the Hurley-Mason company, whom he had known for many years.

"I telegraphed Hurley to meet me in San Francisco," he said, "as I wanted to discuss a number of business matters with him. We did talk about contracts for the hospitals as we had a perfect right to do. I used to be associated with his company and I told him that before he could get any contracts he must satisfy the government that I was no longer interested directly or indirectly in his company. He did get a contract for the American Lake hospital and I was glad of it. He was a fine builder, as the army well knew, and always did splendid work."

Reverting to the stay in Chicago, Forbes flatly denied that there had been any party in his suite at the Drake. He said he left the hotel in the early morning to inspect the Speedway hospital and the Marine hospital and did not return until late in the day because at the conclusion of his inspection trip he had a conference with officials of a Chicago firm who had made him an offer of a position at $20,000 a year.

Taking up Mortimer's statement that while in Staunton, Va., Forbes first began making proposals about the illicit disposal of narcotics and liquors at Perryville, Md., the former director said he had not discussed this subject with "a Mr. Hogshead a druggist of Staunton," as Mortimer had claimed. He told the committee he was on an inspection trip to West Virginia and stopped over in Staunton one night. He said it was Sunday and Mr. Hogshead's drug store was closed, but that Mr. Hogshead did open it for a few minutes to bring out some candy for the party which included Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer.

Witness Threatened.

When the committee reassembled after the noon recess, Chairman Reed said it had come to his attention that during the recess a person "now in this room" made a threat of violence against a witness present in response to a subpoena of the committee.

"I want to give notice now," Senator Reed said, "that if anything of this sort occurs again, the person who is guilty will be prosecuted by indictment under a statute passed for that purpose. Witnesses here are under the protection of the senate of the United States."

Later Senator Reed said he had been asked by Mr. Easby-Smith to state, and he was glad to state, that "neither Colonel Forbes nor his counsel was in any way concerned in the threat."

Resuming his testimony, Forbes characterized as "false" the statement of Mortimer that Forbes had said "we could clean up enough on the liquor and narcotics at Perryville to retire for life." He added that he had nothing to do with them.

Extra Work Contract.

Forbes also denied in toto the testimony of Mortimer that at Mortimer's insistence he had promised to give a contract for extra work at Tupper Lake, N. Y., to the Sutherland Construction company. Mortimer's statement was that a representative of the Sutherland company paid him $2,500 for him using his influence with Forbes.

The former director said that when at the meeting referred to in Philadelphia he was in company with Mr and Mrs. Williams, relatives of Mrs Mortimer, in their automobile and on the way to their home to lunch. Accompanying them in the automobile Forbes said, were a Mr. McAuley and a family from Minneapolis. He declared that every one present could and did hear everything that was said. He added that there was no embarrassment on his part at the meeting as Mortimer had testified.

Asked about the "coolness" which Mortimer said had arisen between them, Forbes said he had had difficulties with Mortimer on the western trip.

"I admonished Mortimer about his conduct," the witness said, adding that Mortimer frequently got drunk while out with men he met in the various cities.

FIGHTING FOR HEALTH.

Organization of the Milbank Memorial Fund has been completed by wealthy philanthropists and scientists.

The sum of $2,000,000 has been set aside to be spent under the direction of a group of public health and social workers to demonstrate whether the extent of sickness in the United States can be materially diminished, and mortality rates further reduced.

The announcement, just made, is of wide interest and especially in Georgia where a concerted campaign is under way to enlarge the public health service in counties, by state and federal aid, and to better conserve human energy and to prolong life by a more determined fight on preventable diseases.

The committee on resolutions consisting of three of the most eminent men in practical health work in the United States—the late Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, commissioner of health of New York state; Dr. Haven Emerson, former health commissioner of New York city, and Dr. Lee K. Frankel, chairman of the national health council—directed attention to a century of striking achievements in the science of public health resulting in an accelerated increase in the average length of life.

It called attention to the fact that within the past three-quarters of a century the average duration of life has been extended by not less than fifteen years in many of the leading nations of the world, stating that the gain in the life span during the last two decades has been greater than during the previous half-century; that while seventy-five years ago one-fourth of all those born in England died before reaching the age of three and one-half years, a decade ago it was not until the age of thirty-three and one-half years that one-fourth died.

There is nothing inherently impractical or extravagant, according to these distinguished experts, in the proposal that we may attain such knowledge of the laws of health that within the next half-century as much as twenty years may be added to the expectancy of life which now prevails in the United States, and to that task the American Public Health association unanimously dedicated itself.

In determining to devote a substantial part of its income to public health work, the board of directors of the Milbank Memorial Fund is allying the fund with health officials and voluntary health associations in the hope that this high aim may be realized within the brief period of that prediction.

The experiments to be made under this fund, covering city and rural life, will be watched with a great deal of interest throughout the nation, and the results may have wide influence upon the health of the people in the future.

The insane ambition of the former kaiser is to mount a throne of fire.

After a blinding spotlight flash Ludendorff collapsed into utter darkness.

It is the season of Georgia field-products, and among the best of them, we rate cornbread and crac'lin's and spareribs and backbone.

MEETING WITH SUCCESS.

Several weeks ago there met in New Orleans leading business and industrial heads of the south, called together to consider ways and means of battling the greatest menace to the south's prosperity, the boll weevil. This meeting was fostered by the Louisiana Bankers' association and the cotton trade in general.

From the headquarters of the Louisiana Bankers' association comes the statement that financial, manufacturing and business interests over the United States are strongly supporting the movement inaugurated at this meeting.

This is most encouraging, not only to the farmer and the cotton trade, and to the south in general, but to the whole country, for the effect of the boll weevil's ravages is universally felt and is an evidence of the general support of the movement. The United States Steel corporation recently made a generous contribution to aid in exterminating the weevil.

The drive started in New Orleans began with great enthusiasm, coupled with a determination to bring forth practical results, and already results are being shown.

The efforts of those who have given much of their time and money should be rewarded with success, and they certainly deserve the support of the financial, manufacturing and business interests, not only of the south, but of the whole country.

ACTIVITY IN BONDS.

The market in bonds has shown a healthier tone lately, with general indications pointing to a real revival in these issues within the next ninety days.

Already, the recent new offerings in bonds, which sold at really attractive yields, are beginning to have a reviving effect on the market as a whole, and despite the fact that stocks, both speculative and investment issues, are better buys than they were a few weeks ago, the buying public is still inclined to take those issues which will bring an entirely safe and consistent yield.

There are two classes of buyers who enter the market. One is the class which is willing to take a chance of reaping an extra large profit on the speculative issues. The other class is more conservative and is only interested in those issues with the least speculative element. This class is content with the steady yield from the higher class of bonds and stocks.

The latter class is most active at the present time, for the reason as stated above—the recent offerings on the market from sound substantial companies, whose debentures offer unusually good yields.

"This condition existing in the financial world," writes C. H. Platt, financial expert and correspondent of The Constitution, "will bring a large amount of new financing, as there are many companies in need of funds that will sell bonds if the market will take them in bulk."

Mr. Platt sees hopeful signs in the bond market and also believes it is going to be more active in the near future than at any time since last winter.

Dealers are also optimistic as to the future of the bond market, and some even go as far as to say that they look forward to a better year in 1924 than any year since the war.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The aims and services of the Georgia State Sunday School association is an attractive and highly interesting folder just prepared by Legaire Davis, of Atlanta.

This association covers a wide field of service in properly training the young people, providing wholesome books, recreations and entertainments, and in making better men and women out of the parents as well.

Good counsel, higher educational standards, conservation of human energy, happiness and health through correct living, high thinking and quickened inspirations for the bigger things of life—these are some of the purposes of this association that are being promoted through this association of unselfish effort.

There should be a Sunday school within reach of every child in Georgia and that Sunday school should attract and hold the children and interest them so that the instructions for good may sink deep through the human touch.

The State Sunday School association deserves high praise for its laudable work.

A Little Room.

I keep within my heart, a little room,
All filled with fragrance of the budding spring,
And melodies, that tender birdlings sing
In liquid notes, when early roses bloom;
And softest light, and violets perfume,
I guard the door, that no unlovely thing
Shall enter in to mar its charm; no sting
Of bitterness, nor any shade of gloom.

Therein, my Thought of You is welcome guest,
When all the cares of day are laid aside
And I may spend a little while apart,
'Tis then my dreams of you come home to rest,
And joyfully I cry, "Come, and abide Within this little bright room of my heart!"

LEADERSHIP THROUGH FAITH.

Like gravity which keeps us from falling off of this little earth and regulates so many things, bringing about smoothness and accomplishment, so does Faith keep us in our course and lead us safely on.

You often hear the remark that Faith is just something blind that we follow. As a matter of fact, Faith is the one thing in this world that has eyes so true you cannot possibly lose if you follow its lead.

And the legs of Faith never get tired, nor do they stumble. They keep leading and leading.

If you enshrine Faith and make it your guide, you can not fail.

Faith sees, thinks, keeps moving about in the world and watches for the best times and places for human beings to take advantage of.

Faith is truer than the bluest steel.

Faith increases vision, wakes up the weary and worn, and keeps pointing to things higher and better. It pictures the progress of a man, as though it showed it in a mirror—so that anyone who will make use of it, grows and grows.

Faith knows that it can live only through exercise and moving about. And so it keeps edging all human beings and watches its chance to climb into the human heart and start doing its work.

But no one may have Faith or its marvelous abilities unless he agrees to make use of it.

Faith won't stand around and be starved. It must have warm sympathy and nourishment. It cannot follow. It must lead.

And so you with Faith must lead. You can not lead without it.

We are all of us Faith followers, after all. No one may be great or useful or happy without it. It is as essential for a happy life as food or clothing or friends.

BALLARD ADDRESSES MASONIC LUNCHEON

Dr. N. H. Ballard, state school superintendent, and past grand master of Georgia Masons, delivered the principal address at a luncheon meeting of the Atlanta Masonic club at the Peacock cafe Wednesday. Musical features of the program were in charge of Paul Hubbard and four other Atlanta entertainers.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. M'INTYRE

New York, November 14.—Manhattan returning from the beaches and mountains has found Broadway changed vastly. Jazz appears to be making its first stand on the white way at the Palais Royal. Nearly all the others have given up the ghost and former smart cafes are now tencents-a-dance halls.

Prohibition has scattered cafe life to the four winds and the Cafe Belt is among abandoned garages and private homes in the East Fifties. No signs proclaim the "clube" where muffled syncopation reigns. They are known by the street numbers.

There is one place that is camouflaged with innocence. From the street at night the passers-by see a well-furnished living room. Sometimes there is a girl at the piano or a man comfortably seated on a divan reading a book.

Back of this is one of the swankest midnight supper clubs in town. One is received by a butler instead of a doorman, and if he does not bear inspection is politely informed no one is at home. However, the chief requirements are evening clothes.

Atmosphere is lacking. Those visitors who want to see the old roue cutting jinks with the young girl of the chorus or hear fabulous bladesing "In Room 202," will be disappointed. Jazz has loaned the purple and the elegante is the fair-haired customer who receives attention

Cafe owners now insist upon silence. Gaiety must wear rubber heel's for noise means complaining neighbors and complaints bring the raiding squads with rams. The new type of cafe is the most luxurious New York has ever seen and also the quietest New York is a city of night birds, and there are always enough folk who are moderately temperate but enjoy staying up all night and sleeping all day. This is the class of patronage the cafe men are encouraging. The blatant, loud-mouthed customer must go elsewhere.

Everyone has moments wherein he'd sell himself for a plugged penny and pity the buyer. About the cheapest moment in my life was in a department store the other morning. I asked the floor walker where I might find the carpet department. He clapped his hands and told me to follow a clerk who answered his call. I walked for a city square and wound up at a spot where the clerk made a flourish with his hand as though to say, "Here it is." I had the disappointed look of an unfollowed church usher. I had said "carpets" not "corsets."

I think the lady behind the counter was as much embarrassed as I. I tried to turn it off into a feeble wheeze and she laughed falsetto. The effort to walk away with an easy nonchalance was not a success. I looked as silly as I felt.

Another embarrassing moment was years ago when I was stripped for life insurance examination. The examining surgeon was called out of the room, and following a curious bent, I opened the door into a well filled reception room.

Still another is recalled. Knowing I would be called upon to make a speech at a dinner I stood before the glass and orated, punctuated it with profound gestures. Across the way a group of girls in an office looked on and when I walked away applauded. Away went my standing as a hero.

In the days when Mother Mandelbaum's saloon was the hang-out for crooks of the East Side there was a little Italian pick-pocket known as "Snapper Kelly." Hard living exacted its toll and he went out to Arizona to live in a tent about five years ago. Recently he returned to the East Side and opened up a stationery shop. In his windows is a sign: "I only want a chance to live straight."

The orchestra leader in one of New York's hotels is called by many the handsomest man in town. He plays only for luncheon hour, but has during his career received more than $20,000 worth of jewels given to him by admiring and foolish ladies. They do not know it but he is the father of 5 children and is quite happily married.

Frank L. Stanton's Poem Is Taken as the Basis Of English Prison Play

(From the London Times)

After long discussion the home office has agreed to try the experiment of moving pictures in British convict prisons. The first picture was shown yesterday at Dartmoor, when "Mighty Lak' a Rose" was presented by the Associated First National Pictures (Limited).

The picture "Mighty Lak' a Rose" has as its theme the reform of a lawless gang through the power and influence of music.

The film was shown to the accompaniment of the prison organ and orchestra, and one of the chief songs was "Abide With Me."

On the success of this film show at Dartmoor will depend whether similar exhibitions will be given at convict establishments throughout the country.

ILLINOIS PASTOR HERE TO ASSIST IN "HOME COMING"

Dr. George L. Snively, of Illinois, accompanied by Mrs. Snively, has arrived at the Georgian Terrace and will assist Dr. L. O. Bricker in the "home-coming" services of the First Christian church, continuing through next Sunday.

Candle Drill.

At 9:30 o'clock this morning in lieu of the usual Bible study, the evangelist will give a lecture especially for young people, illustrated by scores of lighted candles, each shining forth a lesson of truth and beauty, this to entertain and instruct elders as well as youth.

Partly in order to provide for an expected great assembly an overflow meeting for young people will be held at the Commercial High school. A unique program of song, reading, music and story is offered.

The "Home-Coming."

At 10:30 at the church Dr. Snively will present the home-coming address. The significance of Christianity to the American institutions of school, state, home and church, will be his theme

Prominent members of the Christian church over a wide area of the state will be among the attendants.

All attendants at the 10:30 services will be guests of the church at noon luncheon served in the church banquet rooms. Citizens generally regardless of religious affiliations, are invited to share in the event.

In Memoriam.

At 2:30 Sunday, following the Holy Communion, memorial services will be held in honor of former but now deceased members of this congregation. On this roster are the names of many of Georgia's great men and women. These eulogies will be pronounced by Dr. Elzie B. Thomas, Hon E. R. Craighead and others.

A special invitation is extended to the surviving relatives of those to be memorialized to attend these services.

A picturesque feature of the day will be an adress on "The Old Days, the Old Ways, the Old Friends," by the Hon. Seaborn Wright, of Rome. It will consist in part of tender reminiscence of ante-bellum days, the stately old plantation life, the throb of war drums, recountals of achieving valor, the reconstruction the new order of chivalry, friendships and hopes of days to come.

At 7:30 Sunday evening Dr. Snively will give his farewell address. It will be an assembly of answers given by science, philosophy and revelation, to that age-old question "If a man die, shall he live again?" This address has been given before great audiences all over the country.

The entire congregation of the church unites in an invitation to all the friends of the church to attend all these services.

Rev. R. H. Singleton, pastor of Big Bethel A. M. E. church, was unanimously indorsed for the bishopric by the A. M. E. Ministers Union in its regular session in Bethel A. M. E. church Wednesday morning. The election of bishops will take place at Louisville, Ky., in May, 1924.

Rev. G. E. Curry, of Jacksonville, Fla., addressed the union on "Unity of the Ministry," and urged the ministers to preach the gospel which will make people Christian citizens. Rev. J. R. Garder, W. J. Williams, W. G. Alexander and D. R. Fobbs, spoke on the young minister. Rev. R. H. Ward, president, made the closing remarks.

Card From Admiral Wright on Confederate Navy "Tag Day"

Editor Constitution: The efforts of myself and shipmates of the Confederate naval veterans to rescue from oblivion the records of our heroic dead who served behind the guns in the Confederate navy have been well discussed by the Atlanta papers. The Georgia legislature in August called upon all Georgians to help us by looking up any who lived in their respective neighborhoods, and by tag days to raise an expense fund to defray the cost of the work.

The ladies of the Atlanta chapter U. D. C. have taken the matter in hand for a tag day in Atlanta at an early date. There are thousands of good people who wish to aid this great cause, and this communication is to ask that when called upon on tag day the public will willingly respond.

We, of the Confederate navy, have no such official record of what we did in the 60s. Our records were destroyed when Richmond fell. The official record of each Confederate soldier was saved by his state, and his descendants have no trouble to find at the state capitol evidence of his enlistment, service and discharge. It is only just that the descendants of his brother who was in the navy should be afforded the same grand privilege.

Each southern state has given us endorsement, and one, Arkansas, has made an appropriation direct, requiring that it be spent in Arkansas on Arkansas sailors. So far Georgia has done but little. Every one on tag day will have the opportunity to aid in this great work.

District Boy Scouts Planning Big Rally Next Friday Night

Boy Scouts of district three plan a get together district rally on Friday night at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of the Lee Street school, according to an announcement Wednesday by District Commissioner A. R. Dyer. The troops will put on an exhibition of scout activities and there will be a number of scout contests.

An attendance banner will be awarded to the scout troop having present the largest percentage of its members, including troop committee, scoutmaster and assistant scoutmasters. A. S. Adams, president of the Atlanta council; Geo. E. Watts, commissioner; Geo. W. West, chairman of the extension committee, and other men prominent in scout circles will take part in the program, it was stated.

Service ribbons will be delivered to the following scouts: Stanton Algee, troop 2, College Park; Ernest Farmer, troop 13; J. H. McElroy, troop 16, to receive red ribbon for thirty hours' service; Mayhew Henderson, troop 1, Colleke Park; Billy Mizelle, troop 1, College Park; William Palmour, troop 2, College Park, will receive a blue ribbon for seventy-five hours' service.

Secretary of State Depends for Income On Motor Vehicles

Pointing out that transfer of the motor vehicle department from the office of the secretary of state to that of the comproller general would mean the virtual closing of the former office, Secretary S. Guyt McLendon on Wednesday issued a statement in regard to several bills introduced in the general assembly with this object in view.

Mr. McLendon shows how, under the general appropriations act, the total appropriations for the conduct of his office, exclusive of the motor vehicle department, but including his own salary, are but $4,200.00. The specific appropriations, as given on pages 8 and 9 of the act, are for salary of the secretary of state, $2,000; salary of one clerk, $1,000. Then there are the corporation registration fees which amount to $1,200 annually. Thus the total salary paid the secretary of state, exclusive of the motor vehicle department, is $3,200.00 per annum, with an additional $1,000 for the hire of one clerk. Under the motor vehicle law however, the secretary gets an additional $1,800.00 in salary, making his total pay per annum $5,000.

Passage of the bill would leave the department with only $1,000 available for clerical expenses, which, Mr. McLendon points out, practically means the closing up of the department.

In contrast to this, Mr. McLendon shows how the salary of the comptroller general, including his salary as insurance commissioner, is $8,000 with $7,800 more appropriated for clerical expenses of the office, inclusive of the $3,000 salary of the deputy insurance commissioner.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

To the Land Of His Fathers.

Ever look at the map to see where that place Oels is located, to which the crown prince has returned after spending five years in exile? It is in Silesia. That's the country his ancestor, Frederick the Great, grabbed from Maria Theresia, the Austrian empress. Note also that Wilhelm does not live in the heart of Germany, but there on the outskirts. The reason is that region along the inhospitable Baltic shores is the homeland of the Hohenzollerns. From here came the ancestors of the Great Elector. They gradually robbed and stole their way southward. But they are not Germans. They are Slavs. Prussia was called Bo-Russia at one time and the kaiser's ancestors could not understand the people over whom they extended their rule.

World War Veteran Recovers Old Violin Worth Big Fortune

A Haskett-Cremona violin over 100 years old and worth a fortune, stolen and sold for a trifling sum of $27, has been recovered and returned to its owner by Thomas J. Camper, a disabled overseas veteran, as the result of a remarkable memory feat.

A violin bow was brought to Camper for repair. He at once recognized the bow as one that he had repaired eight years ago as an amateur and that it belonged with the famous instrument now recovered. Investigation showed the rightful owner's initials carved upon the case and completed the identification.

Camper was formerly a private in the 103d Field artillery and received an injury to his spine during his service with the A. E. F. He was prevented from resuming his pre-war occupation of machinist and awarded a course in vocational training by the U. S. Veterans' bureau to prepare him to carry on in music merchandising and musical instrument repairing.

Q.—What is the annual immigration quota for Germany?

Q.—Can a tree stump be removed by exploding dynamite on top of it?

A.—"considerable damage might be done," says the United States bureau of stanards, "but this is not a very economical way to use dynamite. Explosions take the line of least resistance. If the line of least resistance is downwards, the expanding gases reduced by the explosion will move in that direction." In the violence of its explosion dynamite naturally does some damage downwards if placed on the ground, or on a tree stump, as the expanding gases increase in volume with such incredible rapidity that even the resistance of it to the pressure forms a barrier to their complete immediate escape.

Q.—What is the difference between asphalt and coal tar?

A.—Asphalt is an amorphous brownish-black, odorous, combustible mixture of different hydrocarbons. It is found mostly in superficial deposits in various parts of the world, the so-called pitchlake of Trinidad being the most notable source. Coal tar is the black pitch distilled from bituminous coal, condensed in the manufacture of coal gas, and used in the arts. It yields the aniline dyes and similar compounds.

It may last one or two weeks, and may recur two or three times in a season, but rarely more than twice.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

EAT SPARINGLY TO LIVE LONG

The by-products formed in the putrefactive decomposition of animal matter are more or less poisonous to human beings, whether this putrefactive change takes place outside or inside of the body. Putrefaction is a process peculiar to nitrogenous matter. If no nitrogenous matter is present there will be no putrefaction, but instead, perhaps, fermentation. Thus, meat, eggs, fish, the curd of milk, cheese, and the protein of vegetables and cereals putrefies; whereas the starches and sugars and fats ferment—inside or outside of the body, when the conditions are suitable.

An important difference between the fermentation of foods and the putrefaction of foods in the food tube is this: By-products of putrefaction are poisonous, whereas by-products of fermentation are not, tho perhaps irritating. In other words, a habit of not digesting your food within the normal period of time after a meal is not so injurious to general health if the food is chiefly vegetables as it would be if the food were chiefly meat, eggs, fish, milk or cheese.

Nitrogenous food is essential to support human life. But animal food is not essential and possibly more injurious than any of us realize just now. From a reasonable variety of vegetables and cereals we may obtain ample nitrogen for the needs of the body. And vegetable protein or nitrogen, vegetable meat, which makes peas, beans, whole wheat, oats fully as nourishing and sustaining as beef or mutton, has two characteristics which render it peculiarly available for our dietary: First, it is more easily digested than animal protein, and second, it is less likely to putrefy in the intestinal canal when digestion is slow or food stasis is present.

What if the food does putrefy in the intestine? Isn't the chief function of the intestine sewerage? Yes. But either God or man made a mistake somewhere, the human sewer is also forced to serve as a digestive organ—probably man's own mistake, evoluting so rapidly. And in the process of digestion and assimilation the blood stream takes up not only nutriment, but also a sample of whatever poisonous materials there may be present in the food tube, and so we have to contend with autointoxication. The poisons really should be carried off by the sewer, but the human mechanism doesn't work as perfectly as that, under our abnormal mode of living, and so it poisons itself. That is autointoxication. It may occur with a spare diet which is too largely meat, or when the small bulk of food is too slowly digested, but nine times out of 10 the excess of food, taken from mere habit and the universal fear of starvation, is all that putrefies, and poisons the individual slowly, but surely, to death.

CLOUDY SKIES TODAY

Moderate Temperatures for Atlanta To Continue.

Cloudy weather with moderately high temperatures was promised Atlanta today in the forecast of the official weather prognosticator, C. F. von Herrmann. There will be streaks of fair skies, however, and at no time during the day is any special inconvenience expected.

"With a maximum temperature of 66 degrees and a minimum of 44, Atlanta weather is just about right for November," Meteorologist von Herrmann stated. "For the remainder of the week maximum temperatures should stay between 65 and 70 degrees."

Solons Approve Holton's Stand On Opera Tax

BY RALPH T. JONES

Comment among many members of the house of representatives on Wednesday was highly complimentary to the action taken by Representative Holton, of Wilcox county, when he introduced the amendment to the general tax act which would have wiped out the tax on Atlanta's grand opera season.

In supporting his amendment, Mr. Holton stated that he was glad of the opportunity to state publicly how ashamed he was of the fact that he voted for this tax at the regular session. Since that time, he said, he had learned just how unjust and extortionate this tax is, he said, he branded his own vote for the tax as the one thing of all others that he was ashamed of in his record as a legislator.

The amendment introduced by Mr. Holton to eliminate the tax was defeated by a vote of 60 to 46. But in defeat, he added to his own reputation the admiration of all his fellow members, which always goes out to a man who has the courage to admit that he has made a mistake and to do his utmost to rectify it.

Encouragement was seen in the vote of the house, by the people of Atlanta who have to pay this tax. The closeness of the vote—shown most strikingly in the vote of another amendment to reduce the tax from $2,500 to $1,000, when it was 58 to 53—is indication. It is pointed out, that other members besides Mr. Holton are learning the truth about Atlanta's opera season.

They are learning, it is said, that the action of Georgia's lawmakers in taxing grand opera, a cultural, non-profit making undertaking, is giving the state untold quantities of bad advertising. Georgia is now pointed to as the one commonwealth in the world which penalizes her citizens who are striving to educate the people in the enjoyment of the finer things of life, in appreciation of the arts. Georgia is the only commonwealth imposing such a tax.

But, with the gradual realization, one by one, of the members that in imposing this tax they have done an unfair, an unjust and an uncouth thing, it is believed that, if not this year, then at some not far distant date, the general assembly of the state of Georgia will remove this ludicrous blot upon the state's world repute for intelligence and repeal the tax.

It may be repealed this year, at that, for the senate has yet to pass upon the general tax act, and it is rumored that a determined fight is already underway to life this tax off the statute books of the state.

HOOKS BEATS LAKE FOR ASSEMBLY JOB

After two ballots the house of representatives Wednesday morning elected C. M. Hooks, of Wilkinson county, messenger to succeed V. R. Haynes, of Sugar Valley, who died last Saturday.

On the first ballot, the vote stood for Mr. Hooks, 79; for T. J. Luke, of Ben Hill county, former member of the house, 85; for M. L. Duge, of Butts county, 8, and for T. J. Shepard, of Atlanta, 4. Mr. Shepard, who is a Confederate veteran and who had the support of the veterans and of the Sons and Daughters of the Confederacy, was nominated by Mrs. Napier, of Bibb county, but his name was withdrawn before the second ballot.

The final vote stood for Mr. Hooks, 93, and for Mr. Luke, 86. The majority required for election was 89 votes.

ALLEGED ASSASSIN OF MINISTER FREED

Prague, Czecho-Slovakia, November 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—Atanas Nikoloff, a Bulgarian, tried on the charge of assassinating M. Daskaloff, the Bulgarian ambassador in Prague on August 26 last, was acquitted today by a vote of 8 to 4 after the jury had been out 18 hours. The supreme court has yet to pass upon the verdict and may reject it.

Nikoloff confessed to committing the crime, saying it was by order of the secret Macedonian organization to which he belonged, which also had placed three other ministers of Bulgaria on the death list. M. Dasktaloff was ordered killed, the accused said, because he opposed the Macedonian separatist movement and had signed the Nish convention for better relations between Bulgaria and Jugo Slavia.

Two Presidents Helped To Liberate Gernazians

MRS. RICHARDSON'S PROTEGES LEAVE ENGLISH EIGHT WEEKS AFTER LANDING

From Turkish Tyranny Into American Freedom

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

A worthy representative of a race that has gone through the most cruel and persistent persecution, but that has stood undaunted and unshaken through the vicissitudes of centuries, is little Stephen Gerrazian, 12-year-old Armenian boy, who has come to live in Atlanta.

Stephen came to the United States eight weeks ago. But all was not straight sailing from the doomed land of his ancestors to the great and glorious new freedom of America for which his parents had ardently hoped for long years. When father, mother and their children arrived in Constantinople, they were detained by the Turks. For what sinister motive the butchers of the Armenian people did not want to see these people leave their shores, has remained unexplained. The matter, however, was explained to the workers of the Near East relief in the Turkish capital and they wired Atlanta relatives of the predicament of the Gernazian family.

It was then that Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, head of the Atlanta Woman's club, took up the cudgels for the stranded family and wrote President Harding asking him if something could be done to snatch this little group of people, who were sure to become good American citizens, from the clutches of the Turks. It stands as a tribute to the well-known kindness and sympathetic nature of the late president that he wired without delay to the American consul in Constantinople.

Consul Gets Action.

And the consul replied that they would sail on the next boat for America. Imagine the gladness of the Gernazians. Madame Gernazian, a cultured woman, who speaks French fluently, told a Constitution reporter that she had already given up hopes of ever reaching the happy shores of the United States. While they were spending long days and weeks in the gloomy detention camp near Constantinople and they began to rue the day when they left their native town in the hills of Armenia, it seemed that they were never to taste that freedom and absence of anxiety of which their relatives, already in America, had written them.

Then suddenly one morning in that depressing situation came the American consul, accompanied by an American naval officer.

"Quand je voyais ce monsieur Americain accompagne avec un officier en cet uniforme bien-aime, en ce moment je savais que nous etions Americians pour toujours" (When I saw that American gentleman, accompanied by an officer in that uniform that we love so well, I knew that we were Americans forever), said Mrs. Gernazian.

"Oh, what a joy and what good tidings when he told us we were going at last."

"We sailed as the consul told us, but we were held up again in Ellis Island," she said. It appears that immigration officials had not been notified of the extraordinary circumstances of the case and they were holding the Gernazian family until some definite instructions reached them from Washington.

Coolidge Intervenes.

In the meantime President Harding had died, but President Coolidge when advised of the action of his predecessor, immediately ordered the release of the little group after which they came down to Atlanta.

Here they were welcomed by their aged mother. What scenes transpired at that reunion only those who know something of the terrors of Turkish misrule can realize. The old mother had lost her husband. Her parents and brothers were also massacred by the Kurds on their periodical raids into Armenian territory.

But now the clouds have passed. They are living in the sunshine of a new freedom—in the congenial atmosphere of the south they are not haunted by the fear that in the middle of the night there may be a rap on the door and a gruesome wild-eyed Turk may stand in front of them.

The first thing the Gernazian family did was to go to school. Mother and sons all exert their greatest energies to overcome the handicap of language.

Little Stephen, however, takes the cake in this matter. After eight weeks at school he has advanced to the fourth grade and his latest report shows "A" marks for nearly all subjects.

Learns English Quickly.

The English he speaks is not different from that of the average American boy of his age.

"Where did you learn English?" he was asked.

"Right here in Atlanta."

"Did you not know any before you came?"

"No, sir, I have picked it up here, but I started right away when we landed. I started to talk English when we came from the boat at Ellis Island.

"Tu parles francais aussi, n'est ce pas?" (You speak French, too?).

"Oui, monsieur, c'est de ma mere que je l'ai," (Yes, Sir, but that I have learned from my mother), he replied.

In addition to that Stephen understands the language of his arch-enemies, the Turks, and can express himself freely in Greek as well as his native Armenian, of course.

Proud to show his ability, he acted as interpreter for the family.

"We do not like the Turks and we are glad to be here," he said.

Years Under Scimitar.

"It is such a relief. For years we have lived in fear, crushed down in trembling, lest some new disaster should come, but at last we can breathe. We love America and we want to become citizens of this country," added his mother.

The father, an expert watchmaker, has already opened a little shop, from the money he had been able to save during the long years of misery in the homeland.

"Father learns his English in the shop, but we go to school," said Madame Gernazian. "I am going to a commercial school but the boys go to public school and to night school in the evening."

With such persistency and enthusiasm the Gernazians are bound to succeed. From the hell of Turkish rule they have come to dwell under the bright skies of America.

It is when one comes in contact with such people whose hearts overflow with gratitude and love for America that the realization comes home that we too often forget the blessings of peace and tranquillity, prosperity and good will, which are found in these United States.

STATE SEEKS WOMAN COMPANION OF FOX

that the prosecution had not requested a specimen of spinal fluid from the prisoner, and further stated that experts had not been consulted with a view of counteracting the activities of the defense. However Mr. Howard intimated that experts would be consulted should the prosecution deem it necessary.

No move has been made by the prosecution to have Fox's sanity tested by a commission appointed for that purpose, it was positively announced Wednesday. A report emanating from what appeared to be official circles was to the effect that the only body that will pass on the sanity of the prisoner will be the trial jury.

In less strenuously fought cases, the usual procedure in testing the sanity of a defendant is to place the case before a commission composed of two physicians and a representative from the solicitor's office, officials stated. However, legal authorities pointed out Wednesday that this is done when no objection is raised by the prosecution, and that the state can demand a special jury trial on this one subject when the sanity of a defendant is placed in issue by the defense.

Mental Tests Continue.

The mental examination being made of Fox by Dr. N. M. Owensby, nerve and mental disorder specialist; Dr. Edgar D. Shanks, pathologist, and Dr. Linton Smith, the Fox family physician, continued Wednesday. Fox was subjected to a minor operation Tuesday, in which Dr. Shanks removed a specimen of spinal fluid from the prisoner to be used in the mental test.

Dr. Owensby, director of the defense sanity test, stated that no results could be announced for a number of days. Dr. Smith made the assertion Tuesday that he was convinced of Fox's insanity.

WALLACE PROPOSES PLAN TO INCREASE FARMER INCOMES

Chicago, November 14.—An agricultural export commission, designed to restore farm purchasing power by withdrawing exportable surpluses from the domestic markets, "is receiving the very careful consideration of the department of agriculture," Secretary Henry C. Wallace said today in an address before the Chicago association of commerce.

While the proposal "is not put forward as a policy of the administration," he said it had the support and approval of many officials who are in a position to influence legislation on the program.

The commission, it was explained would buy exportable products at the American price and dispose of them in the world market, charging back the losses to the producers on the following crop.

Why suffer from Rheumatism?

THERE is a certain unexplainable feeling that goes with hale and hearty old age—it is a feeling of happiness, of care unknown, of reborn youth.

But rheumatism—that deadly malady which has caused so many to surrender to the woes of pain and suffering—caused so many to forego the pleasures of life—caused so many to be dependent. Why suffer from it?

344 White Trucks have gone between 200,000 and 300,000 miles each.

423 White Trucks have gone between 150,000 and 200,000 miles each.

2,362 White Trucks, in all, have gone 100,000 miles and more each.

White Trucks, as far back as 1917, had made 100,000 miles a standard of measure for motor truck performance. Hundreds of those veterans have since run on to 200,000 miles, then 300,000 miles—some even more than 500,000 miles. And other hundreds of later White Trucks each year pass the 100,000-mile mark.

Isolated accomplishments are not performance standards. A delivery truck may do 200,000 miles on fine, level roads with ordinary load. Another truck, laboring with heaping load out of a gravel pit many times a day, or snaking its way over cobblestone streets, hauling massive steel girders, may deliver equal truck value long before its actual mileage reaches even 25,000 miles.

But White Trucks—all models—have built up mileages in multiples of 100,000, in all lines of work, under all conditions of road, load and climate.

White Trucks go everywhere—over mountains, through uncut timberlands, through deep snow, over rut-torn or trackless oil fields, through deep sand or clinging mud, in the heat of the tropics or the sub-zero of the frozen North.

There are 2,362 White Trucks of all models recorded in the list of owners whose Whites have run 100,000 miles, 200,000 miles, 300,000 miles and more. This list, published annually, appeared in The Saturday Evening Post November 3rd. There are many additional Whites, not listed, with equal mileages, of which we have no accurate record. The list of owners contains names you know.

Write either of the addresses below and we will send you the list. No other truck manufacturer has ever approached such convincing proof of sustained, continuous transportation.

Saturday's Race Between Thoroughbreds Called by Many the Sporting Feature of Year—Both Horses Popular.

Louisville, Ky., November 14.—Zev, matched to meet his recent conqueror, In Memoriam, at Churchill Downs, here Saturday, is due to arrive at the Downs Thursday morning, Colonel Matt J. Winn, general manager of the Kentucky Jockey club said, following receipt today of a telegram from Zev's trainer, Sam C. Hildreth, that the challenger was on the way. In Memoriam is already on the ground.

The track at Churchill Downs this week has been fast and the weather clear. Track conditions Saturday, however, may have an important bearing upon the race, as Mr. Wiedemann, In Memoriam's owner, entered the match, reserving the privilege of withdrawing his horse should a committee of turfmen, to be appointed by the Kentucky Jockey club, find the track heavy and without firm footing the day of the race.

Better racing weather could seldom be asked, as the sun has shone every day since last Saturday and has dried the track until it is fast. If the present weather continues, it seems possible but little attention will be paid to this part of the agreement upon which the match was entered.

Big Sporting Venture.

This special meeting is looked upon in turf circles as the biggest sporting venture of the year, as the conditions entered into by the owners of the colts has thrown any monetary consideration into the background. The race is to be horse against horse, thoroughbred against thoroughbred and sporting blood against sporting blood. Both horses have many admirers, those of In Memoriam coming Saturday with the hope of witnessing the Wiedeman colt prove he is the better three-year-old at any distance those of Zev, with the desire to see the Sinclair horse reverse the decision over a mile and a quarter course.

Old track followers, who are already gathering here for the Saturday event, recalled last night that the last big match race to be held in Kentucky, July 4, 1878, between Ten Broeck and Mollie McCarty, was entered into upon the condition that the race be decided in the best two out of three heats.

PEARL WHITE TO MEET FRENCH FIGHTER

Paris, November 14.—"In this corner—Battling Pearl White, champion of Movieland. In that corner—Mascart the Mauler, foremost contender for the European featherweight championship. Let 'er go.'"

Words to this effect will be followed by a burly referee from inside the ropes of a boxing ring at the Folies-Bergere on the night of December 8. For Pearl White, heroine of a thousand hair-raising escapes in serial film melodramas, will seek her next thrill in the roped arena.

She has made a formal challenge to Mascart, the sensational young French knock-out expert, to meet her in the ring in a bout for the benefit of an actors' home.

The French knight of the padded gloves hesitated at first about accepting the challenge, influenced by the chivalrous tradition, "never hit a woman, even with an uppercut." But Pearl is serious and demands real action.

JOE RITCHIE TO ARRIVE TODAY

Philly Fighter Also Holds a Decision Over O'Dowd, Silver's Conqueror.

With Tim O'Dowd getting the referee's decision over Lew Silver Tuesday night, in a fracas set down for the "featherweight championship of the south," a new angle crops up in the forthcoming melee between Frankie Garcia, world's title contender, and Joe Ritchie, the Philadelphia "cave-man."

The Memphis battler has always been conceded the best boxer of his weight in the southland and has often been referred to as the featherweight champion of these southern climes. To cinch the claim more fully, Frankie has decisively defeated the conqueror of Silver. This bout took place at Spiller's bowl during the open-air season. Those who saw that bout knew that Garcia was Tim's master all through the contest.

But Ritchie has also defeated O'Dowd in a 12-round bout that took place at Louisville during August. With both Garcia and Ritchie holding decisions over the clever Atlanta youth, the contestants of this coming Tuesday's bout are wondering where they get off, with O'Dowd having the championship belt draped around his sturdy form, emblematic of being the king of the featherweights of this section of the country.

It is the opinion of both Garcia and Ritchie that they have a better claim on the title than O'Dowd through their victories over Tim. But, as they reason it out, the winner should get a crack at the Atlanta champion in an effort to annex the belt that in their minds was a gift present to Tim.

Regardless of the fuss arising over who is and who isn't the champion, the bout between Frankie and Joe is arousing considerable interest and as both boys are now most anxious to win a decisive victory, the bout will by long odds prove to be a more interesting affair than that between Silver and O'Dowd.

Ritchie, the Philly "cave-man," will arrive in this city today, having been delayed, and will start working out at the Tudor gym on Friday afternoon.

A PIECE FOR THE PAPER

THE DEAFENING THUNDER OF POPPING ILLUSIONS.

There's nothing quite so admirable as a college athlete; the glamor that surrounds this genus is entirely deserved; nothing, in fact, is too good for them. BUT—

If there are any romantic souls among you who have placed all college athletes on a pedestal of perfection; if you can close your eyes and visualize a clean-limbed youth spurting around the cinder paths, an artist's dream in physical grace and musculine comeliness, you are hereby advised to stay away from Grant Field or any other athletic field these wintry afternoons.

This warning is especially devised for young ladies of sponsorial inclinations. For most assuredly the people so affected will have their illusions busted so wide open they'll look like the National Open Championship, which is the biggest open we have in this country.

THEY KEEP IN TRIM WITHOUT LOOKING THAT WAY.

The track men are keeping in condition, you see, and the blustering blasts that blow force some protection for knees that chap and shins that get goose-pimply. And no matter how nimble and lithe the trackman may be, you can't expect him to be a lyric in action when he trots around the oval clad in his winter heavies, his "longs," his extended unmentionables, his protracted lingerie—or whatever you call them.

This is not an indictment of track men; but it is a scathing denunciation of any suit of long winter underwear that will make an appearance in public. Never was there romance woven into the warp and woof of a pair of long—I better shut up before I come right out and say it.

Anyway, they keep the poetry of motion from rhyming.

SPEAKING OF WINTRY AFTERNOONS

When the football season gets here, nobody wants it to leave, with the probable exception of Villa Nova and the teams on which King College scores more than 100 points. The faithful crew that can't keep away from Tech football practice, for instance, would be perfectly willing for the season to begin all over again the Saturday after Thanksgiving—especially if they could see the coming Tech team in action.

Chief interest centers around Wilton, who is almost daily seen in action in a scrimmage or something mighty like it. Stocky, with a pair of legs that can produce tremendous drive and flutter as well with speed, he is of an architecture that will look good indeed on the Flats.

Doug Wycoff scintillated in scrimmage Wednesday with four one-handed stabs of scrub forward passes. He was snagging them with all the ease of Sisler on a sand-lot. If Kentucky tries an aerial game, it is reported, Wycoff will be equipped with a catcher's mitt.

TIGER WORKS HARD FOR CENTRE

Varsity Is Put Through Stiff Scrimmage in Preparation for Annual Tilt.

Auburn, Ala., November 14.—(Special.)—Wednesday afternoon saw the Plainsmen get down to business in all earnestness and seriousness as the great conflict with Praying Colonels drew a day nearer. Drake field presented a scene of jubilant activity. The band and hundreds of student fans occupied the stands, while Coaches Pitts and Wilson sent the second stringer varsity through a fast formation drill. Coach Cole on another part of the field was busy with the regulars and Ed Shirling with his troop of fighting scrubs were priming for anything the varsity coaches had to offer.

After the prelims the second varsity line-up composed of Lutz, center; Self and McFadden, guards; Raboris and Huckabe, tackles; Spinks and Rox, ends; Crane, quarter; Allen and Green, halves, and Reese, fullback, were dispatched against the scrappy scrubs. The Shirling outfit was given possession of the ball and on numerous occasions Salter and E. Spinks, hit the varsity line for long gains, but when the fracas drew up into the zone of the goal line the Pitts men braced and held the scrubs, preventing them from registering a touchdown.

When the varsity was given possession of the ball they took revenge for the march of the ambitious scrubs and on three or four occasions crossed the last white marker. "Feenie" Crane proved to be most disastrous to the defending scrub team, and on several times went out for long intrusions into scrub territory. "Pea" Green was a close runner-up for ground gaining honors for the day.

After the scrimmage was brought to a close by the invading darkness the practice was called to a halt without the usual signal drill.

Ivan Williams Scurries 70 Yards For Touchdown Against the Scrub Team

Tech's Offensive and Defensive Situation Seems in Excellent Shape for Impending Tilt With Kentucky.

BY PAUL WARWICK.

If somebody doesn't watch out, somebody's going to score some points in the game this impending Saturday afternoon between the Georgia School of Technology, North avenue and Luckie streets, Atlanta, Ga., and the University of Kentucky.

In especial, we chant concerning Tech's varsity and the drive they showed in their Wednesday practice. Two scrub teams were lined up against them in order, and the regulars ploughed and harrowed them with much greater consistency than is usually the case.

A backfield composed of Carter, Wycoff, Jerry Albright and Ivan Williams ran through, around and under the defense tossed up by the friendly enemy and on one occasion Ivan got away for a touchdown that would have been exactly seventy yards, if they had measured it. This touchdown was not such a remarkable thing, per se, Percy, but the way it happened was fine, if prophetic.

Had the Drive.

For Ivan had help all the way to his goal line—as he should have. His first assistant toward getting out to where his run became an open-field affair was a delicous stiff-arm that sent three or four anxious scrubs tottering and grabbling in Grant field dust. His interference followed him and under the vocal direction and physical pressure of John Staton, Jerry Albright and Doug Wycoff, snagged off the ambitious scrubs as fast as they attempted to gainsay Ivan's emphatic address for a touchdown.

On one occasion Wednesday afternoon, the beloved old triple pass worked with all the smoothness and beauty which belonged to it last season and the season before. Somehow or other it hasn't been getting off on the right foot this season. But on one attempt yesterday, with Jerry being the last man to handle it, it worked like the book would say it should work. Each man who carried the ball delivered it to the next man just as a scrub tackler was making his dive and its precision was nice to gaze upon.

It seems that the Tech offense is in about the best shape it has reached this season, despite the fact that Pinky Hunt and Bip Farnesworth are not being allowed to participate. Bip was out Wednesday wearing crutches and a white flannel hat and Pinky was in citizen's clothes and threatening momentarily to use a cane.

Good Pass Defense.

The scrubs also tried commendably hard to work forward passes, chiefly of the long variety, on the varsity, but the alertness of Jerry, Doug and Bob Reeves—who had entered the conflict by this time—kept them from doing damage. Wycoff intercepted four of them by marvelous one-handed and shoe-string catches and ran each of them back for some yardage. I guess he was sorry he went to the trouble, however, for Coach Alex wouldn't let the varsity keep the ball. Gave it right back to the scrubs—can you imagine that? These coaches are terrible.

George Gardner is another regular of the Tornado who will probably have to lay off anything even approximating football on the next game day. George's bad knee is still bad and the hope is being noised loudly and confidently abroad that he will be able to take up his regular place at a flank when the doings begin with Auburn on Thanksgiving.

John Staton, who constantly plays along as an end who can hold more than his own with any in this southland, retired before scrimmage had ended Wednesday, at Alex's orders. John caught one nasty thump in the head on one play and on the next slammed an ankle when he upset thirteen or fourteen of the eleven scrubs opposing him. He went out under protest that his ankle would feel all right in a minute or two, but Alex told him to take it easy.

Don't get the idea that this means anything fatal for Johnny, for the old lad will be in there dumping 'em dead with the old-time assurance when Saturday arrives. On the other end will probably be Monk Nabelle, whose ferocity and ability is fast becoming axiomatic in these parts.

Best Scrimmage of the Season Enjoyed by Tech's Varsity Team

BY JOHN STATON.

Coach Alexander's first Georgia Tech varsity scrimmaged against the scrubs yesterday. As customary, the scrubs were employing the formations of the opponents which are to be met on Saturday; in this case, the University of Kentucky. Tech has made a thorough study of the Kentucky formations, and the result is that the scrubs run the plays unusually well.

The varsity looked good yesterday, better than in lots of the scrimmages. For one thing, there has not been a good stiff scrimmage on the field in about two weeks, and the boys were keyed up for a real battle. Only a very light scrimmage was held before the Notre Dame game. Against the Florida formations, the first varsity scrimmaged a little while, but not long. And last week, on account of the long trip to State College, the varsity did not have any hand-to-hand battling.

So, yesterday found the fellows all primed and ready to go. Offensively, the varsity showed more stuff than in most any scrimmage this season. The varsity received, and carried the ball in one grand march to the twenty-yard line. There, a pass over the goal line fell right in a varsity man's hands, but he muffed it, and the ball went over to the scrubs at that point. Coach Alex next gave the varsity the ball on its own twenty-yard line. On a cleverly executed trick play, Ivan Williams whooped it up right down the boundary line for seventy yards and a touchdown.

Best Play of Day.

This was undoubtedly the best play of the afternoon. In the first place, Ivan did some neat running on his own account. And, then the varsity interference was better on this play than on any other during the afternoon. The varsity men started cutting down at the twenty-yard line and kept it up all way down the field.

Again the varsity took the ball deep in its territory. And again it swooped down the field, not in long runs this time, but in short consistent gains. Jerry Albright broke loose about the twelve-yard line and carried the ball over.

Then Kentucky went on the offensive. But they did not go so very far. For the varsity played air-tight defensive ball all afternoon. Kentucky has some mighty good plays in its catalogue, and will no doubt gain considerable ground. But if the Tech defense is working Saturday like it worked yesterday, Kentucky should not do so terribly much damage.

A couple of the varsity men incurred injuries yesterday. Both Doug Wycoff and Merkle suffered with paining ankles. Merkle's ankle has been sprained before this season, and is about well. The little twist yesterday will not keep him from functioning Saturday.

Doug got a pretty bad wrench but he managed to play through the whole of the scrimmage at top speed. Hot towels were applied to this ankle after the practice yesterday, and he declared that the old leg felt as good as ever.

Good Shape for 'Tucky.

Unless some of the players fall down and break their legs, the boys will be in excellent condition for Kentucky. Coach Alex has promised the boys a holiday if they do exceptionally well in this game. And you can bet every man on the team is out to show something.

Work on the new stands is just about half way done. One section of permanent stands is being added. It is on the north of N section in the wooden stands.

Work is progressing quite rapidly on the stands which are to cover the space between the wooden and concrete stands to the south. There will be about a thousand seats or so in this section of stands.

And then, as last year, side line seats will be sold. These will be right out on the field in excellent view of the whole playing area. They are just about the best seats to be had.

It is possible to obtain seats for the Thanksgiving game by sending a certified check or money order to cover the cost of tickets, plus a quarter for handling charges, to Mr. A. H. Armstrong at Tech.

TRAINERS HAVE HARD TIME WATCHING SIKI

New York, November 14.—A corps of bottle holders, towel flappers and other attendants acting as guards will try to keep Battling Siki in training for one week more so he will be at his best when he fights Kid Norfolk, also colored, in Madison Square garden next Tuesday.

Siki has been so well behaved lately that his newest manager is beginning to take alarm, fearing Siki might sneak away to the zoo and humor his favorite vice of biting lions. Before the fight there will be a parade of ex-managers of Battling Siki in platoon formation.

Greb and Tunney Next for Garden

New York, November 14.—Negotiations for a 15-round match between Gene Tunney and Harry Greb, respective holders of the American light heavyweight and world's middleweight titles, at Madison Square Garden, December 10, were completed today by Tex Rickard. Tunney's title will be the only one at stake.

The match was arranged to replace the contest previously scheduled on that date between Tunney and Mike McTigue, holder of the world's 175-pound crown.

McTigue, who declared that his manager, Joe Jacobs, signed for the match without his approval, withdrew because of his claim that he had not recovered from an injury he sustained to his left hand prior to his recent fight with "Young" Stribling at Columbus, Ga.

The Greb-Tunney fight will be the third between this pair in less than two years. Greb won the American 175-pound title from his New York rival in May, 1922, but the ex-doughboy regained it in their second meeting last February. Both bouts went the limit.

VETERAN AUTOS WILL RACE AT GAME

Hoboken, N. J., November 14.—Preceding the football game Saturday between Swarthmore and Stevens Institute of Technology, five antique automobiles, taken from the institute's museum and dating back to 1900, will engage in a race. Four foreign and one American car are entered, with students at the wheels.

The cars have been tuned up under the direction of Professor Robert Marshall Anderson, head of the department of mechanical engineering, who put on braided rope tires. Engines, transmission and controls were studied to discover lost or injured parts, and after these had been replaced, the cars were placed on the college running track. Each trial showed an improved performance, some of the machines developing all the speed considered safe on a small and unbanked track.

BOTTLED NOTE BARES DISASTER AT SEA

Miami, Fla., November 14.—A catsup bottle was found this afternoon on the beach here which contained the following message:

"S. S. Niccia, Gibraltar, sinking, all lost. November 1—23." The bottle was tightly sealed and the penciled note was dry.

Mercer Fresh To Play G.M.C. Team

Macon, Ga., November 14.—(Special.)—Completing their 1923 football schedule the Mercer freshmen will meet the Georgia Military college cadets on Alumni field here Friday afternoon. The freshman team will possibly be in the best condition of the season.

Only Parks and Dunn, of the regular crew, will be forced on the side lines. Parks bears the effects of body bruises acquired early in the season while Dunn has been confined to his room with sickness for two weeks.

While the varsity rushed over them three times a week in preparation for the senior contests the first year men have been compelled to nevertheless play out their schedule. The spirit with which they did it has called forth praise from the entire Mercer coaching staff. Coach Stanley Robinson remarked only a few days ago that the freshmen had the best morale and drilled with an earnestness that he has not seen in any other freshmen assemblage in his entire coaching career.

The Friday game promises a good fight. A few weeks ago when the freshmen invaded Milledgeville the cadets took them into camp to a score of 19 to 6. Coach Mosley, who this year leads the first-year men, says that they are now in much better trim than they were then. Although the edge on the dope points to G. M. C. the outcome is rather uncertain.

Firpo Once More Hero in Boliva

La Paz, Bolivia, November 14.—The same temperamental mob that howled for the life of Luis Angelo Firpo on his arrival here, cheered him wildly a few hours later and howled for the lives of the fight promoters whom he blamed for his difficulties.

Thus Firpo again is a hero to Bolivians and the apparent slight to their national pride has been explained away.

Firpo refused to go on with his boxing show because of the outcry against him and was hailed into court, where he gave bond in a suit for damages. Then he addressed the crowd saying he loved Bolivians and wouldn't think of insulting them. The "infamous promoters" he said, were the ones who started the report that he had been discourteous to Bolivia. At that the crowd shouted "kill the promoters" and ran away to find them.

Indians Pick Lakeland Again

Lakeland, Fla., November 14.—Walter McNichols, secretary and business manager for the Cleveland American league baseball club, left here today for his home after completing arrangements for the Indians to train in Lakeland again next spring. It is understood that at least eight major league teams will come to Florida next spring.

INDIAN GRID FANS PUT JINX ON MARINES

New York, November 14—The Leatherneck team from the U. S. Marine Post at Quantico, Va., will have to overcome whatever evil influence there is in the Indian sign when the marines meet the Haskell Indians here Saturday. Blackfeet Indians from the indoor rodeo at Madison Square Garden visited the Yankee stadium Wednesday afternoon and marked their tribal jinx on both goal posts.

The Roundup Indians will be the guests of their educational friends from the Haskell school at the football game, and the football team will be entertained free at the rodeo.

The Haskell squad arrived Wednesday morning from Pittsburg. John Levi, the Indians' famous halfback, who is also a great ball-player, probably will pick out a locker for himself in the dressing room used in summer time by the Yankees. It is expected that he will become a Yank after the Olympic games are over.

Oglethorpe Advances on Officers Saturday

LOCAL TEAM SHOULD WIN

Petrels May Use Pony Backfield Against the Camp Benning Stars.

BY BILL MORROW.

Oglethorpe's band of Stormy Petrels will again invade foreign territory when it sets sail tomorrow for Columbus, where the Camp Benning officers will play hosts at a little grid contest Saturday afternoon. The Petrels are picked to have a little breathing spell at the exepense of the Camp Benning eleven, but upsets of the dope bucket have been many this season, and the Petrels are liable to hit some rough weather and run up against stiffer opposition than was originally expected.

The Petrel clan, taken as a whole, is in pretty good condition considering the fracas of the past week-end and also that the Oglethorpe force indulged in two battles the week before. One or two players are troubled with sore muscles and charley-horses, but injuries are all of a minor nature and the full strength of the Petrels can be realized in the Oglethorpe-Camp Benning fracas, if need arises.

There is a strong possibility that the pony backfield of Albough, Redfearn, Slayton and Ivey will have a chance against the officers' line. All of these players are light of weight and fleet of foot, practically every one carrying considerable threat when given a little assistance by his comrades.

One bright spot in the Petrels' exhibition against Mercer was the charging of the line. For the first time this season the Stormy Birds were opening holes for their fleet backs and were opening them with marked consistency. The coaching staff at the university has had considerable trouble in the past in getting the line to charge properly and open paths for the backfield men, but in its little exhibition against the Baptists of Mercer the line showed a complete reversal of form and delivered what the coaching staff had tried so earnestly to obtain.

The Camp Benning force is not one to be looked to as an easy opponent by the Oglethorpe aggregation. Last year the Petrels won over the Columbus force mainly by the activities of one Mr. Adrian Maurer and naturally it would be supposed that this back will be the center of some attention in the battle Saturday. Mercer accounted for a win over the officers by a 7-to-0 margin after the scrubs had played about three quarters of the game, so even though Maurer will doubtlessly be a marked man, the Petrels should deliver their third victory of the present season.

Dartmouth May Meet Yale Team

New York, November 14.—Reports that Dartmouth may be accorded a late season date on the Yale football schedule for 1924 have led many close followers of college sports to predict that the near future will witness the development of the so-called "Big Three" comprising Harvard, Yale and Princeton, into a "Big Four," with Dartmouth as the added member.

The first step toward this end, it is believed, came last year when Harvard, after allowing its lengthy Dartmouth football series to lapse for a period of 10 years, resumed gridiron relations with the Green. The second step is seen in Yale's apparent overtures to Dartmouth. The only remaining move necessary is the resumption by Princeton of its Dartmouth football series, which was halted in 1915.

Jones and Bankart.

Observers who recall that a warm friendship between Tad Jones, of Yale, and Larry Bankart, chairman of Dartmouth's advisory council, paved the way to the Yale-Dartmouth negotiations, point significantly to a similar friendship between Bill Roper, the Tiger mentor, and Jesse Hawley, Dartmouth's new head coach. Hawley, it is stated, served Roper in the capacity of scout and assistant coach during 1921 and 1922, aiding in preparing the Princeton eleven for its notable victory over Chicago last fall.

They add that in history and in ancient tradition, Dartmouth is naturally grouped with Harvard, Yale and Princeton, and that eligibility rules fully as strict and in some instances more stricter than those included in the "Big Three" long have been enforced at the Hanover institution.

DONAHUE'S TEAM LEAVES FOR GAME

Baton Rouge, La., November 14.—The Louisiana State football squad, 24 strong, left here late today for Montgomery where it will meet the University of Alabama Friday. The game will be the first southern intercollegiate conference clash for the Tigers this season and their first contest in two weeks. The coaching staff accompanying the Tigers includes Mike Donahue and Moon Ducote.

The young gentleman whose toe rises highest is Bob Reeves, Georgia Tech halfback and brother of Henry Reeves, the lad whose head would be in grave danger if this was else but a picture. Bob has been playing excellent football this year, although it is his first year on the squad. Bob was a four-letter Freshman last year and bids fair to enter that category as a varsity man. Henry, below, has been light for varsity work on the gridiron, but has developed into an excellent drop-kicker. Bob also is a kicker of parts, although this duty has befallen regularly to Wycoff this season. Both Reeves lads are from Chattanooga.

Tech Hi, G. M. A. Play Game Friday

Tech High and G. M. A. will play their annual football game Friday afternoon at Spiller's Park, at 2:30 o'clock. The game will very likely settle second place in the city prep league.

As yet G. M. A. has not been beaten by a prep league team. It has a 3-to-0 victory over Boys' High tucked away as a matter of history. G. M. A. was defeated by Decatur High but the DeKalk county lads are not in the city league in football. Tech High has lost its only prep league game, and that to University school by a 6 to 0 score.

Since G. M. A. has beaten Boys' High and Tech High has lost to University High, the game Friday afternoon should settle second place standing.

Change Line-up

The Tech High team will start with a changed line-up Friday afternoon due to injuries on the team. Perkins, giant tackle of the Smithies, was injured in scrimmage Monday afternoon and will not be in condition for several days yet. Payne will play tackle in place of Perkins.

Not only will the line see changes but Captain O'Neal will call signals at quarterback and Hubert will play in the backfield.

Coach Morrow at G. M. A. has been scrimmaging the cadets hard all week in preparation for the Friday afternoon game. The G. M. A. team will be heavily outweighed and will start a comparatively green eleven against the Smithies.

The G. M. A. team, although very light, will present a machine that has been well coached and one that is liable to pull many tricks before the game has advanced far.

Many Teams Entered.

Chicago, November 14.—The twenty-fourth annual American bowling congress here March 23 will set another record entry mark with indications pointing to competition between 2,200 teams, A. L. Langtry, secretary of the congress, announced today. The 1923 congress, held at Milwaukee early this year, brought out 1,956 teams. Prize money is expected to exceed $90,000.

ABESLON WANTS REVENGE; BARNETT AND O'DOWD FIGHT IS SUGGESTION

Lew Silver lost the decision to Tim O'Dowd at the auditorium Tuesday night, but Max Abelson, manager of the Progressive club fighter, is not satisfied. Max believes that Silver can make Timmy go down for the count, but so far he hasn't even suggested a rematch of the two.

Battling Barnett, another husky battler under Abelson's management, is the person that Max beileves can turn the rick. Max says that he is willing to make Barnett get down to the featherweight limit at 2 o'clock in the afternoon before the fight which was the condition stipulated in the contract of the Silver-O'Dowd fight.

*** *** ***

*** *** ***

A fair sized crowd was out to witness the scrap Tuesday night, but no doubt quite a few more followers of the goddess of fistinia would be on hand if this match should materialize. O'Dowd added quite a number of friends to his string by his exhibition against Silver, while the Abelson contingent would be there in full force looking for revenge.

*** *** ***

No doubt a nice crowd will be on hand to see the Garcia-Ritchie match next Tuesday. Frankie is one of the most popular fighters in this section and always gives the fans a run for their money. Little is known of Ritchie in these parts but it is certain he has a very impressive record and should make a nice showing against the Memphis battler.

Walk Miller says that Tiger Flowers will probably be able to enter the ring once more after an absence of two months about the later part of the month. Negotiations for the Battling Siki match are still underway and the match may materialize. The date will be moved up to December 14 instead of Christmas Day as had been previously planned.

Only two more appearances of the Golden Tornado before the curtain is rung down on the season. The Kentucky eleven will make its appearance Saturday then the Jackets will have a layoff until the annual clash with Auburn on Turkey Day. A few more seats are left for the Thanksgiving Day event but orders are coming in fast, and first come will be first served.

Yale Will Meet Desperate Princeton Team Saturday

BY WALTER CAMP.

(Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution.)

New York, November 14.—Yale will meet a desperate Princeton team when she trots her warriors into the big bowl at New Haven Saturday for the east's big game of the week.

With everything to gain and nothing to lose, Princeton naturally will take the big chances and some spectacular football may result. One thing is just about certain: Princeton got her lesson last Saturday against Harvard, and will use her kicking game more, relying less on the old line pounding style of play. She may have a few yards advantage in the punting duel.

On merits of attack, however, Yale has a decided margin. If she gets her attack going as she did in the Army and the Maryland games, she should secure and maintain the upper hand.

Another big game for the east will be the Harvard-Brown clash at Cambridge. The Crimson is out for revenge for Brown's victory last year and at the same time will be trying not to take too many risks. Brown knows this, and will take every advantage of the situation that she can.

Much interest also attaches to the game at Philadelphia between Penn and Penn State. Penn would have lost early in the season, but she has been coming better lately, while Penn State missed her big captain and lineman.

PRES. COOLIDGE ACCEPTS HONOR

New York, November 14.—President Coolidge has accepted the honorary presidency of the American Olympic committee, as his predecessors have done in other Olympic periods, the committee announced today.

Local gymnast have been requested by Chairman Roy S. Moore, of the Olympic gymnastic committe, to begin practice in December. He intends to issue similar calls in Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston, St. Louis, Los Angeles and New Orleans.

Renault May Be Obstacle To Dempsey, Says Edgren

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

Jack Renault, by knocking out Floyd Johnson, has put himself in good position to claim a battle with Luis Firpo. If he can beat Firpo, nobody will deny his right to a chance at the big title, but Firpo will have to come first. Firpo proved himself next in line to Dempsey when he knocked the champion to his knees and knocked him out of the ring. Nobody else ever treated Dempsey that way. So Firpo stands in the way of any challenger who wants to camp on Dempsey's trail.

In his recent fights Jack Renault has shown improvement in many ways. He doesn't stick his tongue out and make faces as he did a year ago. He seems more careless of being hurt. He has become much more "clever" without losing his effective punch. And he has about everything else that a heavyweight needs.

Renault's Start.

Renault started in Canada as an amateur, soon became a professional and had won a few fights at the time he joined Jack Dempsey's camp as a sparring partner. He trained several weeks with Dempsey at Atlantic City, and although he took a gruelling every day, picked up a lot of Dempsey's fighting style and began to show very fair hitting ability.

Renault is well built, much like Dempsey in general contour. He has wide shoulders, short neck, long arms, small waist, hips and legs, and a round, compat head and face that can bounce off punches. He is fast, strong, and has plenty of endurance.

For a while Renault had a trick of sticking his tongue out and making faces when he was hit hard, which led to a rumor that Dempsey had "knocked him goofy" in that training camp period at Atlantic City. But as Renault improved in fighting ability he cut out the little eccentricities that had marked his work and settled down to plain, hard fighting. As a result he has knocked out a bunch of good heavyweights, including such men as George Godfrey, Fred Fulton and Floyd Johnson.

More Cautious Than Dempsey.

He is fast and has a lot of Dempsey's ring action, and will be much more cautious than Dempsey was when the champ risked everything by trying to knock Firpo out in a punch and waded into him slugging like a longshoreman. He has added a few fancy touches by studying Jack Britton and Benny Leonard, and the swift work combined with socking may puzzle Firpo.

Flynn, Renault's manager, thinks pretty well of Renault. He has repeatedly challenged Harry Wills for Renault, and Wills and his manager have ignored the challenges on the ground that Renault was nobody and unknown and beneath their notice. Which indicates that they think he can fight.

Renault has been tipped over several times. Billy Miske knocked him out last year in 13 rounds, and everybody knows Miske has been on the slide for five years past. Two or three less known boxers have also flattened Renault. But he has come along very well this year.

Losing fights doesn't stop a good man. Many champions have lost early flights, and there are few who haven't lost decisions or been knocked out a few times before they "arrived."

Renault and Tom Gibbons may make another good match. Gibbons is a fine boxer and a game fellow. He might beat Renault. But even if Gibbons beat all the runners-up for the title no one who saw him against Jack Dempsey at Shelby last July can imagine his taking the championship from the present holder. Dempsey had good reasons for being satisfied with clearly outpointing Gibbons in that fight. He boxed with a lot of speed and wore Tom down so nicely in the 15 rounds that it is doubtful whether Gibbons could have stalled through another session. But Dempsey didn't go after Gibbons with the sudden and relentless fury he uncovered against Willard, Morris, Fulton, Firpo, Misks or Levinsky. If he had, the fight wouldn't have gone more than five or six rounds at the most, in spite of Tom's courage and cleverness.

Renault would make a good opponent for Siki. He has no timid feeling where dark gentlemen are concerned, as evidenced by the way he went after big Godfrey, who should have been able to break Renault in two. If Jack fights the visiting Senegalese he'll make Siki feel as if Renault had knocked the last letter off his name—if you get what I mean.

This is about all about Renault until he knocks out another. But he surely did a good job in beating Floyd Johnson. They don't come any gamer and tougher than the Iowa boy.

Tech Will Stage Cross Country Run

Tech is going to have a big invitation cross-country run on Saturday, to be staged between the halves of the Tech-Kentucky game. The course will be over the regular ground, the Waterloo for so many Tech freshmen each year.

The teams will line up on the field and get to the Waterworks any way they can, and return. The whole course is about three miles and a half. At the present time, the record for the course is held by Horace Moore, who set it two years ago.

Already seven teams are entered, and more may come in before Saturday. This is the first time that Tech has attempted to stage a cross-country invitation meet, and the results of this initial endeavor will be regarded with keen interest.

Cups and medals which are to be awarded to winning teams and members are now on display at Spalding's.

Randall-Kilpatrick, Star Halfbacks, May Be Missing In Lineup on Saturday

BY WALTER G. COOPER.

Athens, Ga., November 14.—(Special.)—With one lone afternoon left for practice to finish off for the game of the year against the Black and Gold of Vandy, the Georgia mentors are devising every possible means to help bring home the bacon. Their charges are much the worse for wear, but fortunately John Fletcher is reported to be progressing nicely and unless something happens between now and the zero moment he will be sufficiently recovered from injuries to start against the Commodores.

Randall and Kilpatrick will probably be mising from the lineup Saturday. Randall was a consistent gainer against Virginia, and in the most important grapple of the year he will be much missed. Nelson was injected into the fray in his place against Old Dominion and disproved any theory that he is a mere scrub. He will no doubt get his chance of the year in the coming classic. After his exhibition last week all Athens is counting strongly on him, and the local fans would not believe that anybody stopped him unless they saw it with their own eyes, and even then they might question their own accuracy of vision.

However, you never can tell who will prove the hero. A week ago the reports from Virginia pointed to Benny Arnold as the star of the eleven. When the dust of the battle had settled Arnold had faded into oblivion beside the stellar performance of one Maphis, an end.

Vandy is Favorite.

Against Mercer, Oglethorpe, Tennessee, Auburn and Virginia the Georgia Bulldogs went into battle with the dope favoring them. For the first time this season next Saturday they will enter the contest with the dope decidedly against them, and it remains to be seen whether they can upset the predictions which has hitherto been borne out in results. Vandy bested the Volunteers of Tennessee not seven days ago by the swamping score of 51 to 7. About thirty days ago the Bulldogs trounced Tennessee decidedly 17 to 0 after playing an even game for the first half. From this direct comparison the outlook for the Athenians is anything but rosy.

At Georgia, however, it is considered a distinct advantage to enter a game with the dope unfavorable. In practically every Georgia-Auburn contest, except the one this fall, the advance opinions turned out wrong. With a hospital list the Buldogs undoubtedly will not enter the Vandy game a favorite.

Vanderbilt has not lately lowered its standards to a Red and Black eleven. Vandy somehow has the knack of outwitting Georgia on the gridiron if she cannot win by superior force. Last year the latter method sufficed, but two years ago the Gold and Black employed an effective strategy by which they tied a game that statistics indicated they should have lost.

Take Lead at Start.

In that memorable battle the Athenians were leading by seven points toward the last of the game, and were playing their usual safe and sane style of football that they used when in the lead. Taking advantage of the extreme conservative policy of the Georgians, the Vandy field general signalled for an on-side kick, then legal. It worked; the eligible player scooped up the ball as it was about to fall dead in front of the Georgia safety man, who could have easily picked it up, if he had not been trying to be so sure not to fumble.

First downs in that game were so rare upon the side of the Commodores and so thick upon the record of the Georgians that one would have thought the game was one-sided, yet the score was 7 all. The memory of that coup d'etat will long linger in Georgia's recollections.

Last year's defeat was another bitter pill. It was the Waterloo of the season. Georgia gained in midfield and did everything but score. Her line was almost impregnable, and her ends were not to be cvircled. Vandy made out half as many first downs, yet by two long passes scored two touchdowns while holding the Athenians to a whitewash.

It is against this sort of a team that the Bulldogs will play Saturday, and they are expecting no easy time.

Hornsby Trade May Yet Develop

New York, November 14.—Although Muggsy McGraw has sailed for Germany and is not likely to do any trading by wireless, New York baseball men are convinced that Rogers Hornsby eventually will come to the Giants and that several players employed in the late world series are to be traded off to others teams.

The deal that sent Dave Bancroft, Casey Stengel and Bill Cunningham to the Braves is still a puzzle. The Giants deny that they own any stock in the Boston club, but it has been estimated that the Braves were given about $60,000 the best of the deal. The reason given by McGraw before sailing was that he wanted to do a favor for Christy Mathewson, who is said to be the owner of the Braves.

BILLY MISKE AFTER FIGHT WITH RENAULT

New York, November 14.—Billy Miske, one of Jack Dempsey's favorite victims, who recently knocked out large Bill Brennan, in Omaha, is returning to New York soon to make insulting faces at Jack Renault in the hope of agitating some difficulty with the Canadian.

Miske has not been seen here since Tom Gibbons gave him a whaling more than a year ago, but is still one of the good second-raters. Renault has few white customers left since he stopped Floyd Johnson. He says he is not yet ready to meet Harry Wills but he probably will agree to fight Miske.

"Watch Your Step;" Get Insurance

"Watch your step."

How many times have you heard that warning to pedestrians, but even the most careful precautions fall short in this day of speedy automobiles and constant rush.

Dr. J. B. Golden, of 352 Lucile avenue, Atlanta, nor only "Watched his step," but wisely secured a policy under The Daily and Sunday Constitution's travel and pedestrian accident insurance offer.

On September 16, 1923, while crossing Gordon street, he was struck by a street car and was totally disabled for a little more than three weeks.

He paid only $1 for his accident policy, and in return he received on October 12 the sum of $31.43, his accident coming under the pedestrian clause as outlined in the policy.

Any Constitution reader may secure this travel and pedestrian accident insurance for only $1 by taking out a year's subscription to The Daily and Sunday Constitution.

Watch for the full particulars of the policies, which are described almost daily in advertisements appearing in this paper. Or best of all, call at The Constitution or mail in your order for a policy and a year's subscription to The Constitution in this unparalleled economic and protective opportunity.

A. M. E. CONFERENCE CONVENES IN MACON

Macon, Ga., November 14.—(Special.)—Bishop J. S. Flipper convened the Macon A. M. E. annual conference here today. Revs. R. J. Jefferson, W. A. Austin and J. W. Dunn were elected secretaries. Two hundred and sixty men answered the roll-call.

The state has lost 10,000 members by migration as reported in the last five conferences. Atlanta went $225 over last year. President Elders, J. T. Hale, East Macon district; F. C. Craytor, Forsyth district; E. Griggs, Milledgeville district; S. F. Andrews, Macon district, and J. W. Mitchell, Eatonton district, reported progress for each point in his territory.

They asked that young men applying for admission come before the conference.

Dr. J. T. Hall preached the annual sermon. Pastor J. L. Butler, steward A. M. E. church, will report on the work of the leading church of the conference in advance of last conference. Mayor Williams, of Macon, spoke to the conference today.

The conference is largely attended by leading negroes from all parts of the country.

FEDERAL RESERVE PROBLEMS BEFORE COMMITTEE HERE

Assigned to the task of determining why more state banks do not join the federal reserve system, a congressional investigating committee will meet prominent bankers, representing the Georgia Bankers' association, in the directors' room of the federal reserve bank here Friday.

This will be among the last conference that will be held on the subject between members of the committee and bankers throughout the middle west, the southwest and the southeast. The committee is scheduled to come to Atlanta from Montgomery, where a meeting will be held today. Conferences have been held in Chicago, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis Little Rock, Dallas, Houston and New Orleans.

The original committee was composed of members from both the house of representatives and the senate, but the press of business is reported to have eliminated senators who set out to make the tour. Upon their return to Washington, the legislators are expected to report on conditions existing in the federal reserve system that prove so unattractive as to cause many state banks to remain outside the system.

WANT EXCHANGE PRIVILEGE EXTENDED.

New Orleans, November 14.—Country banks must be allowed the privilege of collecting exchange on checks before they can be expected to join the federal reserve system, Louisiana and Mississippi bankers told the joint congressional banking committee here today holding hearings on the failure of non-member banks to enter the reserve system.

Charles Deb Claiborne, vice president of the Whitney Central National bank, of New Orleans, told the investigators that the average country banker does not want to join the federal reserve system because of the fight on par collection of checks. "They feel they are entitled to a legitimate charge and will not join as long as the right is denied them" he said.

H. C. Herring, of Pascagoula, Miss., president of the Mississippi Bankers' association; Flood Madison, of Bastrop, La.; James Bolton Alexandria, La.; G. W. McWilliams, Hattisburg, Miss., and C. G. Rives, Jr., vice president of the Whitney Central bank also appeared before the committee and testified along the same lines as Mr. Claiborne.

BRUNSWICK EXPOSITION PROVING BIG SUCCESS

The success of the Brunswick exposition has surpassed even the fondest hopes of Ludden & Bates company in the enthusiastic response to the company's invitation for a week of pleasure, for which gala event the entire first floor of the Pryor street store has been converted into a veritable tropical garden. Even though this is "Party week" and little effort has been made to effect sales, quite a few of these lovely instruments have been bought and each day adds to the popularity of the 1924 model, it is said.

Every evening brings appreciative audiences to enjoy the specially-arranged de luxe entertainment. Conn's Rainbow orchestra conducted the program last night in its usual pleasing manner.

This evening Mr. Frenkel promises an hour of real carnival in a splendid vaudeville program to include many professional artists. The Galloway quartet, four brothers, will give several numbers; Floyd Jennings, whose tenor voice is much loved here, and Catharine Jones in her charming whirlwind dance and others whose names alone are drawing cards will also appear.

CHRISTIANS TO HOLD HOMECOMING MEETING

Home Coming day will be celebrated by members and friends of the First Christian church all day Sunday at which time reports on the $300,000 building fund campaign will be made to the congregation by Frank Stewart and his committee of workers. Large gifts which have been received by the committee practically assure the completion of the fund in a short time, committee members stated.

The building fund money will be directed to the construction of an edifice in the northern section of the city, Dr. L. O. Bricker, pastor of the congregation for the past 11 years, stated. The new building will be equipped with the most modern features devised for church and community buildings, according to architectural drawings.

Plans for the celebration include a candle drill at 9:30 o'clock in which hundreds of children will participate, and at 10:30 o'clock, an overflow meeting for young people will be held in the auditorium of the Commercial high school building, while at the same time George L. Snively will assist the pastor with services in the church.

Dinner will be served all members and visitors will be special guests following the adjournment of the morning services. Women of the church will be in charge of dinner preparations.

Afternoon and evening services will be conducted by Dr. Essie Thomas, E. R. Craighead, Seaborn Wright and George Snively.

Miss Gershon Weds Mr. Greenspan At Ingleside Country Club

A beautiful marriage in which Atlanta and Tennessee society is especially interested was that of Miss Louise Gershon and Irvine Greenspan, of Nashvile, Tenn., which was solemnized Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Ingleside Country club.

The impressive ceremony was performed by Rabbi David Marx in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and close friends.

Beautiful Decorations.

The entire lower floor of the handsome clubhouse was transformed into a bower of loveliness. The reception hall, living room and sunparlors were lavishly decorated with handsome green palms and pedestal baskets and vases of long stemmed lavender and white chrysanthemums. The chandeliers were entwined with greenery, and graceful ropes of smilax festooned the door, arches and windows. The wide sunparlor where the ceremony was performed was elaborately decorated for the occasion.

An altar of palms extended across one side of the room and a canopy made of white chrysanthemums and valley lilies was suspended overhead. On either side of the altar were handsome cathedral candelabra holding white burning tapers, and placed in the center was a tall wicker basket filled with large white chrysanthemums.

Lovely Attendants.

The bridal party descended the stairway, which was entwined with smilax and adorned with baskets of lavender and white chrysanthemums. White posts garlanded with smilax and white satin ribbon marked an aisle from the stairway to the altar.

First to enter was the maid of honor, Miss Helen Rosenberg, of Memphis, Tenn. She wore a gown of nile green chiffon elaborately beaded in pearls. The skirt was fashionably draped and caught at one side with a handsome pearl ornament. She carride a cascade bouquet of pastel shaded flowers showered with lilies of the valley and tiny Ophelia roses.

Mrs. Joseph Gershon, mother of the bride, who acted as matron of honor, wore a handsome gown of orchid colored chiffon lavishly beaded in pearls and rhinestones. The modishly draped skirt was outlined with pearls and caught in the center at the waistline with an exquisite pearl and rhinestone ornament. She carried an arm bouquet of pastel shaded flowers showered with lilies of the valley, tiny pink rosebuds and parma violets.

Preceding the bride, came the little flower girl, Miss Sonny Leibman. Her dainty frock was of flesh colored chiffon over flesh crepe. A silver ribbon encircled her lovely heair and she carried a small princess basket filled with pink rosebuds and valley lilies.

The bride entered with her father, Joseph Gershon, who gave her in marriage, and they were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Paul Greenspan, of Nashville, Tenn.

Charming Bride.

The charming young bride was lovely in her wedding gown of heavy white satin elaborately embroidered in effective design with crystals and pearls, the trimming extending from the bottom of the skirt to the waist line, where it was caught with a handsome pearl ornament. A cascade of rose point lace softly draped the left side of the skirt extending the entire length. The bertha and tiny sleeves were formed of rose point lace and were fastened to the shoulders with exquisite pearl and crystal ornaments. The long court train fell from the shoulders in graceful length and was elaborately embroidered in crystals and pearls. The tulle veil was outlined with rose point lace and was caught at the front of the hair with a coronet of lace with tiny clusters of orange blossoms at either side.

Wedding Supper.

Following the ceremony the wedding party and guests, numbering 50, were seated at at long table which was overlaid with a cover of imported laces. The centerpiece was a low mound of flowers in the pastel shades fringed with lilies of the valley. Smaller mounds of similar blossoms were placed at intervals down the entire length of the table. Placed at intervals were handsome silver candlesticks, holding unshaded pink, lavender and white tapers, casting a mellow glow over the lovely scene. The bride's and groom's places were marked with a plaque of pastel shaded flowers.

On an individual table the bride's cake rested on a plateau of pink roses and lilies of the valley. The four-tier cake was elaborately embossed in tiny pink rosebuds and valley lilies. A shower of flowers in the Dresden shades arose from the hollow center and fell the entire length, while ropes of smilax adorned the outer edge. On either side of the table were silver candelabra holding lavender burning tapers.

Mrs. Greenspan, mother of the groom, wore a handsome gown of black chiffon and lace, heavily beaded. Her corsage bouquet was of yellow roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Sol Goodman, of Nashville, sister of the groom, was gowned in black chiffon velvet embroidered in rhinestones. She wore a corsage bouquet of red roses.

The bride's aunt, Mrs. M. E. Rosenberg, wore a gown of black chiffon beaded in crystals with a corsage bouquet of pink roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Gilbert Strauss, another aunt of the bride, was gowned in turquoise blue crepe lavishly beaded in rhinestones. Her corsage bouquet was Ophelia roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Milton Leibman, aunt of the bride, wore a handsome gown of brocaded silver cloth with a corsage of parma violets.

Wedding Journey.

Mr. and Mrs. Greenspan will be at home after December 15 in the Harding Court apartments in Nashville, Tenn.

Among out-of-town guests were Mrs. Louis Greenspan, Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Goodman, Master Louis Goodman, Paul Greenspan, Gerald Korman and Frank Fleishman, of Nashville; Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Scholarship and Resolutions Feature Federation Meeting

The Atlanta City Federation of Women's Clubs, ratified in open meeting Wednesday morning at the chamber of commerce, the recommendations made at the executive board meeting a week past, that the sum of $200 raised by the lectures given by Dr Blanch Loveridge for the city federation's pledge to Greater Tallulah be appropriated to two annual scholarships to be memorials to Mrs. W. P. Patillo and Mrs. Julius L. Brown, cofounders of the city federation, and that these be made perpetual scholarships known as the Sallie Chase Pattillo and the Fannie Fort Brown scholarships. These names would thus be among the twenty-five which will go on the bronze tablet to be placed at the Georgia Federation's school at Tallulah Falls.

Mrs. Charles J. Haden is chairman of memorial scholarships. Mrs. John K. Ottley, chairman of the Tallulah Falls Industrial school, was also the first Georgia woman appointed to serve on the national democratic committee.

Perpetual scholarships already established at Tallulah Falls school include, Nellie Peters Black, Sarah Harper Heard, Robert Towns Daniel, Lucy Lester Willet, John S. Lester, S. B. C. Morgan, Birdie Cobb Smith, Alexander W. Cawthon and Sara E. White.

Matters of Importance.

Mrs. T. T. Stevens, president of the Atlanta City Federation presided at the meeting and among other matters of importance were the endorsements of Mrs. Howard H. McCall's recommendation that the $200 now in the treasury be used to have the history of the federation preserved, by having all of the year books bound, and the acceptance of federation headquarters at the chamber of commerce offered by Alfred C. Newell, president, through Mrs. Newell, first vice president, and chairman of extension for state federation.

Mrs. Spencer Atkinson, chairman of resolutions, presented the resolution which urged that the women seek and urge high ideals for peace by not giving children suggestive playthings which tend to arouse feelings of animosity or the desire for revenge, but to lead them toward what is elevating, wholesome, and pure. This was offered by Mrs. Frank Woodruff and passed the body. Mrs. Charles J. Haden offered the resolution that the Georgia delegation in congress be requested to urge increase in the appropriation of what is known as the Sheppard-Towner bill and to increase its scope, and to urge that congress, by appropriate legislation require the postal department to transport through its usual channels medicines and surgical supplies so the same may be available to rural and "star route" deliveries. That the Georgia legislature be urged to appropriate the sum of $19,000 to match the equal sum which is now said to be available from the federal government whenever Georgia shall make appropriation. This resolution also carried.

President's Report.

Mrs. Stevens' official report was as follows:

"In presenting a few of the outstanding activities that have engaged my time and attention since I was elected your president last June, I call your attention briefly to the following: As your president, I was invited to represent the federation at the public celebration on the Fourth of July which was arranged by the citzenship department of the Atlanta Woman's club and was attended by representatives from state, county and city, besides representatives from all patriotic and civic bodies.

"Early in September your president called a meeting of the executive board of the federation at the Piedmont Driving club to discuss ways and means to carry forward the work to which our organization is pledged. This meeting was largely attended, there being present besides officers and chairmen, representatives from sixty-eight of the 104 federated clubs composing the Atlanta Federation. At this meeting our pledge for Tallulah Falls Industrial school of $200 was taken and discussed and it was decided to present Dr. Blanche Loveridge, scholar and lecturer, in a series of lectures on practical psychology.

"In presenting Dr. Loveridge, the federation felt that it was giving to the women of Atlanta a real treat and that this has proven true is attested by the large attendance at not one series, but already two series of four lectures each have been given and still the women are insistent that Dr. Loveridge will give a third series which will begin next Tuesday at Carnegie library. Already more than the $200 has been realized from these lectures and the third series will be given for our former scholarships. Mrs. Spencer Aitkinson is chairman of the lecture series.

"Mrs. A. E. Thornton brought a message from the Red Cross to the federation meeting asking that the federation conduct a one-day campaign on the streets for the Japanese relief. After much discussion the board decided to conduct the campaign, with Mrs. Atkinson, vice chairman, as chairman, and the results were most gratifying with $5,000 realized from the one-day work.

Symphony Orchestra.

"Your president was made a member of the Symphony Orchestra committee and has served with pleasure, as the Symphony orchestra fills a long felt need and is a civic asset to the community. As your president, it was my pleasure to assist on Rose day for the purchase of Snap Bean Farm, the home of Joel Chandler Harris, as a memorial to this immortal genius who lived in our midst, and to serve on the executive committee for Poppy day. As your representative, I was appointed on the Armistice day committee to assist in planning the celebration which was held ot the Tabernacle on Sunday afternoon. In closing may I say that the Atlanta federation has before it a magnificent future, a future with promise for relief and constructive building.

"Our past has been glorious, made so by women with lofty ideals. Let us all join hearts and hands and stand solidly for the best thought and effort we can give to the building of our fair city and state."

Pioneer Women.

An interesting group attending the meeting were the members of the Pioneer Women's society including Mrs. Madison Bell, Mrs. Joseph Westhoff, Mrs. Sid Holland, Mrs. Harry Smith and Mrs. J. J. Logue. Mrs. Holland's motion that the City Federation go on record not to buy holly at Christmas was unanimously adopted.

Mrs. Gilbert Reads Laws.

Mrs. Price Gilbert, chairman of legislation, read the following copy of the city ordinance prohibiting the burning of leaves in the streets:

"It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to build or maintain a fire in any of the public streets of the city of Atlanta within three feet of any curbing."

Mrs. Gilbert also read the following law quoted from the Georgia code:

"If any person shall willfully cut down, injure or destroy any tree planted or growing in any town, village or city, or in any avenue, yard, garden, orchard or plantation, for ornament, shelter, shade or profit, he shall be guilty of misdemeanor. After any tree is severed from the soil it becomes personal property, and is then the subject of larceny. While the tree is standing, it is a part of the realty."

Mrs. Harris Welcomed.

Mrs. Arthur Harris, secretary of the federation was welcomed on her return to club work, after having spent four months in Europe. The officers of the club were introduced as follows: Mrs. Alfred Newell, first vice president; Mrs. R. K. Rambo, second vice president; Mrs. H. G. Hastings, third vice president; Mrs. Arthur Harris, recording secretary; Mrs. Eugene Harrington, corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. F. McCormack, treasurer; Mrs. Willis Ragan, auditor; Miss Rosa Woodberry, parliamentarian. Reports from representatives of the various clubs were featured, and at 1 o'clock luncheon was served under the direction of the Atlanta Junior League. The tables were attractively decorated in yellow and white chrysanthemums.

W. W. Honor, president of the National League for Municipal Improvement, of St. Louis, spoke on "Community Advertising." He is a most convincing and interesting speaker. Mayor Sims, George Hope and Chief of Construction Hansell were honor guests.

Mrs. Rambo Speaks For Industrial Summer School

Following the report to the Y. W. C. A. industrial committee at a meeting held Wednesday noon at the Y. W. C. A., Peachtree Arcade, by Miss Elsie Gunckel, who attended Bryn Mawr summer school, Mrs. R. K. Rambo, chairman, spoke in favor of having such an industrial school at Agnes Scott college.

"Such a school is one of my future plans," said the chairman, "and our local industrial girls and women must have it."

Miss Gunckel said that of the 100 industrial girls at Bryn Mawr the past summer, she was the only representative from Georgia. She stated that the students represented every district of the United States. There were eleven nationalities and twenty different trades represented. Trades were the garment workers, textiles, telephone, electrical, millinery, glove, shoe, foodstuffs, printing, tobacco and candy. As the Georgia girl told of how the Bryn Mawr school had taught her tolerance both of peoples and religions, a love for literature, the knowledge of knowing how to work with her fellow beings, more and more the Atlanta women on the committee became converted to the idea of having more girls from this city go to Bryn Mawr next summer and eventually to having such a school here.

One plan suggested was that different church denominations be asked each to raise the necessary $200 fee to send a girl to Bryn Mawr summer school. Miss Jean Davis gave her first talk to the committee on "The Church and Industrial Reconstruction." Her talk was the first of course.

F. F. V.

Here we have a pen portrait of Mrs. W. Walter Rowles, whose home is "Oak Hills" farm, Spring Mill, Va. Before marriage she was Miss Sue Marshall, by paternal descent a cousin of the distinguished John Marshall of Virginia—envoy to France (1788), Secretary of War and Secretary of State (1800), and for many years Chief Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court. Her great grandfather was Thomas Marshall of Fauquier County, colonial patriot and soldier. Mrs. Rowles' son and daughter are "double F. F. V.," as their father's great-grandfather, Elisha Rowles, was a Virginia soldier of the Revolution.

This Virginia lady wrote that she had known of the value of CARDUI from personal experience, and gave the following statement about her use of this well-known medicine:

"I began taking Cardui as a tonic. I took two bottles. I felt I needed something to build me up. I was quite weak and run-down. I suffered right much and I found it helped me and made me much stronger. Within a short time after I began taking the Cardui, my appetite improved and I was really hungry. . .

"I suffered with considerable pain. . . My sides hurt and I would have to give up and go to bed. . . I took —— for a while but got no better. I remembered how much good Cardui had done me as a tonic, so I got a bottle and took it. I got all right; the pain disappeared and I was able to do my work without any trouble. I am glad to give my recommendation to Cardui, for it is a fine tonic for women."

City Federation Is Pledged to Mrs. A. P. Brantley

The Atlanta Federation of Women's clubs passed, unanimously on Wednesday a resolution, presented by Miss Rosa Woodberry and seconded by Mrs. B. M. Boykin, and Mrs. John King Ottley, pledging the support and loyalty of the federation to the Georgia Federation of Women's clubs and the newly elected president, Mrs. A. P. Brantley.

Plans for assisting in carrying to fuller realization many state undertakings and for carrying forward the various departments of the federation through helpful activity on the part of Atlanta federation were voiced throughout the morning session and the elaborate luncheon following.

The Greater Tullulah campaign received impetus at the meeting and forrestry conservation, bird preservation, protection of holly at Christmas time, were among the issues of state wide interest and directly under the state president's direction which received special attention from the city federation.

Luncheon Honors Miss Frances Smith.

Mrs. Joseph L. Dennis entertained the executive committee of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Wesley Memorial Hospital at a beautifully appointed luncheon on Tuesday at her home on Moreland avenue in honor of Miss Frances Smith, of Texas, who is superintendent of nurses at the hospital.

Miss Smith who has recently been associated with the Woman's Hospital of New York City and the Teachers' College of Columbia University is well qualified to fill the responsible position which she holds in the hospital. Registering from Texas, she traces her ancestry back to Georgia and South Carolina, and as she expresses it "feels very much at home in Georgia."

Preceding luncheon, a short business session of the committee was held with Mrs. Plato Durham, president, presiding. It was announced by the president that because of the shortage of money available for charit work by the hospital the Woman's Auxiliary had directed $1,000 during the year to be used for the care of charity patients.

Two annual events are participated in by the auxiliary—the linen shower in the summer commemorating the birthday of John Wesley and the Thanksgiving offering by Methodist women from all over Georgia. These two events are promoted by the auxiliary through the Methodist churches in the state and in a large measure represent the love of the Georgia Methodist women for their great institution of healing.

The linen shower this year provided 5,499 pieces of linen valued at $3,004.71. Mrs. Florence Harris and Mrs. J. L. Dennis, co-chairmen of the pantry shower, gave the figures for last year as 4,001 articles, valued at $3,930.35. As the needs of the hospital have greatly increased since last fall it is very much hoped that the gifts to the pantry this year may be proportionately increased. The dates for the shower this fall are November 27 and 28. On these days a committee of ladies will be at the hospital to receive and store the gifts. Those bringing their gifts to the hospital are requested to use the ambulance entrance which is just underneath the steps leading to the main entrance to the hospital.

The officers of the Woman's Auxiliary and the chairmen of standing committees are Mrs. Plato Durham, president; Mrs. R. K. Rambo, vice president; Mrs. A. McD. Wilson, Jr., treasures; Mrs. Fred Thomas, recording secretary; Mrs. C. E. Allen, corresponding secretary; pantry committee, Mrs. Florence Harris and Mrs. Jas. L. Dennis, co-chairmen; linen, Mrs. E. V. Carter; infants, wardrobe, Mrs. John Manget; house, Mrs. E. W. Bates; library, Miss Martha Boykin; membership, Mrs. A. L. Norris and Mrs. McWhorter Milner, co-chairmen; financial secretary, Mrs. W. M. Nichols; publicity, Mrs. Elijah Brown.

The next meeting of the executive committee of the auxiliary will be held at the hospital on Thursday, December 6, at 2 o'clock.

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It is very easily prepared, and there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and disappear. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Child-birth

WHEN the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy, "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says:

"With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used 'Mother's Friend' and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes." Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradfield Regulator Co., BA-75, Atlanta, Ga., for a free illustrated book containing information every expectant mother should have. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all drug stores—everywhere.

STARVED HEARTS

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

Madelon Learns Her New Role.

Madelon, seated in a cushioned chair on the hotel veranda that faced the sea, sipped her after-dinner coffee meditatively.

She was conscious that the three women who made up the feminine half of the party in whom Chandler showed such exorbitant interest were watching her curiously. They chatted casually, smoked long —rettes in jewelled holders; occasionally their heads bent together in common enjoyment of a bit of gossip, and their soft laughter floated across the veranda to Madelon.

Presently they came back, all laughing immoderately. Chandler was with them; in fact, the attention of the others seemed solely bestowed upon him.

Madelon realized, with a little bitter curl of her lip, that he was exercising upon these strangers that same irresistible fascination which had swept her off her feet.

He was presented to the three women, who fluttered consciously under the homage of the graceful bow, the open admiration of his dark eyes.

It was Madelon's turn then to be introduced into the littleg roup, a ceremony which she went through gravely. She was gracious but remote, a charmingly lovely figure in the moonlight, as more than one admiring masculine glance testified.

The evening dragged on. Everyone chattered gayly about inconsequential things. The men disappeared frequently and came back, a little more boisterous, a little more flushed. Occasionally one of them asked the women to dance. Madelon was asked frequently, but she declined politely. She didn't like these people, but she hid her distaste, mindful of Chandler's injunctions.

Finally, Chandler signified that it was time for them to go. She rose with alacrity and allowed him to slip her light wrap around her shoulders.

There was a storm of protest from the others, but Chandler persisted smilingly that it was late for Islanders.

It was then that the newcomers asked them to dine with them the following night.

Chandler's momentary hesitation was well done. He accepted finally with just the right degree of reserve to indicate that, while the invitation was unusual on so brief an acquaintance, he would overlook the informality in the pleasure which it promised.

'I don't like them, do you?" asked Madelon flatly, as the car rolled along the sandy sea road toward town.

He lit a cigarette, bending down to shield the match from the wind.

"Why yes. I think they're a rather good sort. Not too cultured, of course, but rolling in wealth."

"That's just it," she insisted. "I loathe obvious wealth. It's so—so common."

He laughed grimly.

"In that case, neither you nor I can be guilty of commonness, can we? . . . I'm sorry you don't like these people, because I am going to ask you to be nice to them. After dinner tomorrow night, I think I'll ask them out to the bungalow. We can have a few drinks and a little game."

A sudden blinding light broke upon Madelon.

So that was it? She was to play hostess for his card games. She was to lend respectability to such occasions, to disarm suspicion by her presence. She was to interest and divert the women while he sheared the men.

The wave of disgust that swept over her fairly nauseated her. The deep crimson of shame bathed her face and throat.

"I won't do it," she said steadily. "I won't play the spider to your flies. That's final!"

"Really?' his eyes were mocking. "You don't do very much to keep your end of our bargain marriage, do you? I dare say you think it is quite enough for me to have a pretty lay figure posing as a wife around my house? Is that it?"

She made no answer, and his tone changed from sarcasm to cajolery.

"Don't misunderstand me, Madelon. I am proud of your beauty and charm. I want to show them off. You are too young to withdraw into seclusion like a nun in a convent. The bungalow was once the scene of many a happy party. Let's revive those old days together. What do you say"

"I don't know what to say," she answered helplessly. "You are never frank with me. You seem always to be playing a game. How can I trust you?"

For answer he drew her close into his arms and bent his head until his lips rested against her hair.

"It is hard for you, I know, my beautiful, but only remember this: I am old and experienced by contrast with you. If at times I seem to shock you, if at times you suspect me of evil, try to recall also that you are only a child, not long out of a convent. The things that seem so terrible to you are terrible only because you don't know life . . . I will teach you, and wisdom, added to your beauty, will make you an empress among women."

He tilted her head back and kissed her, the long slow kiss that made her wax in his hands.

BEAUTY CHATS

BY EDNA KENT FORBES.

BEAUTY AND GOOD MANNERS.

A motherly woman wrote me some time ago the tale of a very lovely little girl who had come to the city to live, whose sweetness and beauty attracted every one, but who was so ignorant of the simplest rules of social etiquette that she became rather a joke.

I often receive letters of the sort, and never know quite how to answer them. We are supposed to talk only of beauty and how to acquire it in this column, yet good manners have a great deal to do with good looks.

Magazines and newspapers sometimes print series of articles on all these little social forms, and there are books published on the subject at all sorts of prices. I should think these would be useful if one felt quite ignorant of even the essentials of the subject. To look about and imitate is not always safe, for the people you imitate may be no better than yourself, or worse.

Besides, good manners are not the same the world over. In America we eat always with the right hand, and after we have cut up food with the knife, put the knife down and transfer the fork to the right hand. In England this is bad manners. The fork is almost always in the left hand, and they tell me it is incorrect to have the prongs turned up. Mannerisms of speech, accent, the very choice of words, differs not only in one country from another, but even in one state from another.

Still it's a complex problem. It's foolish to scoff at such little social forms as the way one eats or answers a dinner invitation. These things are important only because they are passwords to the various classes of society (we pretend we have no class distinction, but of course we have. No country existed without them.) I think the only practical advice to make is to tell young girls to make friends with some charming, elderly woman and to ask her to teach them.

Lucile H.—You cannot overcome the tendency to freckle, but you can bleach them off somewhat as fast as they appearr. Simple bleaches are the only kinds to use, as the skin will deteriorate if strong ones are used very much. Cucumber or lemon juice make simple bleaches that will not injure the skin.

M. H. M.—The most becoming colors will always be those that are the same as your eyes or your hair. That does not mean that you must use the exact shade, as light hair and eyes need darker shades to enrich the natural colors. If your skin lacks color you should wear colors that have a tinge of red in them. An instance is that of gray, it should not be chosen if the skin is sallow unless there is a suggestion of pink to it.

Lily.—I do not think that the rouge caused the blackheads. They were probably in your skin and so small you did not see them until the rouge came in contact with them and changed them into little red specks more easily noticable.

Tomorrow—The Permanent Wave.

(From The Delineator.)

The daybreak of Christmas day in the year 1819 was fine. The sun began to shine some time about 4 o'clock over the somber expanse of the southern ocean in latitude 51°; and shortly afterward a sail was sighted ahead. The wind was light, but a heavy swell was running. Presently I wished a Merry Christmas to my captain. He looked still sleepy but amiable. I reported the distant sail to him and ventured the opinion that there was something wrong with her. He said "Wrong?" in an incredulous tone. He took the glasses from me, directed them toward her stripped masts, resembling three Swedish safety matches flying up and down and waggling to and fro ridiculously in that heaving and austere wilderness of countless water hills, and returned them to me without a word. He only yawned. This marked display of callousness gave me a shock. In those days I was generally inexperienced and still a comparative stranger in that particular region of the world of waters.

The captain, as is a captain's way, disappeared from the deck; and after a time our carpenter came up the poop ladder carrying an empty small wooden keg of the sort in which certain ship's provisions are packed. I said, surprised, "What do you mean by lugging this thing up here, Chips?" "Captain's orders, sir," he explained shortly. I did not like to question him further, and so we only exchanged Christmas greetings and he went away. The next person to speak to me was the steward. He came running up the companion stairs: "Have you any old newspapers in your room, sir?" There were several old Sydney Heralds, Telegraphs, Bulletins in my cabin, besides a few home papers received by the last mail. "Why do you ask, steward?" I inquired naturally. "The captain would like to have them," he said.

And even then I did not understand the inwardness of these eccentricities. I was only lost in astonishment at them. It was 8 o'clock before we had closed with that ship which, under her short canvas and heading nowhere in particular, seemed to be loafing aimlessly on the very threshold of the gloomy home of storms. But long before that hour I had learned from the number of the boats she carried that this nonchalant ship was a whaler. She was the first whaler I had ever seen. She had hoisted the Stars and Stripes at her peak and her signal flags had told us already that she was the Alaska. Two years out from New Bedford. Last from Honolulu. Two hundred and fifteen days on the cruising ground. We passed, sailing slowly, within a hundred yards of her; and just as our steward started ringing the breakfast bell, the captain and I held up aloft, in view of the figures watching us over her stern, the keg, properly headed up and containing, besides an enormous bundle of old newspapers, two boxes of figs in honor of the day. We flung it afar over the rail. Instantly our ship, sliding down the slope of a high swell, left it far behind in our wake. On board the Alaska a man in fur cap flourished an arm; another, a much bewhiskered person, ran forward suddenly. I never saw anything so ready and smart as the way that whaler, rolling desperately all the time, lowered one of her boats. The southern ocean went on tossing the two ships like a juggler his guilt balls and the microscopic white speck of the boat seemed to come into the game instantly, as if shot out from a catapult, on the enormus and lonely stage. That Yankee whaler lost not a moment in picking up her Christmas present from the English wool-clipper. Before we had increased the distance very much, she dipped her ensign in thanks and asked to be reported all well, with a catch of three fish. I suppose it paid them for two hundred and fifteen days of risk and toil, away from the sounds and sights of the inhabited world, like outcasts devoted beyond the confines of mankind's life to some enchanted and lonely penance.

Door Rattles.

A simple and efficient cure, althuogh it is not of a permanent nautre, is the fitting between the door and its pillars of rubber studs which are especially made for the purpose. They consist of a small pail orp in, the head of which is embedded in a semi-spherical head of a rubber. They should be preferably let into a recess cut with a brace and bit in the pillar; they will be found to silence door rattle for a considerable period and can be renewed in a few seconds when worn. These studs can be obtained for a few cents a dozen from any coachbuilders' supplier or necessory dealer.

'Watering Down' Of Christianity Scored by Bishop

Dallas, Texas, November 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—Care must be taken that "the gospel, and not some weak imitation of the gospel is brought home to the people," the Right Rev Thomas F. Gailor, president of the National Council of the Episcopal church in America, told the house of bishops of the church in a sermon at the opening of its special session here today.

Warning against "watering down and diluting Christian truth," Bishop Gailor said he "sometimes thought that we are yielding to the temptation to popularize the gospel and adapt it to the natural desires and preferences of our generation.

"These thoughts come to me with special force today because by commission of the national council, I am about to visit for the first time in my life a country that is known as non-Christian.

Izzy's visit, stock in the bootleg market the organization and efficiency of its public service was never more splendidly demonstrated than during this last terrible earthquage. More potent and convincing than any written treaties or formal declarations of good will, the voluntary offerings of the American people must convince the Japanese that we regard them as friends and brothers redeemed by Jesus Christ.

"We want the enactment of better laws, the abolition of wars, the growth of industry and the arts of peace," Bishop Gailor concluded. "But the foundation of these accomplishments must be in the changed spirit that is not of this world, and which will enable us and compel us to do God's will on earth as it is done in Heaven."

By Many Ruses, Agents Spread Dixie Dry Net

Mobile, Ala., November 14.—Isidore ("Izzy") Einstein, famous as the Sherlock Holmes of the prohibition-enforcement office, departed from Mobile last night after a three weeks incognito visit and as a result of Izzy's sivit, stock in the bootleg market dropped as rapidly as German marks.

"I came, I saw, I mopped up," said Izzy yesterday as he stood in the courtyard of the customs house where load after load of liquor was destroyed "And, believe me, it was some job I can safely estimate that the number of shinny joints in proportion to population here is greater than in any other town I ever struck."

Tuesday afternoon, after the denouement, Izzy explained his system.

"Every day I had a new name, a new job, a new disguise, and a new address. My partner, Peter Reager, and I worked on the docks, unloading fruit vessels for a few days and got a fine line on the important liquor business here. Being a good mixer, the boys in my gang fell for me and put me next to all the stuff I yanted.

SAME METHODS IN NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, La., November 14.—While prohibition agents today were checking up the results of the raids conducted here yesterday, "Izzy" Einstein, nationally known prohibition agent, whose stay here for more than two weeks culminated in evidence and information responsible for the issuance of 45 search warrants for the raids was relating tales of his experience while on duty here.

Acting under orders from E. C. Yellowley, chief of the general prohibition agents, Einstein and Peter Reagan, of New York, a former pugilist, who assisted him, quietly slipped into New Orleans after they had spent three weeks in Mobile, registered at a local hotel under assumed names and set about their work.

Gum Infringement Ends in Assessment Of $3,718,000 Penalty

Chicago, November 14.—Damages amounting to $3,718,000 must be paid by the William Wrigley, Jr., company, chewing gum manufacturers, to L. P. Larson Chewing Gum company for infringement on a copyrighted gum package, according to an order of Charles B. Morrison, federal master in chancery. Litigation has been in progress five years.

The order decided the Wrigley company owed the rival concern $2,860,000 and interest at 6 per cent since November 12, 1918.

In 1915 the Wrigley company sued the Larson company for alleged infringement on a Wrigley wrapper. The Larson company contended it was first to use the wrapper.

A reserve of approximately $7,000,000 is understood to have been accumulated by the Wrigley company to meet any emergency and even if the case is settled without further litigation the status of the stockholders will not be affected.

The verdict of the master came only a day after the Wrigley company placed 300,000 shares of new stock on the market and announced that three shares of stock of no par value would be exchanged for each of the 600,000 shares of stock of $25 par value now outstanding.

NEGRO BAPTISTS HOLD MEET IN TOHMASVILLE

Thomasville, Ga., November 14.—(Special.)—Thomasville is the mecca this week for the colored Baptists of the state, and there are 1,000 or 1,500 ministers and delegates here attending the state convention, which opened yesterday and will continue through Friday. Every train coming in yesterday brought numbers of them and there were through sleepers from Savannah and Atlanta bringing the officers and others.

The 58th annual session of the convention opened yesterday morning at 10 o'clock in the A. B. church of this city, with Rev. James M. Nabrit D. D., of Atlanta, presiding. The woman's auxiliary to the convention is also in session here.

The negroes of Thomasville are entertaining the members of the convention and visitors and many have temporarily given up their work in order to do so.

TAKE THE RIGHT ROAD!

Gazing blankly up one road and down another the tourist is completely lost until at last his eyes light upon a signpost.

"Oh, the arrow on the sign points to the left. That's the proper way to go." And he's off—on the left road but in the right direction.

Without signposts the highways of today would be a network of confusion.

When YOU are wondering where to get a good position or to borrow $50 for several months—there are little signposts in Atlanta which will guide you in the right direction.

These "signposts"—The Constitution's classified ads—point also toward the apartment you want to rent or to the typewriter for which you've been seafching. In fact, they direct Atlanta residents in every direction they want to go.

News, Views And Reviews

New York, November 14.—Further irregularity in industrials checked bullish enthusiasm today with one or two exceptions, notably in the case of MMO stocks, which were in steady demand. The "A" stock advancing 3¼ points in the first hour. RBO and rubber eased off about 1 point each, while among the low priced rails Erie was again the main feature. Despite the attempts by professionals to depress prices the list held rather well and absorbed a great deal of selling, both for long and short account. There were several industrial divisions declared in addition to an extra 50c on Vacuum Oil. The gossip on Erie included rumors of taking over the New York Central, the Canadian Pacific, also the Van Sweringen interests, and from these erports it is well known that the common is earning around $6.00 a share, so that the buying goes merrily on. The speed that the general market advanced up to this point indicated that a trading position for the next few days might prove wise, as all advancing markets are scheduled to just such breathing spells as we are now witnessing. The optimistic view of the outlook remains unchanged around the streets and many specialties are in line for upward moves.—Fenner & Beane.

COTTON LETTER.

New Orleans, November 14.—Cotton opened under pressure today owing to the reactionary attitude of Liverpool, uncertainty over the English elections and disturbing news from Germany. The selling was pretty heavy during most of the forenoon but the market took it so well that sellers desisted around the middle of the season and then began to cover. As soon as the selling let up, contracts immediately became scarce, and when fresh buying came into the market, values advanced readily, and just before the close sold 45 points above the previous finals. Talk of slack demand from mills during the early part of the day reports that France was asking England to join her in seizing the northern ports of Germany and rumors of more Wall street liquidation furnish much of the incentive to the selling. Later on New York sent reports to the effect that Wall street liquidation appeared to be over. Scattering points in the interior sent wires telling of good spot demand at improving basis, and the trade interests were credited with being large buyers. There were also rumors of a bullish forecast of ginnings in the next day or two. The public is soo troughly imbued with the idea that higher prices for cotton are inevitable in that reactions are still regarded as furnishing good buying opportunities. It takes but little encouragement to start a fresh wave of buying. This disposition to buy may carry the advance further but in our opinion the foreign situation is such as to call for caution until it clears up.—Fenner & Beane.

COTTON LETTER.

New Orleans, November 14.—Consumption figures helped the market a great deal today as the increase over September consumption, in spite of the reported extensive curtailment during October, caused considerable surprise. Attention is now being focused on the ginning report for the period ending yesterday, which will be issued a week hence and is expected to be very bullish. Spot news indicates decreasing selling pressure and somewhat better demand. We consider cotton a purchase on all easy spots.—E. B. Norman & COmpany.

COTTON LETTER.

New Orleans, November 14.—After opening somewhat lower as a result of easier cables and a further drop in foreign exchange, the market eased on consumption returns for the month of October, but there was further liquidation causing it to decline again, after which market bulged. Liquidation has been extensive of late. One line in New York, estimated at 150,000 bales, is said to have been liquidated, and it is likely market is technically better on that account. The unexpected general election in England for December 6, is having a depressing influence on business, which is apt to continue until results of the election are known. Census returns were bullish as to consumption mill stocks and active spindles, and as facts are more valuable than opinions the following comparatives will be found of interest: This season versus last; consumption October, including linters 592,953 vs. 596,379; October 31, 1,102,000 vs. 1,383,000; stocks in public storage October 31, 3,485,000 vs. 4,287,000; total stock October 31, 4,587,000 vs. 5,683,000; active spindles October 31, 34,378,602 vs. 33,837,435; active spindles, September 30, 35,929,855 vs. 33,316,444. The next report of importance will be the census on ginnings to November 14, which will be issued November 21. In this connection the following comparatives are worth attention: 1923 vs. 1922, ginned to November 14, blank vs. 8,870,000; to November 1 7,535,000 vs. 8,139,000; from August 1 to November 14, blank vs. 731,000. There was some buying this evening on the theory that ginnings for the last period will probably be light. In advance of the census on ginnings due on the twenty-first, an estimate on ginnings to November 14, is expected of the national ginners. Liverpool cabled: "Easy on political news, traders nervous and inclined hold off pending election. Spot demand not so good." Meanwhile the situation in Germany has to be reckoned with also.—H. & B. Beer.

STOCK LETTER.

New York, November 14.—The future of the market now seems to depend upon industrial developments and we for one, as street knows, these are highly irregular.

It looks as though the oil, the textile and some smaller industries were still doubtful while there has been distinct improvement in steel, copper and equipment buying. At the same time, the agencies of distribution of goods including the chain stores and mail order houses show excellent sales indicating that there is plenty of purchasing power. There have been few actual signs of improvement, however, and the speculating public is still waiting to be convinced.

Stocks have had a good advance, and while the remarkable support that the market has been receiving will undoubtedly continue in the face of the heavy financing that still waits to be done, a conservative attitude is necessary at the moment. Industrial stocks have shown a good deal of hesitancy in the last several days. Perhaps a very good reaction is in the next week or so would not be a miss. At any rate after the way in which stocks have been acting recently, a waiting policy for some definite developments will probably be wise.

Intimations are coming into the street that the railroad earning statements for October, which will be published in the next week or so, will be very good. Already some predictions for the net earnings of some roads, which seemed to be based on interviews with carriers officials has brought forth the remark "the new is too good to keep." Such statements, if as good as expected, will reflect both the basis for the recent strength in the carrier issues and in addition the continuance of the remarkable rate of consumption of products of industry in general.—Livingston & Co.

COTTON LETTER.

New York, November 14.—The early market was under some pressure from what some described as liquidation, while others believed much of the selling was for spot account on western orders, and for Wall street traders, who have not given up the practice of feeling out the market to see how much resistence there is left. Such tactics are encouraged by reports of curtailments by mills, continued resistence to advances in the goods market and reports of cotton offering on a tendable basis in the south. When the facts get rounded up for a month, however, it is found that consumption is going on apace as in the report issued today for October, and there is no lack of advices from excellent sources that cotton in the south is firmly held, and that it is becoming increasingly difficult to fill orders. Some express the opinion that the holiday trade will be of large proportions and serve to break up the lethargy in the goods market, which is the one remaining barrier of importance to a further advance in cotton. Stocks in the hands of distributors are believed to be at a very low ebb but attempts to replenish them are still based on prices for cotton, much below current levels, except where it is imperative for the buyer to secure the goods immediately to supply his trade. Even the big department stores are reported able to offer only a very limited selection to customers, as the supply of many varieties is completely exhausted. There is thought to be some accumulation of goods on hand in mills, especially in those which have been financially able to run commercially full and have done so, but these stocks would be quickly swept up if the potential demands should begin to be effective. The short position presents no attraction and purchases on good dips look best, as bullish factors appear more potent than bearish, and the market is very responsive to support.—Post & Flagg.

COTTON LETTER.

New York, November 14.—The consumption report this morning on the opening was larger than the trade had expected and it seemed to indicate more business on the part of domestic mills than had been believed possible in view of the lagging condition of dry goods prices. The marked advanced slightly on the publication of the report, but met heavy speculative liquidation of cotton at higher prices last week. This cotton was absorbed by a general trade demand in a quiet market and in the early afternoon prices advanced slightly above last night's closing figures. The undertone continues strong, the business is less active than was the case last week. Advice from Manchester are still optimistic and apparently there is a continuation of good trade in that market. We see little change in the general situation and the market appears to be adjusting itself to the new high level of prices brought about during the market excitement of last week. Liverpool futures are due tomorrow: December 19.44; January 19.34.—Hubbard Bros. & Co.

COTTON LETTER.

New York, November 14.—There was sharp cross currents in today's cotton market Liverpool opened with an easier tendency with spot sales off and cables stated local operators and Manchester interests were pausing furthemore there were distinct signs of diminishing business all around. Subsequently, however, that market became strong. The domestic consumption figures of 541,825 bales for October were a bullish surprise and immediately after the opening outside buying entered the market and lifted quotations 30 points rapidly

This was followed by unusually heavy selling here credited to a large operator. Certainly the expression of confidence which came from a great many quarters as the day wore on shows a rather generally favorable feeling towards the market. On the other hand spots have recently sold freely on a tenderable basis and this must be absorbed by the market before futures can again be called measurably cheap. This liquidation is before the market and in addition speculatively held contracts have not been thoroughly liquidated in the market movements already witnessed. 34.20 is the high record thus far established for March cotton and until or unless that record is broken almost immediately the market would appear to us to be on large scalping ground although the long future would indicate that prices are on a investment basis if surface fluctuations are to be disregarded. January Liverpool due Thursday, 19.33.—Orvis Brothers & Co.

New York, November 14.—An early advance on unexpectedly large domestic consumption figures for October was followed by reactions under renewed liquidation in the cotton market today, but prices firmed up again in the late trading on more bullish spot advices. January contracts which had sold off from 33.00 to 32.70 advanced to 33.33 and closed at 33.25. The general market closed strong at net advances of 30 to 55 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of one point to an advance of 10 points. There was some selling on relatively easy Liverpool cables but it was readily taken and the market sold 20 to 30 points net higher during the early trading on the census report showing domestic consumption of 541,825 bales for October compared with 483,852 for September and 533,734 for October last year. These figures were evidently a surprise to the trade in view of recent reports of mill curtailment and they inspired a considerable demand. It was supplied by further scattering liquidation on the advance, however, and prices became rather weak and unsettled during the middle of the day when there were rumors that considerable cotton was coming here for tender next month.

December sold off to 33.04 and March to 32.87, making net declines of about 10 to 20 points on the active positions, but trade interests were buyers below the 33 cents level for the spring months, and the market firmed up during the afternoon on a continuation of this demand, combined with covering or rebuying on reports of a better demand and firmer spot basis in some of the southern markets. Prices made new highs for the day late in the afternoon with December selling at 33.75 and March at 33.56, making net advances of 52 to 60 points on present crop positions. The close was within a few points of the best. There were rumors during the afternoon that private returns pointed to a light ginning for the period ending tonight.

DECIDED UPWARD SWING AT NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, November 14.—During a good part of the session in cotton today fluctuations were on a minor scale and carried prices both below and above the last sales of yesterday but the late trading brought more decided upward swings, they being the result of rumors that private bureau ginning reports were to be assured toward the end of the week, and the general belief that any ginning figures from now on must be small. Late in the day prices were 38 to 50 points up, with the last sale of December up to 33.10 cents a pound. The close was 33 to 47 points up, with the last sale of December at 33.03.

Poor cables and unfavorable foreign political news resulted in enough selling on the opening to depress prices to the extent of six to 18 points; then came a rally to net gains of 25 to 30 points but later in the morning declines were widened to 11 to 18 points. December traded at 32.50 at its lowest. Liquidation of long cotton appeared to furnish the bulk of the offerings.

Toward noon the tone strengthened and in the afternoon strength was more pronounced. The rally following the opening was due to the census bureau report, which counted October consumption in this country at 541,825 bales against 483,852 in September and 533,744 in October of last year but the buying of the afternoon was based on ginning expectation and they were made all the more bullish because of the weekly crop reports from the government which noted the practical completion of picking over the greater part of the belt.

WEEKLY WEATHER AND CROP REVIEW

Washington, November 14.—The condition of southern crops was reported in the department of agriculture's weekly weather and crop review as follows:

Much better weather prevailed for gathering cotton than was experienced last week in the western portions of the belt. It was generally fair in Oklahoma, except for light to moderate rains near the close of the week, and fairly good progress was made in picking, with more than 80 per cent of the crop gathered; there is very little top crop in that state. The week was cool and dry in Texas until near the close, when there was light rain in the western and southwestern portions of the state; conditions were generally favorable for picking.

In Arkansas the week was very favorable for field work where picking has been completed in many parts, and nearly done generally; there are still a few bolls opening but of little consequence. Conditions were favorable for gathering the remnant of the crop in Louisiana, while the fair, sunshiny weather favored field work throughout the central and western portions of the belt. Cotton has been practically all gathered in Alabama and Mississippi, while only a few scattered fields remain to be picked in South Carolina. Picking will continue in North Carolina, however, for several weeks.

The harvest of potatoes progressed under generally favorable weather conditions in the middle Atlantic coast states, except for some delay in Maryland because of wet weather.

Rains Help Gardens.

The rains of last week benefited gardens, truck and minor fall crops in central and east gulf states. Truck did well in Arkansas and the extreme Mississippi valley, while the cool weather in Florida was beneficial to celery and lettuce where small shipments were being made. Lands dried out considerably in the Everglades district, which permitted the resumption of work.

There was slight damage to truck by frost in Florida, and beans were killed in the trucking sections of South Carolina, though no other material damage resulted from the cold in the southeast.

The week was favorable for cutting and grinding cane in Louisiana, but much is still green, with rather low sugar content, and some cuttings have been deferred awaiting better maturity.

The apple harvest is generally completed. Citrus fruits continue good and are coloring nicely in both Florida and California. The cool weather was beneficial in the former state. Strawberry plants made good progress in Florida.

The husking and cribbing of corn progressed rapidly in the Ohio valley states under the influence of generally fair and sunshiny weather, but there was some delay in the middle Atlantic coast states.

Husking and cribbing made satisfactory advance in Oklahoma. Bulk of the corn has been housed in Oklahoma, but the quality is mostly poor

Low Temperatures.

The weather during the week ending November 3 was characterized by abnormally low temperatures in the southeastern section of the country, averaging 8 to 10 degrees below normal along the immediate South Atlantic coast.

Freezing occurred as far south as Savannah, Ga., and Meridian, Miss., in the east gulf states.

Frosts as a rule were rather frequent during the week in the east gulf and South Atlantic states, with light frost in the interior counties of Florida, and temperatures near freezing in exposed places of the northwestern portion of that state. There was some damage done to tender vegetation by low temperatures in South Carolina, Alabama and Northern Florida, though the cool weather was beneficial for winter truck in the last named state.

Little or no rain fell during the week from the middle Mississippi and Ohio valleys southward, where rainfall was moderate to heavy during the week preceding.

The rainfall of last week in the interior of South Carolina was of only temporary benefit in relieving the water shortage for power purposes and more rain is needed in that state, which is also the case in central and western North Carolina. Good rains occurred in the Virginias, which were beneficial for the soil and fall seeded crops, while a moderate amount of precipitation was reported in the Atlantic coast states to the northward.

Precipitation benefited fall sown grains in the middle Atlantic coast states, and the weather was generally favorable for seeding in the South Atlantic and east gulf states. Fly infestation of wheat has been reported from a few places in Oklahoma.

Ten secondary rails averaged 82.47; net loss, .06.

Ten public utilities averaged 85.16; net loss, .05.

Combined average, month ago, 86.23; year ago, 88.56.

New York, November 14.—Led by foreign government issues which were sold on further declines in foreign exchange rates, the general list turned slightly reactionary in today's bond market. Traders thought the recent large volume of new bonds absorbed by the market was a contributing factor in today's recession, which, however, was not marked in any division.

The trading in speculative railroad mortgages continued unusually active and advances were recorded by numerous bonds in that class. Buying of New Haven 7s francs, pushed that issue up 3 points. Erie liens also continued to register gains.

The day's offerings of new bonds totaled well above $30,000,000 of which $20,000,000 consisted of railroad issues. Offering syndicates reported a ready sale of all of the new bonds, but investment houses were of the opinion that actual absorption by investors may be slower.

The continued decline in sterling influenced enough selling of United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland bonds t carry the 5 1-2s of 1929 off 1 1-4 to a new low.

Trading in active United States government bonds was dull with several issues slightly off on the day.

Bankers stated that negotiations were under way for an issue of $5,000,000 Webster mill notes. This is a subsidiary of the American Woolen company. It was reported also that the long delayed issue of St. Paul Union Depot bonds may be offered tomorrow. Proceeds of the proposed issue would be used to refund $9,500,000 notes falling due December 15.

COTTON CONSUMPTION SHOWS BIG INCREASE

Washington, November 14.—Cotton consumed during October totaled 541,825 bales of lint and 57,128 of linters, compared with 483,852 of lint and 48,587 of linters in September this year and 533,744 of lint and 62,035 of linters in October last year, the census bureau announced today.

Cotton on hand October 31 was:

In consuming establishments 1,102,583 bales of lint and 87,515 of linters, compared with 773,173 of lint and 92,819 of linters on September 30 this year and 1,381,945 of lint and 82,403 of linters on October 31 last year.

$25,000 PLEDGED TO OGLETHORPE

Woman's Board of University Votes Gift at Lowry Memorial Meet; Corra Harris Speaks.

The sum of $25,000 was pledged the Oglethorpe university campaign Wednesday afternoon by the woman's board of the school at a meeting at the college devoted largely to services in memory of the late Mrs. Emma Markham Lowry, who before her death was an honorary life president of the board.

The woman's board pledged $25,000 to the campaign on the recommendation of its executive committee. In offering the motion, Mrs. Albert J. Thornton subscribed the first $1,000. The motion was seconded by Mrs. C. A. Conklin, who subscribed $1,000. These were followed by other subscriptions of $1,000 each from Mrs. J. M. High, Mrs. Morris Brandon, Mrs. James T. Williams, Mrs. Thornwell Jacobs, Mrs. C. K. Ayer and others, as well as a number of pledges of $500 and smaller amounts. The amount subscribed by Mrs. High was specified as a loan scholarship fund in memory of her husband, the late J. M. High.

Help $1,500,000 Campaign.

A resolution was also adopted unanimously by the board that it would give fullest cooperation and assistance to the campaign recently inaugurated to raise $1,500,000 for building, maintenance and endowment purposes, and numerous women present volunteered their services.

Mrs. Katherine Connerat, president of the board, presided. Mrs. John K. Ottley, a life-long friend of Mrs. Lowry, was invited by Mrs. Connerat to preside over the memorial services. Tributes were paid Colonel and Mrs. Lowry by Mrs. Corra Harris, one of America's foremost women writers; Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of the university; J. Henry Porter, nephew of Mrs. Lowry and executor of her estate; Mrs. Albert Thornton and Mrs. Haynes McFadden.

Mrs. Harris was awarded the first honorary degree ever conferred upon a woman by Oglethorpe university, that of Doctor of Literature.

Referring to the recent legacy of $275,000 to the Oglethorpe university, Mrs. Harris stated that in the end Mrs. Lowry had achieved the heart of a mother, as well as of a wife, through her gift to Georgia boys and girls.

Lanier Gavel to Jacobs.

Earlier during the program, Mrs. J. M. High presented to Dr. Jacobs, for the university, a gavel made from the Sidney Lanier oak near Brunswick. Mrs. High explained that it was the gift of some of her Brunswick friends to the university because of the Lanier traditions which cluster about the school. In accepting it Dr. Jacobs stated that it would be placed in the library of the university and used only on special occasions. He handed it to Mrs. Connerat, who used it in presiding over the board meeting.

On behalf of the woman's board, Mrs. George Brine presented the university with the table used by Henry Timrod, who ranks as one of the south's greatest poets. Mrs. Brine told the story of Timrod's early life.

Georgia Church History Is Told In Big Pageant

The spiritual history of Georgia Methodism from the landing of General James Edward Oglethorpe and his little band of colonists to the great Centenary campaign for missions waged during the past five years, was presented to a large audience at the city auditorium Wednesday night in the form of a spectacular pageant. It was given by the Methodist churches of Atlanta, and more than 1,200 people, including some of the south's finest musical talent, took part.

The "World Cry" pageant will be presented again tonight at the auditorium at 8:00 o'clock.

The final processional, representing a pilgrimage of more than 40 nations to the foot of the cross, was one of the most educational and inspirational tableaux ever presented to an Atlanta audience. Those taking part were dressed in native costumes and various foreign groups of the city represented their own nationalities. Mrs. J. E. Bracewell, as the immortal heroine of France, "Joan de Arc," led the procession.

Other interesting scenes included a Chinese wedding, Japanese kindergarten, and African jungles.

Preceding the pageant, a splendid musical program was rendered by the glee club and orchestra of Emory university, Dr. Charles A. Sheldon, Jr., and Solon Drukenmiller, the south's most famous tenor. Among the outstanding features of the pageant music were the Agnes Scott college glee club, the Elks' Troubadours, the quartette and group of choristers from Big Bethel church and all numbers given by the mammoth pageant chorus.

Insurance on Lives Of Pastors May Create Fund for Lutherans

Lexington, S. C., November 14.—An endowment for the Lutheran church in South Carolina would be created through insurance on the lives of ministers, under a plan proposed by the annual convention of South Carolina synod in session here today. The plan calls for each minister to secure a policy for $1,000, the premium to be paid by the church of which he is pastor. The synod would be the beneficiary.

One-third of the churches in South Carolina and Georgia, are without ministers, Rev. John S. Seibert, secretary of the home mission board of the United Lutheran church in America told the convention in an address.

CHURCHES OF CHRIST ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Athens, Ga., November 14.—(Special)—With every available seat in the First Christian church filled with delegates and visitors attending the seventy-sixth annual convention of the Churches of Christ of Georgia, Mrs. Afric B. Anderson, promotional secretary of the United Christian Missionary society for the golden jubilee, delivered the address tonight, using as a theme, "What Georgia Disciples Will Do for Home and Foreign Missions." She mentioned that Georgia's share in the golden jubilee which is to be held in Cleveland, Ohio, next year is $20,000. Mrs. Anderson declared the belief that the Southern Christian Home, Atlanta, would share with the missions in this money, which is being raised by the womans missionary Society of America.

The election of officers for the ensuing year was held today. Officers selected were Dr. E. G. Orahood, Sandersville, president; Dr. M. B. Miller, Athens, vice president; Dr. E. N. Anthony, Wrightsville, secretary; and Dr. Luther Stone, Griffin, assistant secretary. Officers for the state board of the Georgia Churches of Christ were also elected. They are Dr. Ben Foster, Macon, Claude Mayne, Winder, Dr. E. L. Shellnutt, president Southeastern Christian college, Auburn. Mrs. W. F. Mott, of Waycross, was re-elected superintendent of Christion Endeavor for Disciples of Georgia societies. G. L. Johnson, vice president of the Georgia Christian Endeavor Union, Athens, was selected as field worker for the northeastern part of Georgia, and will commence full time work January 1, serving in various communities of Northeast Georgia in promotion of Bible school and Christian Endeavor activities.

The convention held here is the largest in the history of the Christian churches. Dr. Lucas, of Augusta, served as song director in addition to delivering inspiring messages.

The golden jubilee banquet served at the Y. M. C. A. building this evening and attended by more than 150 delegates was the social feature of the convention. Mrs. H. C. Phipps, of Atlanta, acted as toatsmaster. Talks were made by leaders in the Georgia Woman's Missionary society at the banquet. The next convention of the Disciples of Christ probably will go to Rome since the brotherhood there is a strong contender for the meeting. Dr. John Wood heads the Rome delegation. A good program will be given Thursday, and in the evening Dr. G. I. Hoover, Indianapolis, will close the convention with an address.

HOPE SWAMP EELS IN GORDIAN KNOTS ON "HOOCH" DIET

Goldsboro, N. C., November 14.—(United News.)—They are catching full grown eels by the yard down in New Hope swamp, all because the poor fish—or reptiles—have tied themselves in knots with moonshine hooch and are now quite helpless.

Twelve hundred gallons of long range corn liquor, whose disposal into the swamp Wednesday is estimated to have saved the lives of at least 1,200 hill billies, is responsible.

Members of the unfashionable colony whose summer and winter homes front on the swamp have been busy all day catching intoxicated catfish and frying them over a hot fire to preserve the alcoholic flavor.

Popular report has it that an alligator on the outskirts of town has dislocated his jaw swallowing a deep mouthful. The natives are risking typhoid and hookworm drinking the swamp water raw.

PLANS BEING DRAWN FOR MILLION-DOLLAR HOTEL AT MOUNTAIN

Lloyd T. Preacher, well-known Atlanta architect, has been engaged by Alonzo Atkins and O. F. Whittle to design and complete plans for the new million-dollar tourist hotel, which will be the central feature of the five million-dollar development program which they have announced for "Stone Mountain City," which, according to Mr. Atkins and Mr. Whittle, will be erected at the foot of Stone Mountain, facing the Confederate monument now being carved there.

The new hotel, according to Mr. Whittle, will contain approximately 500 rooms, and will be of the old English type, as will the other developments planned. It will be surrounded by a park of over 500 acres, Mr. Whittle said, which will contain two lakes, one over fifty acres in extent.

A topographical map on a large scale has been made of the entire property to be developed, and the work of laying out the entire project is well under way.

The foremost landscape architects in the United States, according to Mr. Whittle, will be engaged as soon as possible to begin work on beautifying the tract.

The plans for the new hotel, according to Mr. Preacher, will be far enough developed within the next sixty days to permit letting of contracts for excavations and preliminary work.—Atlanta Journal, Nov. 11.

A Lifetime's Opportunity But You Must Act Quickly

The excess acreage we are offering in 50- to 150-acre tracts, directly adjacent to our own development, and overlooking Stone Mountain, is an opportunity for investment that should prove absolutely the chance of a lifetime for investors.

This property, when subdivided, should offer profits heretofore undreamed of by those experienced in the sale of residential and cottage sites.

If you wish to share in this exceptional money-making opportunity, you should personally investigate right now. The plans for our development are going right ahead, as can be seen from the clipping at the left, and choice Stone Mountain acreage will not stay down at the farm prices we are making on this unusual property.

Call at our offices immediately. One of our representatives will show you over the property. Do this NOW, for later you may be disappointed.
